MISOBLLANEOUS

[From the Lexington Advertiser.] ANTICIPATION.

The short lived comforts nature gives, Seems made but to deceive us, For, though they yield a transient joy We're wretched when they leave us. Thus swittly Joy and wos succeed,

With true and certain measure, What gives us sorrow when itis past, n prospect was our pleasure: The present scarce a thought employs,
Or with one good supplies us.
Tis perfect happiness we seek,
This always she denies us.

With her we never are content, But future pleasure viewing;
And the 'tis nothing when possess'd, Tis something whilst pursuing. The inture every wish employs, Keeps hope in constant action; Of this deprived, we soon should be Jahappy to distraction.

We think the future stor'd with bliss, and all that can delight us; And view her stand with open arms, To welcome and invite us. In her we trust on her we live.
Nor let the present bless us;
But when the future does arrive
Twill equally distress us.

HAPPINESS.
Where now are all thy golden visions fled:
Osay enchantress, whither are they flown? Osayenenantress, withter areas, Soaring aloft, by fancy's finger led,
I sat exulting on her lairy throne:
Thro' airy arches, built with beams of light,
Theirodorous spoil Arabian breezes bring;

oy with his lamp of exquisite delight,
And keen eyed repture claps the eagle wings ... Ah! dear delusion, bright celestial shade, Too pure to grace this sublunary sphere, All garthly bliss is born to bloom and fade, Wakes with a smile and closes with a tear.

Too soon alas! the transient scene is o'er,
The meteor shines, then stuks, and is no more.

SURIPTURAL.

It is curious to observe the literal meaning of the first names which were bestowed apon mankind—omitting Cain and his

vicked posterity:
Adam, man-Seth, placed-Enoch, mis-Adam, man—seth, praced—choch, ins-erable—Rhan, posession—Mahalaleel, the praised God—Jared, descending—Enoch, caching—Methusalah, his death produces— Noah, rest. On connecting the words they troad, rest. On connecting the words they teach this great truth:—Man being placed in a miserable condition, the blessed God descending shall teach that his death produces to debased man rest.

THE VISION OF MIRZA. As I was airing myself on the tops of the mounts us, I fell into a profound contemplation on the ramity of human life: While I was thus musing, I cast my eyes towards he summit of a rock that was not lar from e, where I discovered one in the habit of a shepherd, with a little musical instrument in his hand. As I looked upon him he aplied it to his lips, and began to play upon t. The sound of it was exceeding sweet, they put me in mind of those heavenly airs' that are glayed to the departed sonls of good men upon their first arrival in Paradise. My heart meited away in secret rap-

When he had raised my thoughts . those transporting airs which he played, to taste the pleasures of his conversation, as I looked upon him like one astonished, he beckoned to me, and by the waving of his hand directed me to approach the place where he sat. I drew hear with that re where he sat. If drew hear with that reverence which is due to e superior patture; and as my heart was entirely auddued by the captivating strains I had heard, I fell down at his fest and west. The gentius amiled upon me, and then led me to the highest pinnacle of the rock and placing me on the top of it, what the eyes eastward," said he, wand tell me what thouseest", "if see," said Iz, sa huge, valley, and a prodigious tide of water tipling through it?" of he ralley that thou seest, "said he, is the value of marry; and the tide of water that thousess, is the value of marry; and the great of water that thou seest, is part of the great tide of eternity."
