New, York, March 12. LATEST FROM ENGLAND. The session of Parliament was to have commenced the day on which the Triton sailed from Liverpool. (Jan. 21) It was to be opened by the King in person, says a London paper of the 21st, and not by commission, as some of the Radical papers had predicted. A Liverpool editor remarks that this is expected to be one of the most animated Sessions in British History. Of this we may be certain, that many grave and important subjects will engage the attention of Parliament, both regarding our foreign relations and our domestic policy. The conduct to be pursue I by this country towards, Spain, Portugal and Naples, will no doubt be brought under the consideration of Parliament, and the part which Ministers may be disposed to take between the Government of Naples and the Allied Powers will probably be explained at an early period. At home, subjects of immense importance will force themseives upon the attention of both Houses of Parliament, and the case of the Queen will form one of the first of these subjects. Ministers. we think, will scarcely venture to enter upon any new measure of prosecution towards her Majesty, but they are not, we lear, prepared to do her ample justice, by restoring her name to the Litargy, and visting her with all her rights and privileges as Queen Consort. The numerous petitions from the commercial, the agricultural and the manufacturing interests, presented to Parliament during the last Session, and many of which wall be resumed during this Session, will doubtless fix the attention of both Houses of the Legislature, but whether any relief can be afforded to the petitioners, except that which time and patience can supply, it is difficult to pronounce. The progress ve steps towards the resumption of cash payments by the Bank will, we should imagine, come also under the revision of Parliament. From the tone of the i val addresses sont from various parts of the country, it is imagined that some new measure of restriction upon the press is contemplated by Ministers and their adherents, but whether the "licentiousness" so much dwelt upon is to be corrected by a more rigid per formance of the duties of the Attorney General, or by the bestow ment of some fresh powers upon that officer, is a secret which time. mus: be left to disclose. The Liverpool papers are attack ing Mr. Canning, for the course he has pursued during the whole of the Queen's trial-and especially for retiring from the ministry and country at this time A nervous writer in Billings' Advertiser of the 23. concludes an essay addressed to him as follows:—Let these proceedings terminate as they may, the result will be to you productive of no sawill be to you productive of no satisfaction. If against her Majesty, it will be a source of endless regret, feeling as you do, that you did not in Parliament endeavour at least to avert the decision-if in her favour, you will equally regret that justice should have triumphed without your intervention."

There seems to be a spirit now brooding among the lower order in Spain, that may produce fatal consequences hereafter; they wear publicely in their hats'a green riband, with the inscription, "The Constitution or Death."

London, Jan. 19. A paper of yesterday states, that after a long discussion in the Cabinet Council, the Earl of Liverpool and Lord Castlereagh set off together to Brighton, to lay the results before his Majesty .- The matter probably alludes to the course which they desire to pursue on the meeting of the two Houses, and upon which they are to take the King's pleasure. The rumour in the political circles is, that the Speechas to be attremely moderates that a proposition is to be submitted to the Commons to fix the Queen's establishment at 50,000/ a year, the sum offered here at St. Omer's, (and which, we trust, is to be paid by the Civil List, not fixe. on the Consordated Fund,) that Ministers are to stand or fall on the question of the restoration of her Majesty's name to the Liturgy .-Upon this point they calculate (bu. with the hopes of gaining the Saints,) on a majority of seventy, which, in the House of Commans, it Dissolution of Partnership. less than a majority of nine in the House of Lorda

Letters from Madrid, of the bth inst. confirm the Intelligence of the invitation from the Allied Soverreigns to King Ferdinand to proceed to Laybach. The Permanent Deputation of the Cortes assembled specially very late in the evening of the 4th. The general opinion was, the Monarch quitting the Kingdom.

It is said that the Sovereigns themselves will march at the head of their troops, should there be a necessity for employing force to re establish he Legitimate Authority at Naple.

Sickness is a sort of old age; it eaches us diffidence in our earthly state, and inspires us with thoughts of a future, better than a thousand discourses of philosophers and divines. It gives so warning a concussion to these props of our vanity, our strength and youth, that we think of fort fying ourselves within, when there is so little dependence upon our outworks.
