CEMETERIES.
The Jews have some remarkable fancies concerning their dead. They seem, indeed, to be as much distinguished from their ancestors by the childish and monstrous superstitions with which their literature is filled, as by the firm adherence to that law against which they rebelled so often before it was abrogated. So well, however, are they now persuaded of the resurrection, that the name which they give to a burial place is "The House of the Living," an expression finely implying, that it is the dead alone who can be said to live truly. The body, according to their notion, has a certain indestructible part called Luz, which is the seed from whence it is to be reproduced. It is described as a bone in shape like an almond, and having its place at the end of the vertebra; and truly this is not more absurd than the hypothesis which assigned the pineal gland for the seat of the soul.
This bone, according to the Rabbin, can neither be broken by any force of man, nor consumed by fire, nor dissolved by water; and they tell us that the fact was proved before the Emperor Adrian, upon whom they imprecate their usual malediction.
"May his bones be broken!" In his presence Rabbi Joshua Ben Chauma produced a LUZ: it was ground between two millstones, but came out as whole as it had been put in; they burnt it with fire, and it was found incombustible; they cast it into water, and it could not be softened; lastly, they hammered it upon an anvil, and both the anvil and hammer were broken without affecting the LUZ. The Rabbi-cal writers, with their wonted perversion of Scripture, support this silly notion by a verse from the Psalms: "He keepeth all his bones, so that none of them is broken." A dew is to descend upon the earth preparatory to the resurrection, and quicken into life and growth these seeds of the dead. During the Pontificate of Urban VIII. a large burial ground of the Jews at Rome was broken up to make room for some new fortifications, and the Jews were particularly anxious to collect all the bones paying the labourers a dear price for them. But not a single specimen of the LUZ could they produce to their enemy Bartolotti when he called for it upon so favourable an opportunity.

Jews' bones put into little chests, but unknown to any of the ship-The Jews, our merchants, told me of them at my return from Jerusalem to Saphet, but earnestly in-treated me not to tell it, for fear of preventing them another time.
Sometimes a wealthy Jew has been known to import earth from Jerusalem wherewith to line his grave.
This is a point of feeling, not of superstition: but superstition has made the Italians, in old times, import earth from the same country for churchyards.

WAR.
By Washington Irving.
It was the opinion of that political philosopher, Lucretius, that war was the original state of man; whom he described as being primitively a savage beast of prey, engaged in a constant state of hostility with his own species, and that his ferocious spirit was tamed and meliorated by society. The same opinion has been advocated by the learned Hobbes, nor have there been wanting a host of sage philosophers to admit and defend it.

For my part, I am prodigiously fond of these valuable speculations, so complimentary to human nature, and which are so ingeniously calculated to awaken the hearts of both writer and reader. But in this instance I am inclined to make the proposition by halves, believing with old Florence, that the war may have been originally the favorite amusement and employment of our progenitors, yet like many other excellent habits, so far from being ameliorated, it has been cultivated and confirmed by refinement and civilization, and increases in exact proportion as we approach towards that state of perfection, which is the ne plus ultra of modern philosophy.

The first conflict between man and man was the mere exertion of physical force, unaided by auxiliary weapons—his arm was his buck-ler, his fist was his mace, and a broken head the catastrophe of his encounters. The battle of unassisted strength was succeeded by the more rugged ones of stones and clubs, and war assumed a sanguinary aspect. A man advanced in refinement, as his faculties expanded and his sensibilities became more exquisite, he grew rapidly more experienced. He invented a thousand devices to defend and to assault—the helmet, the cutlass, and the buckler; the sword, the dart, and the javelin, prepared to elude the wound as well as to launch the blow. Still urging on the brilliant and philanthropic career of invention, he enlarges and heightens his power of defence and injury.

Still insatiable, though armed with machinery that seemed to reach the limits of destructive invention, and to yield to a power of injury, commensurate even to the desires of revenge—still deeper researches must be made in the diabolical arcana. With furious zeal he dives into the bowels of the earth; he toils amidst poisonous minerals and deadly salts; the sublime discovery of gunpowder blazes upon the world. This is grand! this indeed marks the powers of the mind; and bespeaks that divine endowment of reason, which distinguishes us from the animals our inferiors. The unenlightened brutes content themselves with the native forest which Providence assigned them. Man alone, blessed with the inventive mind, goes on from discovery to discovery—enlarges and multiplies his powers of destruction; arrogates the tremendous weapons of the deity itself, and taxes creation to assist him in murdering his own brether worm!

RUNAWAY SLAVES FROM VIR-GINIA APPREHENDED.
Three Negro Men, James, Dennis, and Burrill, were lately taken by the subscriber on the Eastern Shore of this State, and lodged in Annapolis gaol. James is about 6 feet high and has a large mouth and white teeth; Dennis is about 25 years of age, not so stout as James, and has a defective mouth. Burrill has a defective toe, and is about 5 feet 6 or 7 inches high. They say they are the property of Willoughby Newton, esquire, attorney at law, in Westmoreland county, Virginia, and that they left home during the harvest season. They were indifferently clad when arrested, and say they sold their best clothes previously to their apprehension.

It is suspected by some, that the names by which these men now call themselves have been assumed, and that they are the three fellows advertised by Mr. John Worsley, living near Waterford, in Loudoun county, Va. This however they positively deny, and persist in asserting that they belong to Mr. Newton.
