From the R. Enquirer, of Feb. 15. "Another, and another, still succeeds, And the last blow is harder than the former." A rapid succession of disastro defe ts pursues the coalition. We have just seen the victories of Ben M.Lane, Ridgely and Ellis, and we now see t'at of Van Buren. The mail of this day brings us the news of his re election; an event eminently gratifying in it self, but rendered doubly so from the total rout and dispersion of the ad ninistration forces with which It was attended.

POLITICAL PROSPECTS. The politics of this country appear to be approaching, if they have not already reached, a very uncommon state of things. There is a regularly organized opposition, headed by the best talent, and backed by a daily increasing majority Whatever doubt may exist as to the present Senate.
