From the Co-perstown Federalist. TRIAL FOR MURDER

On Saturday last, David Darby jr. was arraigned in the Court of Over and Terminer, held by Judge Nelson, Foot, and White, on an in-Melson, Foot, and White, on an in-dictment for mordering Smyth B. Reynolds, of Cherry Valley, in September last—Morehouse and Beach of Counsel for the people. and Seele and Campbell, for the prisoner. If appears from the testimony, that the prisoner was an apprentice to the deceased at the Blacksmith's business, and that the deceased on the morning of the 26t of last September, called prisoner from his bed at an early hour, as he had work in the shop which it was necessary should be done; prisoner paid no attention to the requirement of the deceased, and was called a second time, when his mas ter pulled the clothes off his bed, and drew the prisoner towards th edge of the bedstead; this call also was with out effect, other than the the stabborn and vindictive wrete arose and took a treadle from loon that was in the chamber, fas tened the door, and again went to his bed. After the lapse of abou fitteen minutes, his master went t the chamber door a third time which he found fastined, and caled to the prisoner, who re used to open the door; the debeased forced it open, and was struck with the treadle by the prisoner, with such jury retired to their room, and soon after came into Court with a ver dict of Gudty, The prisoner was then asked by the Judge, if he had pught to say why the sentence of the law should not be pronounced upon him, in answer to which in quiry, he said that he had to intetion of killing the deceased, but a the witness had sworn him to to gallows, he wished the time for his execution to be put off as long as was possible, to give him an opportunity for repentance. The judge then in an impressive and leening manner, remarked to the prisoner. that he had been brought to his present situation from an indulgence of unbridled passion, which had been shown to have controuled him th oughout his apprenticeship; that an aber ation from virtuous feel ings and disposition had marked his character, and admonished our to make his peace with a higher Tri bunal, at whose bar he must shortly appear to answer for the deeds done in the body; at the same time intimating an opinion that there was no hope for mer y from par-doning power in this State, as the crime had been clearly proved and the malice abundantly shown. The sentence of the Court was then stated to be, that on Friday the 9th of February next between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 2 P. M you, David Daiby, jun. be taken from the prison to the place of excution, and there hung until you are dead. And may God have mercy on your soul. The deceased was 25 years of age, of industrious habits, and sustained the character of an honest upogst citizen. The prisoner will be 20 y ars old in February, is of robust appearance and has a down cast look.—Throughout the trial he manifested an indifference to his fate which was shocking to humanity.
