ARRIVAL OF THE CONGRESS

The U. S. frigate Congress, Capt. Biddle, anchored in Hampton Roads on Wednesday morning, after a cruise of 5 months in the West India Seas, during which she has touched at St. Bartholomews, St. Thomas, Porto Rico, Laguira, Curracos, Partan Prince of Havan and Inter St. Season

The Congress has neither heard nor seen any thing or Com. Porter's squadron, and has not fallen in with any piratical vessels. She brings no political or other, news, and no papers—nor do we learn any thing verbally, worth communicating.

She did not go into Havana, therefore could bring usnothing from that place.

We undessend that the Congress will shortly sail or suenos Ayres, to carry out Caesar A. Romey, Esq. Minister of the Unitation, to Rio Janeiro.

Marpland Gazette.

Innapolis, Thursday, April 17, 1823

Notwithstanding the efforts made by our programment to efford protection to our com-inecte in the West-Indian seas, scarcely a vessel atrives from them which does not bring an account of some daring piracy or applicing murder. The accounts of this kind which have reached the United States kind which have reached the United States within a few weeks past, would nearly filly a weekly paper. Whether the system of plinder and morder carried on by the pirates, receives a direct encoding ment from the iconstituted authorities at Cuba, it impossible to say; but that M's conjuved at by them; the impunity which the blood-thirsty maradders enjoy on shore, after having committed the most cruel and diabolical crimes, goes far to establish. While this is the case, the whole American navy, was it ordered to those seas, would not be able completely to suppress the evil. It appears that the most of the the evil. It appears that the most of the outrages which have come to our know ledge, have been perpetrated within a few rods of the shore, whither their authors sought refuge, so soon as their horrid pur-poses were accomplished. Without authority to pursue them on shore, and without a land force to enable them to do so, were our officers disposed to take upon them selves the right, what can be expected from the little squadron which has been collected in those seas? He who will take the trouble to give the subject a moment's reflection, will admit that little very little can be expected from it.
