> From the New York Gazet'e. A FORTUNE.

The following advice from a Parent to a Sec. if accepted, will prove more valuable than a fortune in gold Letter from a Father to a Son.

My DEAR SON-As the last good I can do for you in this world, I now join to the trifles I leave you, these few lines, and which I beg of you often to read for my sake, who ever loved you so tenderly. Above all things fear God, as the Supreme Author of all good; love him in your soul, and be religious, but detest every tinctage of hypocrisy.

Regard John neighbour, that is, all manner and of whatever nation, profession or faith, while they are honest; and be ever so thyself; it is the best policy in the end, depend upon it.

Guard against idleness; it is the root of every misery, to which bad company gives the finishing blow. Love economy without avarice, and be ever thyself thy best friend. Fly from the excesses of debauchery; they will enervate thy body, while they are a canker in thy mind. To keep the sound, be never behind-hand thy correspon-dent, with thy creditor, with thy daily occupations, or with thy conscience, and thy soul shall enjoy peace.

By using air, exercise, diet, and reasonable recreation, thy body shall possess health and vigor.

Should fortune frown, (which depend upon it sometimes she will,) then look around on thousands more wretched than thyself, and who, perhaps, did less deserve to be and be content. Contentment's is better than fine gold.

Wish not for death, but scorn to fear it, and be pered to meet it every hour, since come it must; while the good mind smiles at its sting and defies its point.

Beware of passion and cruelty: but rejoice in being good natured, not only to man, but to the meanest insect, that is, the whole creation without exception; detest to hurt them but for thy food or thy defence. To be cruel is the portion of the coward, while bravery and humanity go hand in hand, and please thy God.

Obey with temper and even pleasure, those set over thee; since without know how to be obedient, none even knew how to command.

Now, my dear boy, love thy mother and her children from your heart, if ever you had real love for your father, who sequests it of you. She has most senderly proved a help in thy infart state; and while thou art a brother to her helpless ones, prove chyself also a parent and a guardian, by constant kindness and a proper conduct. Let that good sense with which Heaven has been pleased to befriend thee, ever promote peace and harmony in my dear family; then will the blessings of Almighty God overspread you and them, and we' together with your beloved mother !

enly Benefactor, our joy, and happiness shall be eternal and complete; which is the ardent wish, the sincere prayer, and only hope of your loving father, thy tender parent, by the day, week, menth or year. Those who, my dear child, when you read this, will be no more, and research. have s chance once more to meet. an affectionate heart, Yours, &c.

THE RELIGIOUS AND LITES RARY REPOSITORY. To be edited by a society of Laymen members of the Protestant Episcopul Church

The leading views of the Editors are stated in the following note; by one of the persons, who will be actively employed in the selection of the matter for publication. The Religious Magazines which have been heretofore published by members of the church, are, some of them, very useful as far as they go. My objection to them is, that they do not attempt to give us information, of which the laity, and indeed clergy, stand in much need, and which is with great difficulty to be obtained. In this country the laity have a considerable particountry the laity have a considerable participation in the affairs of the church, and ought to possess an intimate knowledge of its history, constitution and laws. as well as delegates to the convention, they have important and very solemn duties to perform, and with a knowledge of these duties, it ought to be the business of these magazines to furnish them. The subjects usually discussed in them have already been explained and enforced by pious and learned divines, with as much ability as could be expected from more modern wri ters, and a knowledge of what we are ote believe and do in order to be saved," may be communicated to our readers as well by selections, as by any original matter which we might be able to offer to them. From the writings of approved divines, not always to be met with, even in possession of the clergy, we shall most frequently collect what it is deemed necessary to give on christian doctrine and duty. The magazine will aim to be useful, and desires no other reputation.
I am induced to hope that, besides fur-nishing the laity with useful information in regard to the duties which are imposed up-on them, some hints, worthy of their atten-tion, may occasionally be given to the clery. While they act up to their ordination ows; endeavour to frame and fashion their lives according to the doctrine of Christ, to make themselves wholesome examples of the flock of Christ, and reverently obey their Bishops, following with a glad mind and will, their godly admonitions, they de-serve, and there is in the laity of the church of Maryland generally, every disposition to honour and support them. If, however, at any time, any of them forget to pay due regard to their own solemn engagements, and instead of loving to "dwell together in unity," a design should be manifested to introduce disorder and misrule into the church, to oppose its legitimate authority, or to assume powers which do not belong to them, then it is not only the right, but becomes the imperative duty of the laity, o animadvert upon such conduct with un

Approving entirely of the forms prescribed, and of the doctrines agreed to by our Church, it will be no part of the business of the Magazine to recommend or even t connive at, any new inventions, whether in tenets, or discipline or worship. TERMS.
