A Farm for Sale,

The subscriber will sell the Farm on which he resides, containing three hundred and twenty-nine and a half acres of land. The whole is in a high state of improvement, the soil is well suited to Tobacco, Wheat, Corn, &c and every part of it has been improved with Clover-Plaister acts powerfully on it, and has been used liberally. The buildings of every description are such as to accommodate a family with comfort and convenience. D. MURRAY, West River.

A Valuable Tract of Land For Sale,

Four hundred acres of land is offer ed for tale adjoining to Friendship in Anne Arundel county, the greater part of this tract, is covered with wood of various kinds: such as Locust, Oak, Hickory, Poplar, Cedar, and a large quantity of very fine Chesnut. The soil is very fine, adapted to Plaster and Clover, and equal to any in that part of the country for the cultivation of Tobacco, Corn and small Grain. This land is about a mile from from Chew's Cove, on Herring Bay, which gives it many alvantages. A packet runs regu once a week to Baltimore, from the Coje, which affords great facility in sending the produce of the soil to the Baltimore Market. Friendship and the neighbouring country being bare of wood, principally depend for their supply from this tract of land.— It would be divided into smaller parcels to suit purchasers, and the terms liberal. The improvements now erected on this land will cure 20 hogsheads of tobacco with the necessary out houses for Overseer and Servants -This land abounds with fine springs of water, and in a good neighbourhood. For further particulars, apply to NI-CHOLAS BREWER, Esq. of Annapolis, or of William T. GRAHAM, at Chew's Cove. Herring Bay.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED BY

JONAS GREEN,

CHURCH-STREET, ANNAPOLIS. Price-Three Dollars per Annum.

From the London New Monthly Ma gazine for June 1821. THE HARP-A TALE.

From the German of the Poet Korner: addressed to such as believe in the agency of spirits. The secretary Sellner had begur to taste the first spring of happiness with his youthful bride. Their union was not founded on that vague and evanescent passion, which often lives and dies almost in the same moment-sympathy and esteem formed the basis of their attachment. Time and experience, without diminishing the ardour, had confirm. ed the permanence of their mutual sentiments. It was long since they had discovered that they were form ed for each other, but want of fortune imposed the necessity of a tedious probation; till Selfner, by obtaining the patent for a place, found pimself in possession of an easy cometence, and, on the following Sunlay, brought home in triumph his ong betrothed bride. A succession feeremonious visits for some weeks ngrossed many of those hours that he young couple would have devo ted to each other. But no sooner was this onerous duty fulfilled, than they eagerly escaped from the intrusion of society to their delicious solitude; and the fine summer eve nings were but too short for plans and anticipations of future felicity. Sellner's flute and Josephine's harp filled up the intervals of conversaion, and with their harmonious uni son seemed to sound the prelude to many succeeding years of bliss and concord. One evening, when Joephine had played longer than usu , she suddenly complained of head che: she had in reality risen with his symptom of indisposition, but concealed it from her anxious husand; naturally susceptible of nerrous complaints, the attention which she had lent to music, and the motions it excited in her delicate rame, had increased a slight indisesition to fever, and she was now vidently ill. A physician was caled in, who so little anticipated daner that he promised a cure on the norrow. But, after a night spent a delirium, her disorder was proounced a nervous fever, which comletely haffled the efforts of medical tkill, and, on the ninth day, was confessedly mortal. Josephine herself was perfectly sensible of her anproaching dissolution, and, with mild esignation, submitted to her fate. Addressing her husband, for the ast time she exclaimed-"My dear Edward, Heaven can effable sa these it is with unutterable reret, that I depart from this fair world, where I have found with hee a state of supreme felicity; ut, though I am no longer permitted to live in those arms, doubt not hy faithful Josephine shall still over round thee, and as a guardian ngel, encircle thee 'till we meet gain." She had scarcely uttered ese words when she sunk on her llow, and soon fell into a slumber, om which she awoke no more; nd when the clock was striking ine, it was observed that she had reathed her last. The agonies of ellner may be more easily conceive than described; during some days appeared doubtful whether he ould survive; and, when after a pulinement of some weeks, he was length permitted to leave his amber, the powers of youth seemparalyzed, his limbs were enebled, his frame emaciated, and sunk into a state of stupor, from hich he was only to be roused by e bitterness of grief. To this ignant anguish succeeded a fixed clancholy; deep sorrow conseited the memory of his beloved: apartment remained precisely in state in which it had been left vious to her death;-on the ork table lay her unfinished task; e harp stood in its accustomed ok, untouched and silent; every image to the sanctuary of his es and, taking his flute, breathed th, in deep plaintive tones, his vent aspirations for the cherishshade.
