HOBRID MURDER.—Mr. Sweet, of Fayette, in the county of Seneca, was murdered in a most shocking manner, by his wife on the 1st inst. The circumstances as near as can be ascertained are as follows: Mr. Sweet who was almost daily in the habit of getting intoxicated, had returned at noon much inebriated and laid down on a bed. While in this situation Mr. Sweet took an axe and inflicted blows on his head laying it entirely open. She then attempted to kill herself, but was discovered before she could effect her purpose, and is now confined in goal in Waterloo, awaiting her trial. N. Y. Com. Adv.

DRUNKENNESS.—The Newport Spectator, in referring to Mr. Lewis' curing drunkards, says, "We know a man in this county who is periodically cured by his wife, as often as once in six weeks. When the fit comes on, she puts an emetic into his hand, which effects a cure for the time; and in order to remove temptation on his way, she drinks up the rum her husband has in the house." GREECE. By arrivals at New York from Havre. The accounts from Greece are more favourable than we have lately received. The Turkish fleet had attacked the Isle of Samos three times, and having had two frigates and two brig burnt by the Greeks, were obliged to retire towards Scio. This repulse was owing to the arrival of the Greek fleet under Sachuris, soon after the attack was made. It does not appear that the Greeks suffered much in the action, with the exception of the loss of the brulotier of Canaris, and himself seriously wounded. It is intelligible that true, it is thought the sale will be saved for this year, and the impression which the failure will make on the Greeks will probably prevent a renewal of the attack.

Letters from Napoli, give the details of a battle fought near Mainz. Ibrahim had advanced on the place with 4000 men, but was defeated with the loss of a large number of men, and all his baggage and artillery, which fell into the hands of the Greeks. Ibrahim was obliged to escape hastily to Calabria. All his troops in Greece amount to only 7 or 8000 men, so that the Greeks have determined to act on the offensive. The loss of the Greeks in the battle was also severe, and general Nikitas is among the slain. A division of the Greek troops was commanded by the English Col. Gordon.

ANNE-ARUNDEL COUNTY COURT.
The October term of this Court commenced on Monday last. There were but few criminal cases to be acted on at this term. On Tuesday Mr. Adams's mulatto female slave, against whom a bill was found at the last April session, was arraigned and tried for leaving the dwelling-house of Dr. Richardson, of Elk-Ridge. This trial occupied the whole of the afternoon of that day, and, as the crime with which the prisoner stood charged, was of so heinous a character as to jeopardize her life, it excited considerable interest. The examination of witnesses and the arguments of the counsel, were concluded about half past 7 o'clock at night, when the jury retired, and after a few minutes consultation in their room, returned with the verdict—"Not Guilty."

On Wednesday, the two white men committed to goal last spring on the charge of having stolen sheep from the farm of Captain George Barber, were tried and convicted.

STEAM-BOAT ACCIDENT.
On Thursday last, as the steam ferry boat *Wm. One of the men clung by the wheel and was saved; one female was picked up by the small boat, but the third, Mr. Stephen Westover, a respectable land-surveyor, of Sutton, was drowned.

To the Editor of the Maryland Gazette, Friend Green,

As one of thy subscribers, I am induced to offer thee a few reflections that passed through my mind the other day, that it may possibly not be amiss to give a place in one of the columns of thy paper, as the elections are now over, and perhaps not a very great press of more interesting matter on hand. I was thinking within myself, how will Henry Clay act. when he finds there are to be no other presidential candidates started, for the next election, save John Quincy Adams and Andrew Jackson? At that moment I cast my eye on a newspaper, and on taking it up, found it to be of an old date, containing Henry Clay's memorable and modest address to his constituents; wherein he says, "I saw in his (Adams's) election, the establishment of no dangerous example. I saw in it, on the contrary, only conformity to the 'safe precedent' which had been established in the instances of Mr. Jefferson, Mr. Madison and Mr. Monroe, who had respectively filled the same office, (Secretary of State), from which he, (Mr. Adams), was to be translated." Thinks I to myself, well do friend Clay, this is truly modest, now that thou art appointed Secretary of State by this same John Quincy Adams, whom thou hast been the means of translating from this same secretaryship to the presidency; the fourth in uninterrupted succession from the same station. Thou hast said, (and no doubt believed it to be good policy,) "that it exhibits no dangerous example to continue the long established usage of selecting no other man for the President of these United States, but the Secretary of State;" and that on the contrary it is only in conformity to the safe precedent which had been established: Because, forsooth, if thou canst but induce the nation to keep up this delightful precedent, now that thou art become John Q. Adams's Secretary of State, why surely the next transfusion from this office will be thy worthy self. Now, is it possible, that a man of thy reputed sense, can for a moment be so blinded by ambition, as to believe that the people are so blind and stupid as to allow this "safe precedent," as thou art pleased to call it, any longer to be continued, after John Quincy Adams's term of service expires? Agreeably to thine own shewing, they have already been deprived by it of the right of choosing their president from the time of Thomas Jefferson's election to the termination of John Quincy Adams's services, which will embrace a period of 32 years, should A. be re-elected. Yea, the re-election of Adams, would be making it 32 years that the people will have been obliged to receive as their president, the man, whom the President for the time being, has deemed it convenient to himself to appoint to the office of Secretary of State. Now let me ask thee, friend Clay, Suppose, for argument sake, the people would consent to continue this "safe precedent," what security hast thou of being the successor of John Q. Adams? Dost thou not remember that he is the first president, since the establishment of this "safe precedent," who has had a son, and consequently, that there may be some danger, even to thine own last again made him President, and all further necessity for thy management has thereby terminated, suppose John Quincy Adams should address thee in somewhat after this manner: "Henry Clay, thou hast been very useful to me in many ways, and I am now about to give thee choice of one of two propositions—Either to go to Panama, thy favourite Congress, or to retire into private life, that thou mayst have leisure to redeem thy promise made the nation, that thou wouldst at a proper season assist our old friend J. Russell in his accusations against me. This I am the more anxious for thee to do, as I wish to appoint my own son my Secretary of State, that he may become thereby my successor to the presidency. This thou must certainly commend me for doing, as it will be adding a second 'safe precedent' to the one thou hast already eulogized and recommended to the nation as safe, and thereby rendering the first doubly useful and desirable."

Methinks, I hear Henry Clay saying to himself, "I had thought of this before, and I am determined not to be outwitted, nor out-yanked neither. I can easily remedy all this; just before the election I will satisfy this credulous old gentleman, and his friends, that Andrew Jackson, if suffered to run alone against John Quincy Adams, will certainly be elected, and therefore, to prevent all danger, I will myself pop out as a candidate, which will take so many of the votes from Jackson as will bring us all three before Congress, when I will shew what an incorruptible Congress can, by proper management, be got to do." Now should things so happen, and Henry Clay be thereby elected the President of the United States, I ask thee, friend Green, as I would John Q. Adams, his friends, and the nation, who would have a right to complain? Surely not John Q. Adams, after his regret that the constitution had not provided against such things, when they were found necessary to be used in his own election; and surely his friends will not, inasmuch as they have since strenuously opposed amending the constitution so as to prevent the election of presidents depending on the House of Representatives.

A LOVE LETTER.
The following is a copy of a love-letter written by a young attorney to the mistress of his heart. It is said to be his first attempt.
My dear Miss Brockman—My heart has given me notice of a set off I attempted to sue out a ne exeat, but failed. Your image, aided by a posse comitatus of accomplishments, has entered and taken possession of my bosom, after ejecting the aforesaid tenant. Think not I am pleading a sham plea. I can assure you that my passion savours of the reality. It is my wish that you and I should be jointly and severally bound by Hymen in a fidelity bond to Cupid, determinable, nevertheless, on the demise of either party. I meant to have written to you yesterday, but my ink ran up and down, and secreted itself in my new patent inkstand. Pray accept a declaration nunc pro tunc, and plead thereto usually in four days; and believe that my attachment, unlike those in the Mayor's court, is incapable of being set aside on the coming of an answer. Dated this 30th day of September, 1826. Your loving friend,

NEW JERSEY ELECTION.
Trenton, N. J. Oct. 16.
Letters from different parts of the state have been received in Trenton, relative to the election, and from the information thus derived, it is admitted on all hands, that the Adams ticket is elected to congress, viz. Isaac Pearson, Lewis Condict, Samuel Swan, George Holcombe, Euzeneer Tucker, Hedge Thompson. Federalist.

LATE FOREIGN NEWS
Received at New-York by the ship James Cropper, in Liverpool papers of the 16th September.

GREAT-BRITAIN.—Mr. Gallatin had an interview with Mr. Secretary Canning, at his office in Downing-street, on the 11th ult. which lasted upwards of an hour.

We understand, says the Liverpool Mercury of the 15th, that the plan meant to be proposed to Parliament by ministers for the modification of the corn laws, is to impose a duty on the importation of foreign grain of from 1s. to 20s. to be regulated by a graduated scale, beginning at 1s. per quarter on wheat, when the average price in England is 69s. and increasing to 20s. when it is as low as 50s. and suffering the importation to be perfectly free when it is 70s. or upwards.

Liverpool, Sept. 12.
The accounts from the different manufacturing districts of the country are almost unanimous in representing the state of trade as gradually improving.

SPAIN.—A letter of 31st Agst. from Madrid says, Every thing here appears to announce an approaching change in the direction of affairs. Our Ministers appear willing to retract their steps, and disposed to make some concessions to the true public opinion of the country. But whilst this is passing at Madrid, the state of anarchy into which we are plunged in such, that in the interior contrary sentiments prevail; for not only every Governor of a province, but every petty Alcade is a monarch, who has his peculiar system, to which the orders issued by Government are made subservient.

The French army is about to evacuate Cadiz, leaving only a barely efficient garrison behind.

RUSSIA AND TURKEY.—The London Courier of the 14th ult. remarks:—"It is announced in letters from Akerman, that the conferences between the Turkish and Russian Plenipotentiaries are likely to stumble on the threshold an unlucky omen.—The former it is said, are instructed to insist on the restitution of certain fortresses in Asia, which the latter are prohibited, from ceding, because they had been repaired and enlarged at a great expense by Russia when the safety of her frontiers imperiously required it. All is known for certain," says the account, "that the Emperor Nicholas will never deliver these fortresses, and that the Russian Commissioners have instructions not to admit such a demand even in the protocol."

The following is from the Augsburg Gazette.—A courier, who was despatched on the 30th July, by way of Odessa, bringing letters from Messrs. De Woronzow and Ribaupierre, has given information to M. Minciaky, that the Turkish Commissioners were at first unwilling to submit to quarantine, as contrary to the precepts of their religion; that they afterwards declared Akerman too distant from the frontiers, and proposed in consequence to carry on the conferences on the left banks of the Pruth. M. de Minciaky went immediately to the Reis Effendi, calling on him to expedite proper orders to the Commissioners. It is hoped that, in spite of the ambiguous, evasive and laconic answers attributed to the Reis Effendi, the Porte will interpose no more obstacles to the opening of the conferences.

The coronation of the Emperor of Russia was to take place on the 6th of Sept. It is said the Emperor has instituted a censorship of the press.

GREECE.—There is no news concerning Greece except a general remark, communicated by some private letter, that things remained without alteration; and intelligence received from Mr. Eynard in Switzerland, that the Greek fleet was off Hydra. Our last accounts stated that this island was to be made the strong hold of the nation.

The Greek committee at Paris, have made a statement, by which it appeared that Lord Cochrane sailed from Falmouth in the sloop Porcupine of 20 guns, manned by 120 Englishmen, & was joined by two steam-boats, each carrying four 41 pounders, and 2 mortars to carry a hollow ball of 68lbs. In July he was to be joined by 2 French corvettes, carrying from 20 to 24 guns, manned by Dutchmen, who were engaged when Lord C. was in the Netherlands.

A report has reached Paris, that the Turks had been defeated at Athens.
