Although the period assigned for the e

etion of the next President of the United sates, is in some degree reinnte, yet the tiens; increat of that question to the peo- le of the Union has already induced a arm canvals upon the subject throughout most every section of the country.

The importance which is justly attached of that every section of the country.

The importance which is justly attached of that every section of the country attached is that every section of the peculiar circumstances attending the recent election, present it the singular spectacle of The FROPER TOYCHING the Subject of The FROPER TOYCHING TOYCHING TOYCHING THE SATE, would seem to demand an earlier overnent amongst the former, than is usually upon the ordinary occasion of the election of a Chief Magharate for this nation, the conduct of the administration also has wakened the approblemion, and aroused in jealousies of the prople, and thereby astened the controversy, before its natural and legitinate periods. It is too evident to dimit of contradict that the chief employment of the proposal are left untitled.—Nor in the application of those means are they restrained by any considerations of the application of those means are restrained by any considerations of or obstructed by any of the difficul-ion in the affections of the people, afford no eccurity to any who dare, or are even suspected of, an opposition to the administration. Not only are individuals thus selected for political victims, but the great body of the opposition is denounced as factious and unprincipled. The people themselves are not to question their rulers, although it is admitted; they have seized upon power against the will of the people—passive obedience and nonresistance are exacted with all the sternorss of absolute authority.

resolutions of the last session of the General Assembly, would rise from the perusal of it with a strong impression on his mind, (though we admit, that he no where asserts it in direct terms,) that those resolutions proposed some great change in the essential principles of our excellent constitution, and that too at the expense of a swerifice, on the part of the state, of its contingent equality with the election of President, in case of a failure on the first trial.

It is proper, therefore, that the public should be undeceived in this respect, and made acquainted withrithe real rature and object of these resolutions, by a re-publication of them, from which we confidently predict, that the reflecting will come to the conclusion, that the Governor's hesitation and indefinite objections are not, in fact, at all applicable to them. Those resolutions are in the following words:

Resolved by the General Assembly of Marvland, That, for the purpose of electing the President and Vice President of the United States, the Gonstitution ought to be so amended, that an uniform system of voting by districts shall be established in all the States; and that the people of those districts shall have the right of voting, directly, for those officers.

Resolved, that the Constitution ought to be further amended, in such manner as will prevent the election of the aforessid officers from devolving upon the respective Houses of Congress.

Those Resolutions, if I understand them, of Congress.

Those Resolutions, if I understand them, recommend to our members of Congress to use their exertions to obtain such an amendment of the constitution, as will attain the following objects—

1. An uniform mode of election by the several States, in order that their influence should be exerted in just proportion.

2. A system of election by districts, thereby diminishing the overwhelming influence of the great States.

3. An abolition of Electors in the primary elections, and giving a direct vote to the prople—because electors voting by secretically, are irresponsible, and may be tampered with by corrupt and ambitious men, and induced to defeat the wishes of the people, the objection to this plan, which is made by some men, who have not confidence in the capacity of the people, to make a wise choice, will appear altogether unfounded, the moment it is recollected, that electors are not selected to judge for the people, but on the contrary, are pledged to vote for a certain candidate, before the votes are given to them.

4. Taking the contingent power of election from the House of Representatives, in order to avoid the corruption and intrigue restrictions of the construction of the submission of subm

Prishd, on the subject of the last and approaching presidential election.

Resolved, That this meeting entertaining the most perfect confidence in the integrity and talents of General Jackson, and indignant at the malner in which the present administrationcame into power, and the means to which they have resorted to retain the reins of government, are deeply impressed with the necessity of so altering the constitution of the United States, as to insure to the PEOPLE, the election of their Chief with the necessity of so altering the constitution of the United States, as to insure to the PEOPLE, the election of their Chief Magistrate, and thereby prevent the choice of that important efficer from being thrown upon the House of Representatives, and exposed to the danger of intrigue and management, of which that body, from its constitution, is susceptible.

Resolved, That this meeting earnestly recommend to their fellow-citizens through the continuous propose no change of the constitution, is susceptible.

REMARKS UPON toV. KFAT'S MES, SAGE."

(covered in the Governor's Message, who did not recollect distinctly the resolutions of the last session of the General Assembly, would rise from the nerusal of it with a strong impression on his mind, (though we admit, that he no where asserts it in direct terms,) that those resolutions are understood and examined, no one can answer, or call narts of the content of the Maryland Resolutions is the Governor opposed to! When these Resolutions are understood and examined, no one can answer, or call narts of the content of duty, by transmitting them to the members of Congress, as requested by the legislature? It is not customary for Governors to comment on past measures, unless something is recommended to the consideration of and rejection, or adoption by the legislature is relation to them. In this case, the Governor proposes nothing to be done or acted on by the Legislature—but he indulges in such remarks upon the act of a former legislature, as leaves the impression, that he disapproves of that act, though when it is examined, it is fo and that his censures are not applicable to it. Are we not driven to the conclusion, that the Governor is anxious and apprehensive about the effects, which the opposition of administration members in Congress to a change of the constitution, which would take the election of the President from the House of Representatives, and give it directly to the people: which change is so decidedly approved of in Maryland, may have upon the popularity of the administration from the odium of that opposition, by throwing out indefinite and inapplicable censures upon the proposed plan of a gending the constitution? In conclusion, I must take leave to express my regret, as one who has a sincere respect for the moderation and prudence of the Governor's general character, that he has thought fit to put to hazard his own personal popularity to save the popularity of the administration, by taking his stand in opposition to a reform, or exemptial to the reverse.
