ANNAPOLIS.
THURSDAY, NOV. 4, 1824.

COMMUNICATED.
We are authorized and requested to make the following communication:
Luke Tiernan and Thomas W. Hall do hereby decline being considered Candidates as Electors of President and Vice President. They, nevertheless, exhort the friends of William H. Crawford in other districts and States, where circumstances have been more auspicious to truth and justice, to persevere in his support, being fully persuaded by the best intelligence from all parts of the Union, that his sound judgment, pure integrity, and strict adherence to the principles of the constitution, a discerning and grateful people will assign the most acceptable and glorious reward of eminent talents and patriotism. Like virgin gold, his character has brightened by the force of attrition, and the best hopes of his friends, are even now in the very moment of their consummation, by his elevation to the presidency of these free and United States.

Extract from a letter received in this city, dated Baltimore, Nov. 1.
"We had a town-meeting here last week, when Winchester, the Jackson candidate, and T. B. Dorsey, the Adams candidate, both addressed the people. The Patriot newspaper, has given a very incorrect account of it. The truth is, that Mr. Adams is so unpopular here, that it was not until Winchester entreated the people, that they would consent to let Dorsey speak. We shall give the Jackson Candidates a large majority in this city, and if the young men of Anne Arundel county are active on the day of election, nothing can prevent our complete success in this district. Most of the friends of Crawford in this place will vote for the Jackson candidates."

The election of Electors of President and Vice-President of the United States, took place in Ohio on Friday, where, it was said, Jackson would come off second best. It will be beyond days before the result will reach us, and though we know the issue cannot affect the prospects of our favorite candidate, Mr. Crawford, whose friends in that state declined running a ticket for him, and united with those of Mr. Clay, still it would be gratifying to us to have it in our power to lay before our readers the majority by which the successful ticket has been elected. The Scioto Gazette printed at Chillicothe, a paper noted for the correctness of its intelligence, eight days before the election spoke with great confidence of the defeat of the Adams Ticket, and stated, that in Ohio, "Mr. Adams was supported principally by the mercantile interest; by emigrants from the New-England states, who have not resided long enough in the country to divest themselves of sectional partialities; by a remnant of the old Federal party; and by a few individuals, who profess to believe that domestic industry requires no protection."

The same paper says, "Although but little has been said of Mr. Crawford, in our public prints, yet he has in this state a respectable number of friends. Among these may be enumerated our present Governor, and several other gentlemen who have held high and honorable positions under the general and state governments."

TRUE CHARACTER OF GENERAL JACKSON.
To the Editor of the Md. Gazette.
Oblige me by inserting the following extract from "Katon's Life of Jackson," in your paper. It shows the character of the General to be so different from what it is represented by many of the Adams newspapers, that its perusal will doubtless yield satisfaction to the friends and admirers of the veteran patriot whose courage & skill preserved New-Orleans, and protected the helpless women and children on our frontier from the tomahawk and scalping knife of the ruthless savages. The work from which the extract is made, is considered an impartial and correct piece of biography. Which ought to be believed, the statement of a candid biographer, or the representations of venal scribblers for party newspapers? Let every man maturely consider this question, before he forms his opinion of the character of General Jackson.

THE EXTRACT.
"In the person of General Jackson, is perceived nothing of the robust or elegant He is six feet and an inch high, remarkably straight & spare, and weighs not more than 145 pounds. His dark blue eyes, with brown arches and slightly projecting nose, was a marked expression, but when from any cause excited, they sparkle with peculiar lustre and penetration. In his manners he is pleasing; in his address commanding; while his countenance, marked with firmness and decision, beams with a strength and intelligence that strikes at first sight. In his deportment, there is nothing repulsive. Easy, affable and familiar, he is open and accessible to all. Influenced by a belief that merit should constitute the only difference in man, his attention is equally bestowed on honest poverty, as on titled consequence. No man however inconsiderable in his standing, ever approached him on business, that he did not patiently listen to his story, and afford him all in his power. His moral character is without reproach, and by those who know him most intimately, he is most esteemed. Benevolence in him is a prominent virtue. He was never known to pass distress without seeking to assist or relieve it."

CONNECTICUT.
The Hartford Times says: "From what information we have been able to obtain from different parts of the state, during the last fortnight, we are decidedly of opinion that the Independent and Whig parties will prevail here. The Whig ticket is opposed to Mr. Adams."

POLITICAL PROSPECTS.
Our information, says the Boston Statesman, from every part of the State is of the most animating kind. The napped ticket is very popular and will bring forth its supporters HOSTS of honest men, of both political parties, in every county. We hazard nothing in predicting that if WILL PREVAIL, by a large majority. The abolition of the Adams Club will not be the result of the election, as it is a mere re-iteration of the corrupt bargains of a few office holders and office seekers.

To the Editor of the Md. Gazette.
Mr. Green.
As some ideas have been suggested unfavorable to the interest of the American Bible Society, and its auxiliaries, from want of sufficient information respecting the erection of the building that was put up by the society two years ago in the city of New-York, you are requested to publish the enclosed statement, taken from the seventh annual Report, which it is hoped will effectually remove any disadvantageous impressions, and prove the propriety of the measure, and the benefits resulting from it. By so doing you will oblige
A SUBSCRIBER.

Extract from the Seventh Report of The American Bible Society, of May 1823.
"The Managers have sincere delight in announcing, that the Depository of the Society has been completed. The cornerstone was laid shortly after the last anniversary, and the building was finished in the early part of the winter. The expenditure for this object, including the ground, has been about $2,500 dollars. Between $200 and a few thousand dollars were obtained from liberal and benevolent individuals, for the express purpose of paying for the Depository, and the remainder of the sum has been temporarily supplied out of the general funds of the Society. They have adopted a plan of a sinking fund, by the operation of which, the sum advanced from the general funds, will be repaid with interest, in a few years; and the temporary advance will not interfere with the business of the Institution, nor result in the diversion of a single dollar from the precise object for which it was paid into the Treasury. This Depository is now being occupied for a number of months, and a sufficient trial has already been made to realize the expectations of those who urged its erection. All the business of the society is now done under one roof. There is the most ready access to every record, and every document, to which reference may become necessary on the part of the Managers, or of any of the Committees. The officers of the society have much more easy and frequent intercourse and opportunities to confer together, and to communicate interesting intelligence. The Managers, and the Committees, have suitable rooms for their meetings; and the Secretary, and the Agent, have convenient offices. It is now practicable to carry on the business of the Society with more regularity and system, and to maintain a more constant oversight of all its operations, particularly in the printing and book-binding departments. In the sixth Report of the Society, May 1822, mention is made of their late venerable President D. Boudinot, who generously presented two thousand dollars to its treasury, and of one thousand afterward toward the erection of the Depository. The American Bible Society's house embraces fifty feet in front, upon Nassau-street, and extends back thirty feet, when it is contracted to the breadth of thirty feet, and runs about seventy feet, with that width, to Theatre Alley, making the whole depth of the building, a little more than 100 feet, the basement contains apartments for the accommodation of the keeper and his family, two large rooms for storing printing paper, and other property of the Society, and the requisite cellars for fuel. The first floor of the front buildings, comprises a large room for the Agents office and the Biblical Library, and two smaller ones for the accommodation of the Secretaries, Treasurer, and Committees. The rest of this store, besides the space occupied by staircases, being a room of about sixty-two feet by twenty-eight, is devoted to the purpose of a depository of Bibles and Testaments, and is capable of containing about 100,000 Bibles, bound and conveniently arranged on suitable shelves.
On the second story, in front is the Manager's room, which is 45 feet long by 25 wide, and 16 in height, and plainly but neatly furnished. The second and third stories of the rear building are occupied by the binder, and as a depository of printed sheets. The third story of the front building with the fourth of the rear, which together form one room, as also the garret, are occupied by the printer to the Society."

The United States frigate Constitution, Com. Macdonough, for the Mediterranean, and United States steam galiot Seagull, for Thompson's Island, went to sea from New York on Friday morning.

EMIGRATION TO HAVRE.
Letters were received yesterday from Port au Prince, announcing the arrival of the brig De Witt Clinton, Capt. Barstow, the next vessel despatched from this port by the Emigration Society.

The following is an extract of a letter from the Captain to the Agent of the Society: PURIN-PRINCE, Oct. 9, 1824.
Dear Sir, With pleasure I inform you of my safe arrival on the evening of the 24th, after a passage of 23 days. The passengers I found to be generally very decent people. There is not one but what is pleased with the treatment and provisions. I allowed them to eat nothing but sea water, and had as much as they wanted to eat and drink; not did we have but one sick, dangerous patient. The passengers have returned to me, and I have likewise been received here with the greatest attention—the Philanthropic Society gave me a dinner, &c.

A few miles to the northward of Cape Florida we fell in with parts of a vessel supposed to have been destroyed by the pirates; as it was wrecked at Cape Florida that they had destroyed three small vessels in that neighborhood, the crews of which escaped to shore, & information was immediately given to Lieut. McIntosh, commanding officer of Key West, who with his usual promptness immediately despatched a vessel in pursuit, but did not fall in with them. Key West is getting healthy."

It has the advantage of an excellent landing, whence the greater part of the produce of Calvert county and of the lower parts of Anne Arundel, is shipped for the Baltimore market, and from which two packets run regularly twice a week. The land is of excellent quality, is well adapted to the growth of fine tobacco, grain and clover, and plaster is said to act upon it with great effect—it abounds with valuable timber of every description, which may be cut and conveyed to the landing with great facility by very convenient roads made at great expense with a view to that object.
The land will be sold entire, if any one or more disposed to purchase at a fair price express a wish to do so before or on the day of sale. In the meantime, the accommodation of the public, it will be divided into three lots, two of about 300 each, and one of about 200 acres.

Lot No. 3.
Is nearly covered with valuable timber, has on it, one or more useful tenements, and immediately adjoins the town of Friendship. Both Lots No. 1 & 2.

Tobacco Lands.
On the 9th day of December next, at 11 o'clock, A. M. if fair, if not, the next fair day thereafter, the subscriber will offer at public auction, on the premises, his valuable REAL ESTATE, situate on the north side of Severn River, opposite the City of Annapolis, containing upwards of about six hundred covered with wood and heavy timber, consisting of white oak, black walnut and poplar, &c. the residue for the most part under good fences—the whole nearly surrounded by the waters of the Severn river, and a wide navigable creek, emptying into the Chesapeake Bay, which afford convenient water carriage for wood and produce from almost every part of the land.
It is at present divided into two farms, both in a promising state of improvement, and possessing large banks of oyster shells, and other sources of manure in great abundance. Plaster has been found to act with great effect on these lands in promoting the growth of clover—the soil is principally clay, of an excellent quality for grain and other crops; it is particularly well adapted to the culture of first quality tobacco. There is a good water mill adjoining these lands, and a steam mill in Annapolis, both very convenient to this estate. These two farms will be divided into smaller ones of from 200 to 300 acres each, which will be shown on a plot on the day of sale.
The buildings on both the Farms are beautifully situated on eminences commanding extensive views of the river & bay.
Terms of sale, one fourth cash, the residue in three equal annual payments, on interest from the day, on bond and security. The subscriber will treat for the above lands at private sale, at any time previous to the day appointed for public auction.
