Curren-You will take no step entire thing to the direction of yer wor ship's reverence; and i'll not do nor say, nothing but what yer honor will tell me

Curran-Very well. Now do yo Curran—Very well. Now do you think it possible by going back to—what part of the country do you come from? Farmer—My native place, when I'm at home, my lord, is Callagaher, in the country of Tipperary.

Curran—Very well, do you think it possible by going there, that you could raise, birrow, beg, or steal another hundred pounds, and be back here in a few day ? Farmer-O, murdher?-if it's a hu dred pounds of potatees ye mane, could do it aisily; but as to money, I'v a notion its entire impossible.

Curran—But cannot your relatives assist you. You will require it only for a few days; and I give you my word that you shall take it back to Tipperary; as I hope you shall the hundred pounds that you have lost.

Farmer-Sure I've got an ould uncle, my mother' own brother, that's oceans o' money, and is worth trying for yer honor.

Curran—Certainly go then, without delay; say to your uncle that one handred pounds for a few days, will make your fortune; and see that you do not mention your loss to a living soul, but coine to me the instant you return. I'll take care that the farm shall remain o pen until you come back.

Farmer-Long life to your honor's reverence; I'll do that same; an' i'll back in a jiffy, without any delay is

The farmer, buoyed up by the pro pect of regaining his lost treasure, de parted in good spirits for the county of Tipperary, and played his part so wel Having waited on Mr. Curran, the having waited on Mr. Curran, the latter sent immediately for the friendly door keeper, whom he instructed to accompany the countryman to Rooney's, in order to witness the deposit of the second bundle of bink notes. He discreted the farmer to clearly mistake and second bundle of bink notes. The di-rocted the farmer to plead mistake and intoxication in regard to his former claim; and to apologize accordingly; al-so to say that he returned to the counwhere he had found his money mends for his former suspicion of honesty, by now depositing the mone in his hands until the morrow; as h was tired with his journey, and coul not transact his business with the land-lord that evening. He likewise warn-ed them both to be on their guard, that business; and for that purpose he alvised the countryman to enter on the business before the door keeper made his appearance, which should be exactly at the instant when the notes should be counted out.

They set out accordingly, and the farmer obeyed his instructions to the letter; the villain Rooney, no doubt an letter; the villain Rooney, no doubt an ticipating a second booty. But seeing the door keeper enter, the farmer took up his cue and said. There's the hundred pound, every hap orth of it; count it yourself Mr. Rooney, and see it's all right. I'll take a bed with ye to night, and in the morning I'll be wanting it again, to pay for my lase; ye'll be sure not to fail to be giving me the money when I ax ye for it."

"Och! never fear Nick Rooney for Och! never fear Nick Rooney fo that, replied the inkeeper; there are the notes safe in my pocket book; and I'll put the same under my bolster this his time to take a part in the colloquy; accordingly, he exclaimed, 'Troth Mis-tur Nicholas Rooney, and it is not my ur Nicholas Rooney, and it is not my-elf would be after trusting such an old self would be after trusting such an oney Belzebub as you are with any money at all. Much better, sure, for the farmer to lend mea hold of the firmsies, for I'm an honest man ev'ry inch, and I'll keen them as safe for him as if they ou have of getting your lease renewed by having it done this evening. Away hied the farmer, not well knowing what to make of his director's ma-næuvres; but he punctiliously executed his message, and soon returned with the money; Rooney, though sorry to let the booty out of his grasp, was too well a-ware of the consequences of denying a transaction, to which there had been (witness.

ole, Curran thus addressed his client. Well, now my friend, so far, so well;

sarve that the villian still he money he first tuck from me.' sitlian still houlds the

'The holy vargin and the blesses saints be good unto you Misthur Curran, all the days of your lite, replie the farmers 'ye advise the right thing any how; and I'll do that same sure e nough.'

Accordingly next day, the biter foun himself bit, when the countryman ar the day before; he was compelled to make restoration, in order to avoid ance of his own ingenuity; and he de m his uncle, h advanced the hundred pounds for the second deposit, so confident was he of ne success of his scheme.

AFFAIRS OF HONOUR.

The following extraordinary results of a number of duels, we copy from one of our late London papers.

N. Y. Post.

Series of Duels—The Tasmanian. (published at Van Diemau's Land.) after announcing the arrival at Hobart Town, on the 10th of July, of the ship Harvy, Capt. Findley, from England. landed troops, and remained about six weeks, says—By this vessel have ar rived J. Williams, Esq. barrister-at ived J. Williams, Esq. barrister-at aw, son of Mr. Williams, a profession ment of the 33th regiment emparked in the Hervey for the Cape, commanded by Captain Elrington, son of Major Elrington, of Sidney, under whose or lers were Lieutenants Bonnis, Wilson ters were Lieutenants Bonnis, Wilson and Peck. Some disagreeable misun lerstanding which occurred before the ship left the English Channel, unhappily increased so much during the voyin consequence of certain strong ex-pressions which Mr. Williams had some of the military, he was waited upon by an officer of the 55th to invite him to a meeting with Lieutenant Bin nis. This Gentleman had hardly per formed his functions, when he was se conded by another officer from Lieu tenant Wilson, who, in his turn, was followed by a third similar invitation from Lieutenant Peck.

ishment at such a succession of visitors, but promised them all that he would not fail to accept their invitations in were lodged in the bank of Ireland.'

"By the holy!' replied the farmer, that ye're a mighty discent sort of a brute baste now, to be after thinking that I never before sat eyes on. And sare, Mr. Rooney ought to give ye a great big bating for the dirty suspicion upon his honor.'

"Get out of my house, you thief of the world,' roared out the landlord in the officer; what d'ye mane by it sur?

"Ay, bad manners t'ye,' rejoined the countryman, 'what d'ye mane, sur, by computing to Mr. Rooney that he is a robber, and the likes of that? buf barring yer ondacency, isn't there yerself there to the fore, ye spalpeen, to bear witness that I giv'd him the money? Get out of my louse had he like anough ye're a swinler yerself, and ye're trying at this moment to pick my pocket; but I knows the tricks of Dublin I can tell ye.' I knows the tricks of Dublin I can tell for, at the first fire. Mr. Noble's shot penetrated his temple, and he fell dead! Ye.'

The officer now saw that it was his fair. The two gentlemen were comturn to make an apology; which he did mitted to prison, tried by the Dutch by swearing that what he had said was law for murder, but acquitted, as it is enly a joke, and no offence in life,' after said, for want of sufficient evidence to ter which he called for a noggin of establish the fact of the duel having whiskey, and took his departure. The quiry was held, in respect to the causfreshment, bent his steps towards Elys ea of these unhappy affairs; and the repliace, where he reported progress to sult was, that Captain Elrington was Mr. Carran.

'Yery well,' said the counsellors decision of his Grace, the Commander Inow go back to the inn alone, and tell.

fussi into a personal affront.
It was then unanimously agreed a monest nine officers present, that they should draw lots which of them was to call Captain Bull out. The lot fell probably felt a like disposition to convict. They were acquitted therefore, but against the strong and pointed directions of the judge, Sir Henry Gwilim, who told the jury that it would be trifling with his own oath not to tell them nurder. They deliberated, or pre-ended to deliberate, for half an hour;

ries up to Heaven against you."

y a court martial, found guilty of the onspiracy against the life of Captair Bull and broke. The sentence was confirmed by the King, with an addi-tional clause, declaring them incapa-ble for ever again serving his Majesty. Mr. Williams expressed some aston. New Monthly.

> LATE FROM ENGLAND. ents of the New-York Gazette, and New-York Courier, for proof stips, and to the editors of the Evening Post. Commercial Advertiser, and Journal of Commerce, for the annexed extracts of Commerce, for the annexed extracts from London papers to the 7th and Liverpool to the 8th of April, and Lluyd's shipping lists to the 5th inclusive.
>
> "Clouds and darkness" still rest upon the affairs of the East, and the designs both of Russia and the Porte are yet veiled in obscurity. The following paragraph is from the London Courier of the 5th—the latest evening pare from the British Capital.—The as per from the British Capital. The as sertions are made with a degree of con-fidence which indicates an access to fidence which indicates an access to the best sources of information.

RUSSIA AND TURKEY.
The latest advices from Constantinople, through Vienna, and from St. Petersburgh, by the Paris papers of Wednesday and one dated Thursday, have not added any new fact of importance to those which bave already been commingated in this papers. But it is neto those which have aiready been com-municated in this paper... But it is ne-cessary to re state mem. became no many erroneous accounts have been published, from which the public might be induced to believe that every thing account and in a cein of amicable and municated in this paper... But it is necessary to re state them, because so many erroneous accounts have been the beautiful the substitute of an inching has transpired, published, from which the public might but they are generally approach to be induced to believe that every thing but they are generally approach to be favourable, as nothing to the common was not only in a train of amicable adjustment between Turkey and Russia justment between Turkey and Russia and other indications of a warlike change of the transpired to the part of the Austrian government, and other indications of a warlike change of the foreign mission, to return to the Treaty of Action the tenor of some of the foreign kerman and to pay Russia a certain sum of money. There is no truth in these assertions. The Russian troops have not passed the Pruth, but the day fixed for the passage to the 18th fast. The Benezier Nicholas sett off for the army should week afterwards. Thirkey, though she granted a three mouth's armistics to the Greeks, has not yet takes any 'steps that can warrant us in supposing she intends to account of the control of th rant us in supposing she intends to accede to such conditions as would be cede to such conditions as would in-dece, Rassia to idensit from war. On the contrary, the latest advices left her increasing her main Army at Adriano-ple and strengthening the forts of the

Thursday April 3.]
CONSI AN FINOPLE, Feb. 26
A Hatti Bebeir of the Sultan calls to arms all the population of the environs of the capital and of the Dardanelles. The attention of the Government seems to be directed more to the capital than ien Pacha, will shortly set out for Addianople, to which place he has been preceded by a great number of regular and irregular troops.

The Chief-Admiral Izzet is gone to the Dardanelles, where the vessels lately equipped, have joined the vessels of Tahir Pacha, which have returned from Mytylene. It is doubted wheth-er the plans and projects of the Ameri-can officers for closing the canal will be carried into effet. Cazi Mustapha, der the head of "Private Correspondence," from Vienna, March 25:-

he people under its protection, seemed on have been the principal motives which have induced the Russian Cabi sia makes an essential difference of this occasion between the question which concerns itself exclusively, and that of the intervention; and though it promises to conform punctually to toe Treaty of the 6th July, and protests that it has no riews of conquest, it considers a longer naction as incompatible with its ho-nour, and intends to make the affairs of Greece subordinate to its own. It is supposed, therefore, to have given to Contracting Powers the assurance. the Contracting Powers the assurance, that it will remain attached to the intervention, only so far as its object shall be the independence of Greece.

The Emperor Nicholas intended to teave St. Petersburg on the 20th April, r the army. the army. There was a general illumination in Petersburg on account of the peace with Persia. Billing's Liverpool Advertiser of A pril 6, gives the following in a post-script, under the date of London Sunlay evening, April 6.

·Government received noon. M. de Nayler immediately set out for Berlin to spend the Easter hold days, it is said.

From the Quotidienne.

Jassy, March 15-I lately informed you that a great movement had taken place in the Russian army, and that was announced. I am now able to in was announced. I am now able to inform you with certainty, that the Russian army has received orders to concentrate itself, in order to be able, on the first signal, to pass the Pruth and Danube. War is definitely declared against the Porte by Russia—a circumstance which has caused great joy in the army of the latter nation, as well has among most part of the inhabitants of Jassey. The great number of troops Willa, the bonfires kindled for several to three parts, under the command of Counts Wittgenstein; Worenzow and Peter Pahlen. Gen. Diebitch is join ed to Wittgenstein as Chief of the Staff. This army consists of the fol-The second and third division of gred of the force destined to act against the Ottoman Porte. If it be consider to produce its effects.

The Greek Patriarch, with who The Greek Patriarch, with whom there was probably a private under standing, to escape this embarrassing intervention, received a Hatti Scheriff of the Sultan, which offered to the Greek insurgents, pardon, oblivion of the past, moderation of the taxes, in short, all the advantages offered by the Reis Effendi in the conference on the Cambric do. Swiss Muslia Points (Cambric do. Swiss (Cambric do. Swiss Muslia Points (Cambric do. Swiss (Ca Reis Effendi in the conference on the 23d November; and, besides a delay of three months, during which hostilities should be suspended. At the same time it is rumoured that orders have been sent to Ibrahim Pacha to observe this kind of armistice. To day four Commissioners are gone to Smyrna, with this Hatti Scheriff. This concession has trangulized all minds and ion has tranquilized all minds and sion has tranquilized all minds and gives great reason to hope for peace, if the views of the allies are still unanimous.

Berlin, March 27—(Private corres-

Berlin, March 27—(Private correspondence)—We expect to day his Royal Highness the Prince of Orange who is going to St. Petersburg. We learn that the Prince is to have a command in the Russian army of operations:—Lieut. Gen. Scholer, our Ambassador at St. Petersburgh will accompany the Imperor to Bessarabia.

It is said that in consequence of the

It is said that in consequence of the special representations of a great power. General U—, who is imprisoned in the fortress of Spandau, for taking a part in the Polish conspiracy, will spon be set at liberty. An extraord Department is observed in the Foreign lar treaty of Alliame with a particulated by a great power, the result which might be, that Prussia would take mily affairs are at the same that to treated of, they are only of a second importance and have in no expet of tributed to cause the Prince's depart

TURKS AND GREEKS.

Advices from Trieste to the g
March, mention that the Greek sh boat cruising in the Ioolan Se, to taken a great many pirates. As en from Constantinople was expected Coffe.

Corfu.

A Turkish force on the frantiers
Bosnia, had alarmed the inhibite considerably. The troops in that aince had been augmented and supplied. A tax had been impa supplied. A tax had been laps upon the inhabitants by the Peri, contributions of corn and cattle levi hat were ready.

that some negotiation was going on A Marseilles article, dated the March, mentions the force there ittle more than 5000 men; 'the be employed in protecting the or zation of an independent Gorens in Greece, and in taking posses of the Island before the Dardanese order to command the channel, il a should succeed in taking posses Constantinople." The Couriers

New & Cheap STORE.

Charles Munroe, Has just opened in the Store is occupied by Mrs Penrice, GENERAL ASSORTMENT SEASONABLE & PARCY

Dry Goods.

onsisting in part of the following ticles, viz. Black, Blue, &c. Superfine Cloths Cassimeres, da Common assinetts, Flannels & Rose Bin Black Circassian, Bombazetts ing, Drillings and Nankets Valencia, Silk and Marselles

Gauze do. Crape Shawls, Black Italian Lustring, Florences, White, Blue, Green, Barage, Ladies Leghorn Hats,

Libbons, Bobbinett, Bobbinett Thread Laces and Edgings Hair Puffs and Curls, Lave

Capes, adles and Gentlemen's Silk, Co and Worsted Hose, do. Gloves, alicoes and Ginghams, Umbrell Parasolls, Irish Linens, Lawns, Shoo Bleached and Unbleached

Domestic Plaids and Stripesick, Bed Ticking, Cords & Va WITH A VARIETY

Queen's Ware, Ha Ware GROCERIES. All of which have been part in Philadelphia and Baltimore, the best terms, and are offered for the lowest rates for GASH.

Annapolis, May 15. The Sale Of the property aftertised (a fourth page,) by John J. Dont and will take plage on Wanza May) jostane.

ANNAPOLIS Thirsday, May 15, 1828.

OCTOBER ELECTION.

JACKSON MEETING.

For the Maryland Gazette. Freing as I do, a devotion for our matry which increases with age, and the can never be extinguished but life. I hope you will excuse the while corruption rilling, they cannot. The evidence bargain is too plain, and the circumdisself, in a card that he addressed to expublic, to expose Mr. Adams addressed trespecting that treaty. This maise he has never fulfilled;—but such is known to warrant the belief. But his disregard to the dams during that period; he also de wed part of his time in writing letters, te gigantic power of Great Britain. ding this very time that he was ridi

Adams was m

uents. But

rit was declared, and the genemy anded our shores, we could see the redealist and Democrat fighting side side with the same holy ardour, and eume object, the protection of our The fifth regiment from Baltimore, with the gallant and lamented Sterrett after head, won for themselves impe-falable honour on the fields of Bladenscomined many Federalists, and their commander was also a Federalist. Can hine single mainter was also a retraint.

Me men recollect all their devotion to their cerentry, and forgive the unatoned for injuries of John Q. Adams, who fart apostatised, and then alandered form? Can the people of the West Piport aman who was willing, at the brait of Ghent, to give to the British far who of navigating the Mississippir fars frunting to them a free highway thruth the heart of our country? Can fart time between Messrs. Adams and Clay, which was never made up until Mr. Adams was before the house a standidate for the Presidency and the Henry Clay solicit Amis Kendall in republish his stetters to John Q. Adams conduct at Geat, and after Kendall refused to them, did not Mr. Clay presidents. ach men recollect all their devotion our count good sense try will ye corruption day in Oct which them, did not Mr. Clay pry. William Tanner one hundred dollar-multiplian those eletters," although he is publish those eletters," although he premiers although he withough he withough he will of me with a could not seem to see that would have an a see that would have an although the world not seem to see that we will not see that a see that we will not see th of their representatives, and of the man as a day of the strength. Anne-A THE duty community of sument, f