It was understood that the Spanish Commissioner brought with him $10 000 to meet the demands against the Spanish government in EastyFlorida, but it was supposed that sum would be by no means adequate to the purpose.

The Nonsuch remained off the port until Saturday last, when, after, saluting the town, (which was promptly returned) she proceeded for New York.

On Saturday morning the Gover-nor of St. Augustine issued a Proclamation, informing the inhabitants of the event which was about to take place, and exhorting them to be peaceable and friendly towards the new order of things.

* * Savannah, June 11. We have received, through the politeness of a gentleman at Saint Augustine, the following letter. To those who are anxiously waiting for the consummation of the transfer of the Florida possessions, the contents will prove interesting; being the most recent intelligence received from that quarter:

Previous to the charge, or sentence of the judge, Mr. Dow read, (by permission of the court,) a very intereating document, explanatory of bis motives, and justificatory of the objects he had in view, by the publication of the book, from which the libellous matter was extracted. The agntence of Mr. Dow, was very nilds being only an imprisonment of 24 hours, and a fine of one dollar with the costs. We are informed that the officers of the court have given up the costs and that the governor has remitted the imprison-

A CURIOSITY.

Among the additions just made to Dr. Mitchell's collection, is a letter from the Chippewa a tribe of Indians to the Sioux, with the answer of the Sioux to the Chippewas, done during the summer of 1820. Both are executed with the point of a knife, or some other hard body, upon the bark of the birch tree. They are examples of picture writing, bordering upon the symbolic or hyeroglyphic, and show the manner in which the aborigines of North America communicate their ideas at the present day.

The (N. Y.) Ballstown Farmer of June 6th. says-"I noticed the week before last, the arrival of Commodore Barron and the feeble state of his health. It is doubtful, if he is getting any better of his complaint."

POLICE OF PARIS.

A curjous fact which occurred during the reign of Buonaparte, illustrating the state of perfection to which the system of espionage was carried at that time.

A party sat down to dinner at a public dinner table, when a gentleman sticking his fork into a fowl, began to dissect it, and as he cut off the head, he said with a laugh, "Here goes the head of the Emperor." No observation was made, and they proceeded with their dinner; but in the course of it the waiter came, and tapping the gentleman on the shoulder, told him he was wanted in the hall. On entering the hall, he was accosted by a gentleman who saked him if he was not the gentleman, who at dinner, said, 'Here goes the head of the Emperori" He replied he wis, "but what of that?" "You must come," hand in his pocket presented it full of money to the officer, and was turning away-"Stay" said the offi-

MERMAID.

It was mentioned in all the journals, some time ago, that a Mermalda caught in the Indian wear, had been brought to this country. The creatof the species which has given vise to so many fabolous stories, is now in the Museum Surgeon's Hall, Lous don. It is about 8 feet in length, and bears a strong resemblance to the common seal. There is also a young female of the same species in the same place. They belong to the class of Mammalia; the fins terminate, internally, in a structure like the human hand; the breasts of the famile are very prominent, and in suckling as young not only their appearance, but their situation on the body must, cause that extraors dinary phenomenon which leads to the popular belief. In other respects the face is far from Tooking like the human face; and the long hair is as entirely wanting as the glass and comb.
