This morning we observed in the Lum-er yard corner of Ninth and George-st. an apparatus resembling a pair of immense expanded wings. On this passage, Mr. Scott, an eminent commentator, offers the foll-swing remarkable exposition:

"All the attempts of commentators to aprly this to Antiochus have proved froitless; for though he went forth with great indignation to subdue some revolted provinces in the east and in the north; yet he never returned into Judea, which land alone can be intended by "the glorious holy mountain." It is more probably concluded, that this part of the prophecy relates to events yet tuture. Some conjecture that the Persians, who border on the Turkish dominions to the East, and the Russians who lie North of them, will unite against the Turks; that in the land of Canaan the latter will fix their camp with great ostentation, as well as wage the war with great fury; and that there they shall receive such a defeat, as shall end in the utter subversior
