The name of the original commander of the Gen. Rondeau, David M. Miles, said to be timore, the name of the first is stated to have been Major of the Second Louisiana.

Among the persons arrested are natives of Trieste, Genoa, England, St. Domingo, Ayres &c. but no citizens of States.

The investigation here corroborated many of the circumstances stated by the persons who were examined at the court.

All the persons from the boat who visited Boston, including the lad, have been arrested.

TO THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

On the twentieth instant, unexampled in the fury of progress, in the course of a few reduced the fairest portions of our flourishing city to a desolate and awful visitation of Divine vengeance.

The peculiar circumstances attending this terrible calamity have occasioned a greater extent of individual ruin and distress than usually caused by the most of the most fertile soils in the world.

the most fertile soils in the world, the most fertile soils in the world, the most fertile soils in the world.

Under these circumstances, the Common Council of this city, felt it their duty to lay the distressed situation of their unfortunate and needy fellow citizens before the public.

Yesterday last being the Anniversary of the Declaration of American Independence, the day was noticed by this city with that ardour and devotion becoming a people grateful for their present happiness, and anxious to commemorate the glories and deeds of their ancestors.

A discharge of cannon by the city artillery whered in the day; and the national flag was displayed on the spire of the State house.

At ten o'clock, and at eleven, the Declaration of Independence was read by Charles T. Platters, esq., and an Oration suitable to the occasion, delivered by James P. Bruce, esq., in the house of delegates, before a numerous assemblage of citizens.

Extract of a letter from the Rev. Samuel Bacon, agent appointed by the American Government, to superintend the settlement just forming upon the western coast of Africa, to his friend in Winchester, Va. dated Sierra Leone, March 27, 1820. I have so many things to say, that I know not where to begin. But I will try to gather a few ideas into words for you.

Coloured people can be happy here. Let them come, and encourage them! Your friend and brother,

Thomas Gossett. Among the many ordinances promulgated at St. Helena, in 1709, we find the following:—Whereas several idle, gossiping women, make it their business to go from house to house, about the Island, inventing and spreading false and malicious reports of the good people thereof, and thereby sow discord and debate among the neighbours, and often between men and their wives, to the great grief and trouble of all good and quiet people, and to the utter extinguishing of all friendship, amity, and good neighbourhood...

CHARLESTON, June 23. That part of the crew of the privateer brig General Rondeau, confined in the jail of this city, on a charge of Piracy and Murder, were brought up before the U. S. Circuit Court, now sitting in this city, on Wednesday, on a motion for their discharge. The Court took time to consider of the application, together with the evidence adduced against them; and yesterday morning gave its opinion, that they should be retained in jail for trial on the charges preferred.

PORTSMOUTH, (N. H.) June 24. Cheap Living.—A good dinner may be had in this town every day during the summer, of several of the best kinds of sea fish, good wheat bread, potatoes, sauce, and a bottle of sparkling spruce beer for 6 cents.

A Cure for the Dropsy.—Take one peck of the inside bark of large Black Ash, the north side of the tree; put it in a large pot full of water; boil it down to one gallon; put it in a stone jug and stop it tight. Take a large double hand full of the inside bark of Elder Stalks; another of the Roots of Parsley Seed; two gallons of hard sound Cyder—put all this in an iron pot—set it in a cool place—cover it close. Let the persons take half a pint of the Ash bark drink in the morning, work off itself—same day at 12 o'clock, take one gill of the Elder drink, and in the evening take a gill again—next day take a gill three times, and so on. Only every third morning take the Ash purgery. If you vomit it up, you must take as much again until it operates. About 9 or 10 days the water will begin to come away by urine or stool, or both. You must drink no water at any rate. You must drink sweet modlin tea, and you must drink it freely, without fail. Eat nothing but Chickens, Squirrels, Birds or fresh Beef. Take as much care of wet, and taking cold as a woman in child-bed. If you want to get well, be sure without fail to follow these directions close and cure. J. E.
