Had the majority been sincere in their professions, had they really felt for the interest of the state, and acted consistent with their de clarations; had the executive adopted a conciliatory course, the state of Maryland might have been spar ed the convulsed struggle which a. waits her the ensuing fall. There was a moment that might have ap pealed to their magninimity; to their liberarity-that might have raised them triumphant without another contest-and when the great sectional parties of the union are combating for supremacy, there would have been peace at hom ... But a liberality like this was never intended to subserve their views. -They at first held soothing language; as soon as they were affect ed, principle was abandoned. As long as it was sufficient for their purposes, "oblivion to party was their doctrine"-but the moment it became necessary, the toosin was sounded. These are some of the reasons which induce a continued opposition-and if ever here was a time when it became federalists to make an effort to wrest from the hands of ics present rulers the government of the state; to stop the progress of anarchy in her councils; M. and what must have been the and arrest the rapid strides of designing men, that moment is at hand. Should their exertions prove abor tive, and a fair expression of the will of the people at the ensuing election determine in favour of de mocracy, then indeed for one I shall be willing to submit, to make a virtue of necessity. But until that pe riod dies arrive, it become us like men, to contest every inch of ground, entrenching ourselves within the limits of the constitution, determined to resist every attempt to infringe it. Then should we fail we secure to ourselves the approbation of all candid men, and the con-solution of having done our duty. Thus, my dear sir, you will perceive that our opp sition is not without cause. Should an opportunity occur, I will hereafter speak Muth. more minutely of certain men and their measures.

At the summit from the town of Hurdwar side, there is an ascent by a broad flight of steps; at the top of these the guards were stationed to prevent the crowds pressing indiscriminately; a little before day-break the Sunyassees, and Byragees, who had the quarrel in 1796, vied with each other at the top for precedence of bathing, and made a sudden rush, in which the unfortunate Sepoys, and all the multitude who were descending, were carried down with such violence that they got jammed together within three steps of the water, where an angle of the old nacred Pyree Muth, and an angle of the Mundor of the Mahadee closes the passage to about seven feet, and opens with a swell behind. Here the unfortunate beings were crammed together with such violence, that those feelings and with those motion or use of limbs was unavailressions the federalists went to ing; the weak, the strong, in vain

I attempted to extract those who were in the foremost file below, but their bodies, legs, and arms were so entwined, that it was impossible to extract one of them, and nothing quals the apathy of rascally Pojaree Brahmins. A pleasing part of this recital throws a ray of a brighter hue on the Seapoy's of the 5th and 27th, and the Gorkeeah corps, who, though people of high cast and prepossessions, were stripped and actively employed in extricating the living. This was a labour of no small exertion, as they had to clear away the dead from near sixty feet, in an angle of fifty-six or sixty degrees, before they could extract the ving who were below. Colonel Patton, and several officers, by their xertions, & cheering the Seapoys, nduced them to clear the mass of dead away. At ten A. The number alive did not exceed seventy beings; and an extraordinary instance I must record, which was a young woman, wno was under the whole mass in the centre, and alive, who had merely her head and arms tree. From the information I could collect from those who were present when this unfortunate circumstance occurred, the time, as stated, was three, or had past three, A. cause of the death of those on the upper steps, must have been the nuttitude wno rushed over them downwards, and who could not return until the military stopped up all the passage above, and prevented the other crowd following them. Although the Brahmins' prediction of sickness has not been fulfilled. the deaths at the sacred place have given some sanction to their prophecy, and even this unfortunate accident, they will make a plea of still deluding the ignorant multi tude. No exact account of the dead can be given, but it must exceed four hundred persons; a vast number of these were Sunyasses. I saw four of the Gorheeah corps, only one alive, and who was jammed close to the angle of the small

At day light he began removing the dead bodies. The dead were all floated in the Ganges; one of the chief Mehunts of the Byrogees, who had come from the Decan with a number of followers, was extracted from this entwined mass of human bodies.

> Some weeks ago we published a very interesting account of a man by the name of Anderson, who had been eighteen years a prisoner in Africa. The following, from the Winchester Republican, is in further confirmation of the facts .-We must confess we should like to see the incidents of this man's life placed in some competent hands.

From the Winchester Republican. WILLIAM ANDERSON .- This exraordinary traveller arrived in Winchester on Monday last. We have had several conversations with him, all of which have fully convinced us that he has really passed through the various scenes described in the extract from the Norfolk Beacon, given in our paper of the 27th ult. The following particulars of his journey from that place will not prove uninteresting.

After passing a week at Norfolk. during wiich time he was enabled. apolis, at the convening of the made efforts, it was all the same; through the kindness of a few indi- and Norfolk ateam boats and to for $1 50 per hundred.

boat for Annapolis. Here he passed in evening in the company of several of the most respectable gentlemen of that hospitable place, who the following morning generously defrayed his passage in the stage to Washington, where he arrived in three days after leaving Norfolk .-He had previously received a letter to an honourable member of congress, through whose kind interference he became acquainted with president Monroe, and was publicy introduced on the floor of the House of Representatives. That was on Saturday, the 13th ult. Un the day following, he attended church in the capitol, and immediately after service, was introduced to Consul O'Brien, with whom he maintained a long conversation in the Arabic language, in presence of the congregation, who had generally remained to witness the interview. On Morday he was again invit d within the bar of the house, and replied with promptness to the many questions put to him by members, relative to the geography of the countries through which I e had passed. He also communicated much miscellaneous information not related by historiographers. Having become acquainted with Mr. Wattison, librarian, he was present ed with several books in the Ilin dostan language, which he read fluently. After receiving repeated kindnesses from many individuals. he left Washington on the Monday evening after his arrival. On crossing the Potomac bridge, he was agreeably surprized to find among he persons employed by that respectable company, a near relative, (Mr. Archibald O.borne.) the first he had seen strice his return to his na-.ive country. His emotions may be conceived but cannot be describ ed. The tapse of nineteen years. although it had greatly impaired his constitution, had not effected the strong lineaments of his counteance, and both instantly recogniz ed each other With Mr. Osborne he spent the night, and the following merning entered Alexandria .-Passing directly through that place, he was so fortunate as to meet with wagon travelling westward, in which he engaged a passage, and after being four days on the road, reached Chesnut Level, the wellrem, mbered home or his minority. on Saturday evening, 27th January, after an absence of nineteen years and twelve days. But time had committed sad ravages during his absence. His parents, whom he had left in parfect health, with fair promise or ong life, had descended to the grave. His only surviving near rel tive was an aunt, the wife of Mr. Aquilia Osborne, farmer. We will not attempt to describe the scene which followed. We will only say that he was mistantly recoguzed by the family circle, and that the evening which succeeded was the happiest of their lives. Mr. Anderson remained at home

two weeks, when he left it for Bal timore, whither he had been advised to repair, to commence the publication of his history. But meeting with a friend at Berryville, who proposed his first visiting this place he was induced to alter his course, and accordingly entered Winches. ter on Monday last, as we have above mentioned. He has determined on making this his future residence; and his manuscript relation, (after revision and amendation by a gentleman of erudition-one well versed in the politics of the British abinet, and the history of the East India Company wars in India)will be printed at this press, and issued during the ensuing autumn.

We have now arrived at the most pleasing part of this article. In returning thanks in the name of Mr. Anderson, for the many and various kindnesses shown him during his journey from Norfolk, we cannot sufficiently find words to express his sentiments of gratitude. Messrs. Shields, Ashbura, & Co. editors of the Norfolk Beacon, and Mr. Martin, of the Reading Room, he is under infinite obligations .-He trusts he will soon be enabled to relieve himself from those of a pecuniary nature; but po return can suitably be made for their many spontaneous acts of hospitality. To captain Ferguson, of the Baltimore of Annapolis, he would expres similar thanks. Through the kindness of the latter, he was favoured with a letter to colonel Little, of the House of Representatives, which obtained for him, at Washingron, the most friendly marks of attention from president Monroe, and many members of congress.-By Mr. Lane, of Berryville, he was received with that generous hospitality which is the characteristic of Virginians, and which he will always hold in just remembrance.

To captain Gantt, of the ship Henry Ciay, in which he was a passenger from London to Norfolk, he is indebted for many kinknesses during the voyage. He is a seaman, and can duly appreciate a seaman's

We have to return our thanks to Colonel BENTALOU, the Marshal of this Listrict, for the following interesting recapitulation of the result of the Fourth Census, in the state of Maryland. The indefati-24ble industry, and kind attention of this gentleman, have heretofore laid us under similar obligations.
