LAW INTELLIGENCE.

A singular trial for felony took place a short time since, at the November Oyer and Terminer, at Montreal. The prisoner, a clerk in the employ of M'Tavish, M'Gillivrays & Co. was indicted for stealing sundry checks upon the Montreal Bank drawn by his employers. That he had embezzled property in different ways was clearly proved. He had made fraudulent entries in the books of the concern, pro and con, and in many instances, to cover his embezzlements, had charged persons with monies which they had never received. The cash business of the firm was all transacted through the bank. Every month, the checks issued by the firm, on the settlement of the bank account, were taken back; but the book keeper of the bank had neglected to cancel the checks by crossing or punching a hole through them, for 12, months and upwards. This remissness af forded the prisoner an opportunity of presenting the checks for paywithout suspicion. The checks without suspicion found upon him, and for stealing found upon him, and for stealing able report on the petition of Corbin which he was indicted, had been able report on the petition of Corbin and the resolution of Corbin and the remarks of Mr. ment a second time; and he did so

In the Senate of the State, there took his seat, as a member, Josiah Crudup, a Baptist Clergyman. The constitution of this state contains the following article: viz.

"No clergyman, or preacher of the gospel, of any denomination, shall be capable of being a member of either the senate or house of commons, or council of state, while he continues in the exercise of the pastoral function.

A motion was made to vacate the seat of Mr. Crudup, on this ground. Mr. Crudup admitted that he was a regularly ordained minister of the Baptist Church; that he had perand had married several couple, some considerable time since, and that he retained all the authority he ever possessed of performing said ceremonies, but denied that he had ever administered the sacrament or exercised any "pastoral functions." The debate was animated, and resulted in adopting the resolution of expulsion, by 36 votes to 15. A resolution was then introduced to vacate the seat of another member, on the same grounds. We recollect a similar case which occurred many years ago, in which, on the last day of the session, we believe, and as it were for the form of compliance with this provision of the constitution, the Rev. Mr. Culpeper, now Representative in Congress from North Carolina, was expelled from his seat in the Legislature.

Having occasion to take a journey to the Southward this winter, I think it proper to tender this, my resignation of the place I have the honour to hold in the senate of Maryland.
