

A MOTHER'S GIFT.—THE GIRL.
Remember, love, who gave thee this,
When other days shall come;
When she, who had thy earliest kiss,
Sleeps in her narrow home,
Remember 'twas a mother gave
The gift, to one she'd die to save,
The mother sought a pledge of love,
The boldest for her son,
And from the gift of God above,
She chose a goodly one,
The source of light, and life, and joy!
And bade him keep the gift—that when
The parting hour would come,
They might have hope to meet again,
In an eternal home,
She said, his faith in that would be
Sweet incense to her memory,
And should the fond faith in his pride,
Laugh that would scatter to the wind,
And bid him cast the pledge aside,
That he from youth had borne—
She bade him pause, and ask his breast,
If he or she had loved him best,
A parent's blessing on her son,
Goes with this holy thing,
To love that would retain the one,
Must to the other cling,
Remember! 'tis no little toy,
A mother's gift—Remember boy!

SHAKSPEARE'S FOOLS.
From a very amusing periodical,
which came to a full stop some time ago,
we select the following sprightly critique on the character of Touchstone:
Here he comes, lugging in something after him. What Audrey! I can't speak to thee now, Audrey. Go along, Audrey. "The Gods have not made thee poetical." This fellow has been brought up at court, and then becomes fixed in a country life. He is a philosopher, but his humour is melancholy and satirical. It is not surprising that Jacques should take so strong a liking to him, as their minds are much of the same hue; only Touchstone is no misanthrope, because he had been no libertine. There never yet was satirist who did not "rail on lady Fortune," and waste his time in reflections on his fleeting nature, however he does it "wisely and in good set terms." His education among courtiers, and his daily experience with subjects of discourse. Nothing escapes him, not Audrey herself at every step she sets fresh game for his wit to shoot at; and is a mighty hunter in the forest of Arden. All base metals are tried and proved counterfeit by this Touchstone. "Who will set our pious sermons and moral treatises on the sin of duelling against his "flaming" the quarrel on the seventh cause." What ridicule he throws upon those nice distinctions which are to make it a gentleman draw his sword and put it in a scabbard; and how he sneers at the masked poltroonery of these men-of-valour, I was about to say, but mine Host of the Garter reminds me of a better word—of "crack water." The rules for quarrelling still exist, much in the same fashion, among our pistol-mongers; and I am convinced it is because they cannot study Shakspeare. Touchstone's satirist flies more direct to its object than that of any other of the motley tribe, and is more caustic and personal. He is a walking Juvenal "under the shade of melancholy boughs." Though he gives us a scrap of a stanza, and can rhyme to "the tight butter woman's safe to market," he neither sings nor loves singing. From mere idleness he asks the pages for a song, and then makes a most ungracious return. His having "no music in himself" is quite in character; and indeed to have read that the jaundice is often attended by a partial loss of hearing. Audrey's admiration of him, and her being, I have no doubt, a comely, brown, black-eyed girl, may have effected somewhat; tho' I suspect the chief cause of his paying court to her, with no hurry to be married, was the want of a mental excitement in a pastoral life. I cannot love him so well as the others, but perhaps I love to read him more, as he, like Jacques, is full of matter.

In Chancery.
10th May, 1828.
John Smith, and others,
vs.
The heirs of Richard Medcalf.
The object of the bill filed in this case is to procure the chancellor's allowance of the registry of a deed, executed and acknowledged in the year eighteen hundred and two, by the said Richard Medcalf to a John Smith, for a tract of land called Shipley's Purchase, in Anne Arundel county. The complainants are the children and widow of the said John Smith and Richard Medcalf are dead; that the deed was fairly executed and acknowledged, that it was not recorded for neglect, and not from fraud; and that the said Medcalf has no heirs or legal representatives living, as they believe.

It is therefore Ordered, That the complainant cause a copy of the foregoing statement, and of this order, to be published in one of the newspapers of Annapolis, for three successive weeks, before the 10th day of June next, that the heirs, if any there are of the said Medcalf, may appear in this court on the tenth day of October next, to defend the said suit.

Interesting to Manufacturers and Capitalists.
Sale of the Cape Sable Alum and Copperas Works.
By virtue of a Decree of the High Court of Chancery of Maryland, the subscriber, as Trustee, will offer for sale at public auction, on MONDAY the 30th day of June next, at 12 o'clock, at the Cape Sable Works, all the LANDS, WORKS, APPARATUS, and PERSONAL PROPERTY, with the rights of MINES and MINERALS, of the CAPE SABLE COMPANY. These lands consist of the following tracts and part of tracts, containing 1010 ACRES—namely, 'Cape Sable', 'Oldfield', 'Marshall's Hunting Ground', 'Hall's Parcel', 'Gray's Dispute', 'Barren Hills', 'Gagle Hills', 'Gray's Range', 'Moosa's Addition', 'Mountain of Wales', 'Resurvey of the Mountain of Wales', 'Hallet's Lot Enlarged'. The Land and the Works are on Magothy River, a broad navigable stream emptying into the Chesapeake Bay, from which the property is but a few miles distant; being about 18 miles from Baltimore, and about 5 miles from Annapolis.

THE ALUM ORE is of the first quality, and in inexhaustible quantity upon the land, and easily procured. It takes fire spontaneously when dug, and is so rich in salts when oxidated that, as stated, each pound of ashes will yield a pound of saltpetre if suffered to be saturated. It is believed that the works are capable of affording a supply of alum from the ore of these islands sufficient for the whole of the United States, and at a very inconceivable expense. The product of copperas is stated to be large. The company also owns the right of mines and minerals or digging for ore in lands adjoining those above described, to the extent of about 876 acres, in the following among other tracts—Sturton's 'Rest', and 'Proctor's Park', 'Mountain of Wales', 'Hall's Parcel', 'Rockhold'. It is estimated that more than two thirds of the Company's lands is in wood, consisting of oak, Hickory, chestnut and pine. Of the latter a large portion is of that estimable timber called Magothy Yellow Pine, so highly valued for the deck of ships. The Works of Cape Sable consist of THREE EXTENSIVE STONE LABORATORIES, &c. with four lead boilers and one copper boiler, crystallizers, a steam engine, a large stone boiler and apparatus for evaporating, and every convenience deemed necessary to carry on the works on a large scale, together with DWELLING HOUSES for the managers and labourers. The works are in operation, and will continue so until the day of sale, and may be viewed at any time upon application to Mr. Lecheleiter, at the works, Richard Caton, Esq. Baltimore, or J. J. Speed, Esq. Annapolis.

THE PERSONAL PROPERTY to be sold consists of four Slaves for life—besides Horses, Mules, Asses and Oxen—Carts, Wagons, Ploughs and Harrows, Blacksmith's Tools, &c. and various implements used in the manufactory and for farming. There is also to be sold a quantity of Pyrites estimated at more than one thousand tons, and several thousand tons of Ashes which have been lixiviated, and would now yield, it is believed, on a second lixiviation five to ten per cent of salts. The terms of sale are that five thousand dollars of the purchase money shall be paid on the ratification of the sale by the Chancellor, with interest from the day of sale; and the residue of the purchase money in equal annual payments in 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 years, with interest from the day of sale.

In pursuance of the Decree, the Creditors of the Cape Sable Company are hereby notified to exhibit their claims with the vouchers thereof to the Chancery Office, within six months from the said day of sale.

Those inclined to purchase are requested to examine the premises previously to the day of sale. The title papers may be seen on application to Samuel Mosie, at his office in West Fayette street.

PROPOSAL FOR PRINTING
The Journals of the Conventions of the Province of Maryland,
Held in the City of Annapolis, in years 1774, 1775 and 1776.
If sufficient encouragement be offered, the Subscriber proposes to publish, in one volume octavo, the Journals of the Conventions of the Province of Maryland in the years 1774, '75, '76. It is believed that there are more than two copies of these Journals now extant, and from the circumstances that they were printed in paper form, and unbound, it may be concluded that they, too, must in a few years be destroyed by the mere decay of time. These Journals are the authentic evidence of the Political History of Maryland, during that interesting and unquiet period. Also, they are, in abundance, histories of Maryland, as connected with the Declaration of Provinces and Colonies, that time formed, for mutual protection against the improper assumption of power on the part of the Mother Country, yet none of these works ever were printed in England, and which may be termed its Domestic Internal Political History.

This part of the history of Maryland it should be her pride to look down to posterity, not only on account of its deep interest, but as a pillar of our liberties, and as a monument of her citizens, during a period of doubt and dismay. In the confident expectation that the citizens of Maryland will consider proposed publication of sufficient importance to entitle it to their patronage, the Subscriber is induced to publish these proposals.

THE DECISIONS OF THE COURT OF APPEALS OF MARYLAND,
To be Reported by Thomas Harrison Esquire, Clerk of the Courts of Appeals, and Reverend John E. Howard Esquire, Attorney at Law.
These Decisions will form a continuation of the first volume of Reports already published by Messrs Harris and Johnson, which closes with the year 1805. It is proposed to publish the Decisions in a Series of Numbered Volumes, each containing not less than one hundred and twenty-five pages, and Numbers to constitute a volume. The last number of each volume will contain a full and complete Index. This mode of publication, which gives decided advantages to that of publishing the Reports in bulky volumes, and as not more than 40 numbers will be published in a year, the expense will not be so sensibly felt.

MICHAEL LANE.
The Journal of Capt. A. Smith—
THE FEVER SHIP.
I sailed from Liverpool for Jamaica: after a pleasant voyage arrived at the place of destination and discharged my cargo. My vessel was called the "Charlotte," a tight brig, well found, loaded and navigated by 13 hands. I was intending to freight from that port for England before the setting in of the rainy season. This object I could only accomplish by using double diligence, affording a reasonable time for accidental delays. My brig was built sharp for speed, and I did not trouble myself about convoy, (it was during war) but could run a fair race with a common cutter; and we were obliged to make some heavy squalls, and I was obliged to show of painted ports and guns, for escaping capture by any vessel not possessing such an overwhelming superiority of force as would command confidence to run boldly in a storm of defence. I speedily shipped what provisions and necessaries I could get, and set sail. A breeze scarce sufficient to fill the canvass carried us out of Port Royal harbour. The sea was miserably "hot"; the heat of the sun, and the redness of the sky, were not long before sunset, and I intensely as the flame of a fever; Jamaica was very sickly; my vessel never had destroyed numbers of all new-comers speedily perished in victims. I had been fortunate to lose only two men during the voyage of 3 or 4 weeks, (Jack Wilson and Tom Waring) but they were the most sturdy and healthy men in the crew; the first died in thirty nine days after he was attacked, and the second, yet none of these were emigrants, were ill when we left, which I should have ascertained before we sailed. I imagined that put down to posterity, not only on account of its deep interest, but as a pillar of our liberties, and as a monument of her citizens, during a period of doubt and dismay.

In the confident expectation that the citizens of Maryland will consider proposed publication of sufficient importance to entitle it to their patronage, the Subscriber is induced to publish these proposals.
