Passed December Session, 1821.

A Supplement to the act entitled an act incorporating into one, the severatacts relating to Constables fees.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That is all cases where a fieri facias or execution is levied or served by any constable for debt, that such constable shall be entitled to receive for the same, seven anda half per cent. for his poundage fee on the first twenty-six dollars and sixty six and two third cents, and three per cent. for his poundage fee on the residue, to be tharged and recovered in the same manner as the sheriffs of this state are authorised to charge and recover similar fees; and that in all cases where a constable levies a distress for rent, the tenant shall be liable to the landlord for costs, any thing contained in the original act to which this is a supplement, or any other law, to the contrary notwithstanding .-Provided, That if the defendant shall supercede the judgment on which the said fieri facult or execution shall have issued within four days after the same shall be levied or served, that then the constable shall be entitled to receive only one third of said poundage fees.

Decoration of grave yards. There is nothing more solemn than a walk in the church-yard, and did the people of Edinburg, who manage the public affairs of their fellow citizens, think it expedient, meditations among the tombs might not be unpleasing. But as things are at present arranged, no one who has not learnt to look upon the most repulsive objects in nature with indifference, will, as a matter of choice, visit any of the Ecinburg repositories of the dead. A late traveller, Mr. Williams, from an inspection of the cemeteries of other countries, has suggested the propriety of some improvements in our own; and I am happy to learn that several individuals who think shrubs and flowers are fully as ornamental as rank grass nettles and hemlock, have dressed up the little spot intended for their last repose, in a very becoming manner. would suggest to those who have the power of carrying improvements into execution, that all the church yards should be carefully levelled, and divided by walks into long dormitories of six or eight feet in breadth, edged with box or other ornamental border; and that the friends of the deceased should, for so many years, have the liberty of planting shrubs or flowers over the little spots where their friends were interred, as they should judge proper. Were this plan carried into execution, instead of hillocks, formed of fiuman bones and fragments of coffins,our cemeteries would present the appearance of a large garden, in which the contemplative might walk and acruse the lettered monuments with some degree of comfort .- A langel bush might then mark to the eye of the passenger the last resting place of a celebrated character; a none so-pretty might betoken that the inhabitant below was not deficient in personal charms; a noli me tangere, indicate that the little spot was sacred to a maiden lady; and a lilly or nareissus tell, more eloquently than a thousand words, that innocence and virtue reposed there in peace. Forget me-not, might mark the graves of the most intimate and dear friends the primrose or the mow-drep, the earthly cradles of infancy and childhood-while a red and white rose might pleasingly call to the memory of children, the virtues, or the tender ties which had united the hearts and the hands of their parents.

Farther: might not the regal corolla of an iris point out the last bed of a noble personage; a cluster of tulips perpetuate the remembrance of the scarlet and ermine of official characters-and the ivn mark to the mind the accommodating manners of a courtier? Might not a cabbage or a cauliflower raise an appropriate urn over the grave of an alderman—a but of holly or furze, betoken the urapproachable dormitory of a lawyer-and a plant of hellebore or rheubarb, point out the remains of a professor of the healing art? The distinctions of nations might even be perpetuated after death, and those who atttached value to such distinctions, could ensily be gratified. The shamrocke might flourish over the grave of an Arishman, the thistle rear its head ever the grave of Scotland and the leck raise its, green pillar over the elecping place of a Welchman. The dreams of the poets would thus be converted into reality; and the fabled transformation of mortals into flowers, be made evident to the most unlettered imsgination. The roses and lillies of beauty, prematurely snatched away, would, in this manner, bloom afresh in the lillies and reses which decorated the grave's of the fairs and the reputation of virtues and talents, expand in perennial luxuriante over the silent beds of those who were distinguished for wisdom or beneficence .- Edinburgh Magazine.

Mr. Green.

An apology is due to the public for at-tempting to forestall public opinion on a matter which will in all probability become the subject of judicial investigation; but inasmuch as Mr. John N. Stewert has thought proper to exhibit, what he is pleased to call a complete defence to the charges alleged against him before the elders of the Church of which he is a member, I deem it my duty in justice to myself, not to suffer any improper impression to be made on the public mind by postponing my proof until the time of trial, as it might be the means of creating suspicion, that I had no evidence whatever. You will therefore be means of creating suspicion, that I had no evidence whatever. You will therefore be pleased to publish the enclosed certificates and affidavits, and you may be assured, that I shall take no further notice of this business except before a court and jury.
