

American Linen.
We had yesterday the opportunity of seeing a piece of linen, containing twelve yards, spun by Mrs. Magill of Middletown, Conn. wove at Poughkeepsie, in this state, and bleached at Paterson, New Jersey, of very superior fineness, firmness, and beauty. It was made of flax purchased promiscuously from stores as brought to market, which had ripened the seed before it was gathered, and was rotted and dressed in the ordinary manner practised in the country. This linen is fine and handsome enough for any person's use, and will bear a comparison with the handsomest specimens that are imported.—N. Y. Advertiser.

From a late English paper.
The stamps on newspapers in London amount weekly to 300,000. In the country to 650,000—nearly a million weekly, and 50 millions per annum.

At the Sheep Fair in Sussex, England, on the 2d ult. 10,000 were penned. Ewes sold for 20 to 25s. Lambs 12 to 15s.

The fashion of short sleeves for the ladies has become universal in Paris. Their arms are bare to the tip of the shoulder. The physicians exclaim against it; but,

Fashion in every thing bears sovereign sway. And wigs and periwigs have both their day.

A CURIOUS COURTSHIP.
A young gentleman and lady happened one Sabbath, to sit in the same Pew. During the course of sermon the youth read something in the eyes of the fair, which made a much deeper impression on his soul, than the pious lecture of the parson as for is seldom at a loss for an expedient, he presented her with the following verse in the Second Epistle of John: And now I beseech the lady, not as though I wrote a new commandment unto thee, but that which we had from the beginning, that we love one another.—After perusal, she in answer, opened at the first chapter of Ruth, and the sixteenth verse.—And Ruth said, entreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee, for whither thou goest, I will go, and where thou lodgest, I will lodge: thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God. This was the treaty proposed, which in a little time was fully ratified by the parson.

A Valuable Mill.
At 12 o'clock on the 12th day of December next, if fair, if not, the next fair day thereafter, I will offer at public auction, on the premises, my

GRIST MILL,
with a suitable quantity of adjoining land, situated on the north side of Severn River, about three miles from Annapolis, and at the head of a navigable creek. She has been very lately put in complete repair, has one pair of Burr, and one pair of Cologne stones, new and good of their kind, and is in all other respects well fitted up for manufacturing wheat and corn. There being no other mill within nine miles of the above on the north side of Severn, she has constant employment, and is an object of speculation. The terms will be liberal, and made known on the day of sale. Persons inclined to make a private purchase, are requested to apply in the interval, to Nicholas, or Henry Brice, in Baltimore.

POLITICAL.

From the Federal Republican.

To the People of the United States.

In the last preceding number of these essays, you were made acquainted with some extraordinary facts, relative to the loss of the public property, by means of its having been unauthoritously and illegally loaned to individuals by the Executive officers who had it in charge, and who were bound, by every principle of honour and good faith, to take care of and preserve it. These improper and unauthorized proceedings have, as I contend, been virtually sanctioned and approved by the chief magistrate of the country. The knowledge of the fact was, long ago, known to him; and in some instances, it is believed, the act was done with his immediate approbation and concurrence. But, at any rate, he has since given his sanction to the whole, for every officer (with the exception of one poor subaltern, who undertook to do what his superiors had done before) who has been engaged in this unlawful business, still retains the confidence of the President and enjoys the emoluments of his office. Not one of them has been called to account for the illegal deed. Does not this conclusively show, that the President has given his sanction to these unlawful acts? Nay more—may it not be fairly inferred that, as the transactions took place at Washington, he was privy to, and directed them to be done? Although a very considerable pecuniary loss to the country will accrue from these breaches of the public trust, yet that is not of so much consequence to you, as the effects which will inevitably be produced by your sanctioning acts and principles of this kind. If one description of public property can be loaned, or given away by those entrusted with it, a similar disposition may be made of any other description; such, for example, as the public vessels, and even the public money. Indeed, the "advance," as it is called, to Daniel Bessard, of $10,000, as stated in my last number, was, to all intents and purposes, a loan of the public money, without the shadow of right or of law to justify it. I defy the ingenuity of man to show, that there was either right or law to do this, or that Congress ever made any appropriation for such an object. And yet the thing has been done, and the fact is upon record,—notwithstanding the constitution declares that "no money shall be drawn from the treasury except on appropriations made by law." But it does most unfortunately happen, that in this "era of good feeling," (as Mr. Monroe expresses it) neither the constitution nor the laws appear to be much regarded. The plain, honest, independent spirit of this people seems to have entirely left them.—Instead of adhering steadily & steadfastly to principles, such as brought them into national existence,—they are fawning and clinging to men because these men are in power, dispense favours, and distribute "the loaves and fishes!" Thus, instead of guarding our rights by keeping a vigilant watch over those whom we have entrusted with the national concerns, and punishing by our displeasure and disapprobation (if nothing more) every wilful aberration from duty or violation of trust,—we suffer ourselves to be lulled to sleep, and repose while "the wolves in sheep's clothing" are secretly laying their plans for our destruction. The thirst for speculation and for office, seems to me to have wrought an almost entire change in the manners, habits and principles of the American people. The disposition increases, it would seem, with the extent and increase of the Executive patronage; and this will always, in my opinion, be the case, so long as we continue the present irresponsible practice of revenue; not by taxes, fairly, openly and honestly laid, but by arch cunning, trick and lardemain. This business has been so dexterously managed by the
