OF DIVINE PROVIDENCE. He is not a man of sense who denies either the Being of the Providence of God; there is no wisdom in Atheism; it is "the fool" who "says in his heart there is no God" And surely to imagine, that he who made the world, should take no care of the world, which he hath made, but, as it were, torgetting that he had made it, should deliver it up, to chance and fate, is an opinion equally foolish with the other. There are some who well now, that it there be a God, and if he observes and take cognizance of human affairs, he must one day punish them for their villanies and their blasphemies.—
Therefore they endeavour to persuade them the providence has been been also been approximately as the second of the providence has been approximately as the second of the providence has been approximately as the second of the providence has been approximately as the providence has been approximately ap there is neither a Providence nor God. Through the corruption of their hearts, and being given over to a reprobate mind, they are so unfoitunate as to succeed in their endeavours; and by such as they can reduce to a like degree of desperate wickedness, they may be accounted wise men. But he who dwelleth in Heaven, knoweth their devices, and laughs them to scorn He knows a day is coming when his vengeance will cause them to feel the truths which no evidence would induce them to believe The greatest and best persons of all ages have believed in "a God who governed the world," and wherein can the wisdom of man consist but in observing and studying the works, and dispensations of that God, from the beginning to this day. How senseless is the man, who passes hild without attending to them. By his mercies and his judgments doth our God con-tinually speek to us, and signify his mind, and show forth the glories of his kingdom, for which we are ever more bound to praise him. "The works of the Lord are great, sought out, studied and traced, by all them that have pleasure therein."

Diligently to mark, and carefully to treasure up in our minds, the special Providences of the Almighty is the way to preserve and nourish our faith and hope in him the trace. bim; it furnishes the grounds of our thank-fulness and praise; it stirs up our finest lecl-ings and very best affections towards him, holy joy, humble reverence and hearty love; supports us under all our sufferings, and affords us comfort in all our sorrows. When adversity presses hard upon a man, when he is atripped of his possessions, and threat-each with torture; when enemies persecute, and friends betray or forsake, or when pain and sickness harrass him upon his bed, and sleep departs from his eye lids—gracious Lord, what shall become of him, if at such an hour, a writer shall inform him, there is no help for him in his God; that there is not help for him in his God; is no help for him in his God; that there is neither Redeemer nor Creator; that the universe is the sport of contending demons; a scane of rayage and desolation, and, instead of being "full of the loving kindness of the Lord" is peopled only with fiends and Turies? Before guilt of this infernal die, that of cheating & this ving, of perjury, robbery and murder, melts away and vanishes into nothing.
