The University of Maryland.

ST. JOHN'S

AND WASHINGTON COLLEGES.

The reputation and welfare of Maryland have been deeply affected by the fall of this University; and although it is the common duty of every man in the state to endeavour to re construct it, there seems to be something more than an ordinary obligation upon those, who claim to be the Alumni of the Institution, to co-operate, and to make one vigorous, united effort, to resuscitate and to restore it to its ancient usefulness and fame, that they may be the special means of transmitting to their descendants, and to posterity generally, the benefits of an Institution which the wisdom of their forefathers had created for them.

It is therefore respectfully suggested to the Alumni of this University, wherever residing, to hold a meeting on the first Friday in December next, at St. John's College in Annapolis, (by permission of the Visitors and Governors,) to take into consideration the practicability of reviving this University, the plan, and the ways and means necessary to effect it.

As the Chancellor of the state is upon the spot, and is always one of the Visitors & Governors of the University, it is also suggested that he be invited to attend as President of the Convention.

Should this proposition meet with the approbation of those to whom it is directed, it may be useful to insert short paragraphs in the several newspapers of the state, and of the District of Columbia, favourable to the plan, and urging a general attendance at the Convention—as it is not only desirable that our once distinguished and venerable "Alma Mater," should be re-animated and restored by her Sons, but particularly so that they should form a Brotherhood of every surviving member of the family to undertake the noble work, to which gratitude and duty equally invite.

P. S. The Editors of newspapers throughout the state, and in the District of Columbia, are requested to give this publication a few insertions in their respective Journals.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SACRED MELODY. There is a thought can lift the soul Above the dull cold sphere that bounds it, Star, that sheds its mild control, Brightest when grief's dark clouds surround it;

And pours a soft, pervading ray, Life's ills may never chase away! When earthly joys have left the breast, And e'en the last fond hope is cherish'd Of mortal bliss—too like the rest— Beneath woe's withering touch hath perish'd—

With fadeless lustre streams that light, A halo on the brow of night! And bitter were our sojourn here, In this wild wilderness of sorrow, Did not that rainbow beam appear, The Herald of a brighter morn'g, A merciful beacon from on high, To guide us to Eternity!

THE MOSS ROSE.—From the German. Beneath the Rose tree sleeping lay, That Spirit to whose charge is given To bathe young buds with dews from Heaven, Awaking from his light repose, The Angel whispered to the Rose, O! fondest object of my care, Still fairest found where all are fair, For the sweet shade thou'st given to me, Ask what thou wilt, 'tis granted thee, When said the Rose, with deepen'd glow, 'O me another grace bestow.' 'The spirit passed in silent thought, His gaze was there: the flower had not, But but a moment—'er the Rose, Veil of Moss the Angel throws, And rob'd in nature's simplest weed, Could there a flower that Rose exceed?

From the London Literary Gazette. LOVERS, WHEN! When should lovers breathe their vows? When should ladies hear them? When the dew is on the boughs, When none else are near them; When the moon shines cold and pale, When the birds are sleeping, When no voice is on the gale; When the rose is weeping; When the stars are bright on high, Like hope in young love's dreaming, And glancing round the light clouds fly Like soft tears to shade their beaming, The fairest smiles are those that live On the brow by starlight wreathing; When their lips the richest incense give When the sighs are at midnight breathing.

Oh, softest is the cheek's love-ray When seen by moonlight's hours: When robes seek the day, But blushes are night flowers, When the moon and stars are bright, When the dew drops glisters, Then their vows should lovers plight, Then should ladies listen.

From "The Law of Java," by Colman. THE WIT OF MAN. Low in the vale, where a streamlet ran, As under a tree reclin'd, A pilgrim measured the wit of man, By thinking on woman kind. Oh! a woman his killing eyes, he cried, And a soft bewitching smile, With a thousand, thousand charms beside Our senses to beguile!

Mark every glance that confirms her sway; Note, too, each dimple's power; Look on her lips how the young loves play Like bees on the honied flower! Gaze on her bosom of sweets and take This truth for a constant rule, Enchanting woman can always make The wisest of men a fool.

From the Balt. Chronicle. MASONIC ODE. Empires and kings have passed away, Into oblivion's mine; And towering domes have felt decay, Since auld lang syne.

St. Masonry, the glorious art, With level, square, and line, In his mystic lights' charm, Has e'er, his mystic lights' charm, Since auld lang syne.

Should the orient light arise, With wisdom's ray divine; 'Twas e'er '85, the Hebrew cries, In auld lang syne.

Should the accidental chair, Proclaim the day's decline—Hiram of Tyro was seated there In auld lang syne.

The South proclaims refreshment nigh, High twelv's the time to dine; And beauty deck'd the southern sky, In auld lang syne.

'Tis Masonry, whose temple here, Was built by hands divine; Shall e'er shine as bright and clear, As in auld lang syne.

Let brethren for the worthy tuaze, Then us a wreath entwine, The three great heads of Masonry, In auld lang syne.

Remembering still that worthy one, With gratitude diffuse; The Tyrian youth, the widow's son, Of auld lang syne.

AVENUE OF LIGHT. Providence melt the continuity of the illuminated; but confirm the obduracy of the blind; the same process that hardens clay, hardens gold; and the strong manifestation of Divinity power, Pharaoh found his punishment, but Da-id his pardon.
