From the Federal Gazette To the Honourable the Judges of the City

Court of Baltimore
The Grand Jury for the body of the city of Baltimore, respectfully represent to the Court, that in order to secure to society the advantages and benefits intended to rious responsibility and import, devolves upon those to whom is committed the s lection and appointment of persons invested with the authority of administering them. The law, the great palladium and saleguard of the life, liberty, rights and property of all, should never be perverted or degraded in its administration, by the ignorance or incapacity, or by the intemperance, corruption, or oppression of those who may be appointed its ministers. The Grand Juva of the property appeals of the property appeals the forcement of the property appeals that forcement is the property appeals that the property appeals the property of the property appeals the property of the property ry apprehend, that for some years past, and without any reference to political or party distinction, the appointments of acting Justices of the Peace, with some exceptions, have been made with too little regard to the wholesome administration of justice in this

That a number of them are, and have heen wholly ignorant of the important du-ties of their office, and therefore unable to fice to which they have been appointed, while others have made a trade of their offices, nave been subservient to the dictation, controll, and influence of constables, with whom they are leagued, in order to procure whom they are leagued, in order to procure the sale of warrants, and other writs, to in-crease the amount of their fees.

The leading motive of this report to your honours is, that an efficient effort may be made to bring the subject to the knowledge of the Executive of the State, from whom the Justices derive their appointment, in or der that a suitable remedy may be promptly applied; for it is in vain-nay, it is a waste of the people's money and of time, that Courts are organized and Grand Juries are convened, if the great source of evil originates in the conduct of the officers of justice themselves, which appears to have on curred in many cases submitted to the con sideration of this Grand Jury.

The Jury would here respectfully recom mend as the most safe and expeditious mode of removing the evil complained of, that an application be made to the Legislature, in which, it is lipped, all good citizens would join, to procure a Law similar to the one pro-posed at the two last sessions, limiting the number of acting Justices of the Peace, who are now by far too numerous, and obtain the office as a mere object of trade, that these Justices be appointed for each ward of the eity; and that other provisions be enacted so as to render the justices of the Peace altogether independent of the constables

The Jury take pleasure in hearing testimony, that there are a number of highly respectable and valuable citizens in the com speciation and valuation citizens in the com-mission of the peace in this city, whose con-duct and example, they hope, will be duly appreciated; and they beg leave to close their report with this single observation, that when wholesome laws are impartially and wisely administered, they afford equal pro-tection to the poor and to the rich; but when badly or corruptly administered, the wealthy are alone enabled to protect themselves, while the poorer class of the community alone become the sufferers, which should alone become the sutterers, which should never be permitted to occur in a government so happily organized as that which is the boast and blessing of our favoured land November Term, 1821.

WM 10 DONALD, Foreman, in began of the Grand Jury.
BARTINGAR Cary Churt.

Resolved, That the committee on roads and canals be instructed to enquire whether any, and if any, what measures should be adopted by the government of the U.S. for the propose of alding the "Chesapeake and Delawere Canal Company," and enabling them to accomplish the purpose for which they were incorporated.

THE UNICORN.

THE UNICORN.

Mr Campbell, (the Missionary,) has kindly favoured us with the following description of the head of a very singular animal, which he just brought from the interior of Africa; We also have had an opportunity of seeing it, and fully agree with Mr Campbell, that the animal itself must have answered the description of the Reem or Unicorn, which is frequently mentioned in Scripture.

"The animal," says Mr. Campbell, wakilled by my Hottentots, in the Mashow country, near the city of Mashow, about 200 miles N. E. of New Zattakon, to the westward of Delagoa Buy. My Hottentots never having seen or heard of an animal with one horn, of so great a length, cut off its head, and brought it bleeding to me upon the heat of an or. the back of an ox From its great we the back of an ox From its great weight, and being about 1200 miles from the Cape of Good Hope, I was obliged to reduce it by cutting off the under jaw -The Hottentots cut up the rest of the anim if for food, which with the help of the natives, they brought on the backs of oxen to Mashow.

The horn, which is nearly black, is exactly 3 feet long, projecting from the forehead about 9 or 10 inches above the nose; from the nose to the ears measured three feet There is a small horney projection of about eight inches, immediately behind the great whatever is penetrated by the great horn There is neither hair, nor wood on the skin, which is the colour of brown snuff.

"The animal was well known to the na-lives; it is a species of that Rhinoceros; But if inay judge of its hulk by the size of its head, it must have been much larger than any of the seven Rhimoceroses which my paitr shot, one of which measured eleven feet from the top of the nose to the root of

"The skull and houn excited great curiosity at the Cape, most we e of opinion that it was all we should have for the Unicorn "An animal the size of a horse, which the an animal the size of a horse, which the fancied Unicorn is supposed to be, would not answer the description of the Unicorn given by Job, chap xxxix, verse tes equation, this animal exactly answers to it Philosophical Magazine.

Whale Fishery .- Congreve Rockets. We had the pleasure last Wednesday of witnessing some experiments with Congreve Rockets, made at our garrison by Lieut Colonboun, the gentleman who ac-companied Mr Scoresby, in the ship Fame, to the Green and Fishery, last summer A very respectable company of gentlemen, in-terested in the oil trade, was present, with many of the masters of the vessels which have returned from the Arctic seas, all of whom, we understand, were highly gratified, and most of them persuaded that the rockets are likely to be of great service in the capture of wholes. The rocket, as made for this purpose, is a tremendous wearon, and at the distance of from thirty to forty yards may be aimed with unerring ceita n-ty at any part of the body of the fish, into which it enters with irresistible force, and perforates several feet, the fuse all the while burning, and, at the interval of a few o-ments, a mine contained within it exploding with a violence which car not avoid causing death. Of the force of this explosion an idea may be formed when we inform our readers that a small one last Widnesday, at the distance of forty yards, after penetrating a very stiff bank of clay, several feet, shook the whole to the astonishment of every be holder. What the effect must be in the hody of a fish may be easily conceived; it is impossible the animal can live Its whole interior must be shaken to pieces; though, the the bank, the body externally appears untouched. The manner in which the socket is discharged is by passing it through an iron tube, a considerable length of it at both ends, and furnished with a species of gun lock, fixed so that the detonating pow der now used instead of priming, communicates with the fuse of the engine. This tube is fixed on a test, and is fired like a gun, the fired taking as steady an aim on solid ground any sportsiman can do. On being fired, he rocket leisurely passes through one to the mark, with a continually increasing velocity, and one in-stance was observed at Greenland where it ent entirely through the fish, and exploded on the other side. There is no difficulty whatever in using this instrument; two gentlemen, on Wednesday, fired it with as con rect an aim as the rocketeer himsell; and what deserves particular mention is, that it passes through the water without impediment or injury to the explosion. Some of the fish at Greenland were struck several feet under water. The only difficulty with us on this subject was the buoyancy of the fish after death; but when it is considered what an explosion of gas must take place in the inside of the animal, added to the fact the objection will be quite removed in the mind of everythinking man | Hull Adv'r
