

THE SOUNDING OF THE SEA.

Thou art sounding on, thou mighty sea,
Fervent and the same!
The ancient rocks yet ring to thee,
Whose thunders might can tame.
Oh! many a glorious voice is gone
From the rich bowers of earth,
And hush'd is many a lovely one
Of mournfulness or mirth.
The Dorian flute, that sigh'd of yore
Along thy wave, is still;
The harp of Judah peels no more
On Zion's awful hill.
And Memnon's lyre hath lost the chord
That breathed the mystic tone,
And the songs at Rome's high triumphs
Pour'd.
Are with her eagles flown:
And mute the Moorish horns, that rung
O'er steam and mountain fire,
And the hymn the leagued Crusaders sung
Hath died in Galilee.
But thou art swelling on, thou Deep!
Through many an olden clime,
Thy billow sobers—ne'er to sleep
Until the close of time.
Thou liftest up thy solemn voice
I. To every wind and sky,
And all our Earth's green bosom rejoice
In that one harmony!
It fills the noontide's calm profound,
The sunset's heaven of gold;
And still the midnight hears the sound
E'en as when first it roll'd.
Let there be silence, deep and strange,
Where crowning cities rose,
Thou speak'st of one that does not change,
So may our hearts repose.

SUOES.

The ladies are exhorted not to wear cloth shoes. Several newspaper writers have recently discovered, that cloth shoes cause two-thirds of the consumptions which occur. This opinion is ably supported; and it is not to be despised by the dear lovers of health and blooming complexions.

DECISIONS

OF THE Court of Appeals of Maryland. PUBLISHED By Subscription.

THE DECISIONS OF THE COURT OF APPEALS OF MARYLAND,

To be Reported by Thomas Harris Esquire, Clerk of the Court of Appeals, and Reverdy Johnson, Esquire, Attorney at Law.

These Decisions will form a continuation of the first volume of Reports already published by Messrs. Harris and Johnson, which closes with the year 1805. It is proposed to publish the Decisions in a Series of Numbers, each to contain not less than one hundred and twenty five pages, and four numbers to constitute a volume. The last number of each volume will contain a full and complete Index. This mode of publication, it is conceived, possesses advantages which give a decided preference to that of publishing the Reports in bulky volumes. It ensures the earlier publication of the Reports, and as not more than four numbers will be published in a year, the expense will not be so sensibly felt.

TERMS.
The price of each number of the Reports will be $1.25, payable on delivery.
* Subscriptions to the above work are received at GEO. HAWES Store, the Maryland Gazette Office, and the respective Offices of the Clerks of this State.

TALES OF THE MOHAWK.

The rich lowlands of the Mohawk, at an early period of our history, caught the eye of European pilgrims; and the German was the first to light his pipe under the willow of the stream, and first to fell the oak in the adjoining forest. In his habits, simple in his manners, honest in his heart—he lived, enjoyed a competence, and was happy. His homely dwelling was ever open to the wanderer, and a simple kindness would melt and soothe the heart. His wife too, a true honest woman, could pour the plate of her guest too high, and was never to be convinced, that the stranger's appetite was loved, or his stomach satisfied with her peculiar cookery—and if the Yankee but smelt her favourite and turned convinced away—the astonished dame would look with mild wonder on the fellow—on her husband and would fill her purport—and then would fill her own and husband's plate, and eat contentedly.

Amongst others who fixed their seats on the fertile banks of the stream, and the most ancient and far famed of all, was Johan Daleck Van Der Heyer, a simple yeoman, possessed of wealth and habits of industry. Even to this day is Johan renowned for many famous cures of burns, ulcers and cancers, which he effected by laying his right hand on the afflicted spot, and addressing the evil spirit with unintelligible sounds and mystic motions. But his chief renown, as tradition has it, was occasioned by the eternal fog which enveloped his tri-cornered hat, and his untiring zeal in the cause of tobacco; inasmuch that report says his pipe was never cold, and hands him down to posterity by the name of Johan the smoker.

The old man, after having spent his life of industry and quiet, and after his lamp of life and tobacco pipe were extinguished, and he exhaled the foggy whiff no more—was buried on the south side of the Mohawk, between Little Falls and Berkimer, near the spot, where the old fort now stands—and his good wife, liking his example, soon followed and was laid at his side.

Now the reason of my mentioning this worthy couple will be shown at once, by declaring that the parents of Johan Just Deckerick Van Der Heyer, who inherited the name of his father, and who made something of a figure in the traditions of the neighbourhood. The addition of Just to the name of his father was a whim of his mother, who always contended that the name, whom she had left in the old country, to follow her husband's fortunes in the new—and the old gentleman, after consulting his maiden sister, at length reluctantly consented to the addition of Just. This Johan Just was left alone on the death of his parents—and at the time of the revolution had almost grown to manhood; and was not a little annoyed in the course of his Sabbath evening gallantries by the ear of the savages, whose yell, not infrequently caused an imprudent cap into the mire, to the destruction of the gloss of his boots, as he went across to widow Bloogmarter's to visit her daughter, Marie Catrine. In truth the widow's daughter was the flower of his neighbourhood—and Johan's eye was not the only one that was attracted there—there was Yary Schack, a school-fellow of Johan's, and when they were both young they were often found together at some Margaret's at brisk play with little Maria. But after the death of Johan's father, and his consequent heirship, and after Yary, conscious of manhood, look-
