To the Voters OF THE CITY OF ANNAPOLIS

Fellow Citizens, The enquiry has been lately frequently made, whether it was my intention to be a candidate to represent the city That all farther conversation on this subject may be put to rest, this method is taken to inform the voters of Annapolis, that I am a candidate, and if elected and my life spared, shall use my best endeavours to represent them faithfully. And as there is no doubt but some of my opponents will use all sorts of means, and make efforts of all descriptions to prevent my election. I have to ask of my fellow citizens to be on their guard against erroneous representations, assuring them, that they will be met, (if made known) promptly and without fear of a canvass before the people collected. I shall take no unbecoming steps against those that are or that hereafter may be candidates My purpose and pretensions have never been disguised, pretensions have nover been used and will be steadily, candidly and fear lessly pursued.

STANZAS. My life is like the summer rose,
That opens to the mo ning sky, But 'ere the shades of evening close, Is scattered on the ground to die; Yet on trat roses humble bed, The sweetest dens of night are shed. As if she wept such waste to see, But none shall weep a tear for me. My life is like the autumn leaf,

That trembles in the moon's pale vay, its hold is frail; its date is brief, Restless, and soon to pass away; Yet 'ere that leaf shall fall and fade, The parent tree shall mourn its shade, The winds bewail the leafless tree, But none shall breathe a sign for me. My life is like the prints, which feet

Soon as the rising tide shall beat, All trace will vanish from the sand; Yet, as it grieving to efface, All ve-tize of the human race, On that lone shore load mourns the sea, But none aias! shall mound for me.

ANSWER.

The dews of night may fall from Heaven,
Upon the wither'd roses bed,
and tears of fond regret be given,
To mourn the virtues of the cead; Yet morning's sun the dews will dry, And tears will lade from sorrows eye, And even love forget to weep. The tree may mourn its fallen leaf,

And autumn winds bewail its bloom Yet so in will spring renew the flowers, And time will bring more smiling hours, In crendship's near ail griet will die, And even love forget to sigh.

The sea may on the desert shore, Lament each trace it tears away, The lonely near its grief may pour.
O'er cherish'd triendship's fast decay:
Yet when all trace is lost and gone,
The waves dance bright and gally on, Thus soon affection's ounds are torn, And even love forgets to mourn.

The speaker related says all affecting anecdetes; one of a careless sailor, who on going to sea, replied to his religious brother in words like these: "Fom you are talkeing a great deal aboot. Religion and Providence, and if I should be wrecked, a ship was to heave in sight and take me off, I suppose you would call it a merciful providence. Its all very well, but I believe no such a thing; these things happen like other things, by mere chance, and you call it providence; that's all!" He went upon his voyage, and the case he had put hypothetically was soon literally true; he was wrecked and remained upon the wreck three days, when a ship appeared, and seewas wrecked and remained upon in wrecked three days, when a ship appeared, and seeing their signal of distress, camb to their relief. He returned, and in relating it, said to his brother, "Oh! Tom, when that ship hove in sight, my words to you came in a moment into my mind—it was like a bolt of thunder. I have never got rid of it; and now I think it no more than an act of common gratitnee, to give myself up to Him who pitied and saved me ! sir, put the love of Jesus Christ before a sailor's heart, and all its warm affections gush out; no man must tell me that sailors will not I sten to the gospel, if we would only do our duty, if we would only use the same efforts for them as for others, we might et old multitudes of them anchoring safe by that great Rock, around which the storms of ages beat in vain. THE HUMAN BODY.

The resis in and modulating powers of the living body, (says Dr. Waterhouse,) are among the most wonderful things of our nature. Water will be consolidated to ther nomeier. But the living puman body will maintain its own heat or 98 degrees in an atmosphere of 15 or 20 organes below 0; and which is surprising, it maintains its natural heat of 98, in an atmosphere heated artificially to 200 degrees. Whence we learn, that the Human body is endowed with the power of resisting, a long time, the destructive effects of heat, and the equally structive effects of heat, and the equally destructive effects of cold. Every person is surrounded by an atmosphere of his with perspiration. If this be blown away, and to be long exposed to the greater colliness of the common air, disorder in the body most commonly follows. We are assured, hat the free effusion of cold water over the and that it carries off the distressing sensaon of heat, moderates the pulse, and ren-ders the tongue cleaner, and moist, and lessens the pain of the head and limbs; and the whole febrile condition is greatly re-heved, and the disorder abridged.
