100 Dollars Reward FOR JIM; NO MATTER WHERE TAKEN.
Ran away from the subscriber near the Governor's Bridge, Prince George's county, Maryland, on the 24th March last, a Negro Man named JIM, a Negard of 40 years of age, his complexion not very dark, of ordinary height, but uncommonly large and broad across the back and shoulders, very bowlegged, by which he may be known, lumps a little in his walk, an old scar near one of his eyes, his clothing was a suit of white domestics, and one of dark woolen clothes, no doubt has a variety. Jim, if alive, lives with Mr. Joseph N. Stockett, near South River Church, and he has brothers and other children belonging to Mr. Gustavus Knighton, and I have no doubt Jim is lurking thereabouts, or somewhere between South and Patuxent rivers, or he may possibly be found for some fishing landing, or some of the waters at this season of the year, and there hire himself. All persons are hereby warned not to harbour or employ said fellow. Grafton Tyler

P. S. - Jim's wife is now living on the farm of the late Judge Grafton, known by the name of White's Landing, on Patuxent, opposite, Low Mayborough, and it is probable Jim is lurking about there or in Calvert county.

PUBLISHED By Subscription.
THE DECISIONS OF THE COURT OF APPEALS OF MARYLAND,
To be Reported by Thomas Harris, Esquire, Clerk of the Court of Appeals, and Reverdy Johnson, Esquire, Attorney at Law.
These Decisions will form a continuation of the first volume of Reports already published by Messrs. Harris and Johnson, which closes with the year 1805. It is proposed to publish the Decisions in a Series of Numbers, each to contain not less than one hundred and twenty five pages, and four numbers to constitute a volume. The last number of each volume will contain a full and complete Index. This mode of publication, it is conceived possesses advantages which give it decided preference to that of publishing the Reports in bulky volumes. It ensures the earlier publication of the Reports; and as not more than four numbers will be published in a year, the expense will not be so sensibly felt.
TERMS.
The price of each number of the Reports will be $1.25, payable on delivery.
Subscriptions to the above Work are received at GEORGE SHAW'S Store the Maryland Gazette Office, and the respective Offices of the County Clerks of this state.

ROBERT MORRIS.
From the 'Recollections of Washington,' a new work by G. W. P. Custis.
It has often been asked, 'Who were the favourites of Washington? whom did he love?' I answer, the most worthy Washington lived for his country, and for her so much did he 'live and move,' and almost 'have his being,' that when he loved a man, that man must love his country.
In the war of Independence, Greene was his Hepheston, yet such was his delicacy in bestowing praise, even where most deserved, that he declined the mentioning of Greene's division, which had so gallantly covered the retreat from Brandywine, saying to the illustrious commander, who prayed that his comrades might receive their well earned commendation, 'You sir, are considered in this army as my favourite officers, your division is composed of Southern, my more immediate countrymen. Such are my reasons.'
It has been thought that certain vivacious personages, as governor Morris, and Gen. Henry Lee, were in the habit of taking liberties with the chief. Around the father of his country, his virtues and character created an atmosphere of awe and veneration, in which undue familiarity could not have existed for a moment. No men living were more ardently attached to the chief than the revolutionary statesman and distinguished officer alluded to. They possessed brilliant talents, had rendered conspicuous services, and were the most pleasurable companions of their time. These considerations, together with the absence of restraint at the private parties of the president, gave rise to the idea that there were certain characters who could approach without reserve, and even toy with the passive lion. But the lion, though passive, was the lion still. He could always be approached, and sometimes in sportive mood, but not so near as to lay hand upon his mane.
If I am asked—And did not Washington unbend, and admit to familiarity and social friendship, some one person, to whom age and long and interesting associations gave peculiar privilege, the privilege of the heart? I answer, that favoured individual was Robert Morris.
The general-in-chief of the armies of independence, in the relief afforded to the privations of his staff in the soldiery, first learned the value of Robert Morris. It was he who brought order out of chaos, and whose talent and credit sustained the cause of his country in her worst times. Virtues and services like these endeared their possessor to the paternal chief, in whose heart the financier of the revolution held an esteem which neither time nor misfortune could alter or impair.
Mr. Morris was ever a guest at the private and select parties of the president.—So much was this a matter of course, that the steward, having first placed Mr. M's favourite wine at the plate immediately on the right of the chief, would repair to the dwelling of Morris, and observe—'The president dines with a select party of friends to-day, and expects your company as usual.'
When Mr. Morris first engaged in those speculations which terminated so unhappily, Washington, with the privilege of sincere friendship, remonstrated, observing, 'You are old, and had better retire rather than engage in such extensive concerns.' Morris replied, 'Your advice is proof of that wisdom and prudence which govern all your
