THE LOST PILGRIM.
Not in the white tops of the glittering war,
Nor in the mansions of the hidden deep—
However green,
In its encased caves of mystery,
Shall the bright watcher have
A place, nor once again proud station keep Gone, Gone!
Oh! never more to cheer
The mariner, who holds his course alone,
On the Atlantic, thro' the weary night,
When the waves turn to watchers & to sleep
With the sweet fixations of certain light,
Shining upon the shut eyes of the deep
Oh! when the shepherd on Chaldean's hills
Watching his flocks—
Shall look in vain for thy pale beams to come
And warn him home—
And fall asleep upon the sky-kim'd rocks
How shall he wake when the bright dawn
The scene, to wanderer the weight of night
'E'en tho' her blessed mellowness drille
The quietude that never dwells with light
Vain, vain!
Of less than rain, shall be look forth,
In his sailor from his bark—
(How'er the North
Doth raise his certain lamp when tempest lower)
To catch the light of the lost star again—
Alas! in the destiny,
Shall be to him more weary, when the dawn
Falls to display the lone flame on her tower
A strain—a mellow strain
Of parting music fill'd the earth and sky—
The stars lamenting in unburrow'd pain,
That one of the selectest ones must die,
The brightest of their train!
Alas! in the destiny,
The shortest lived are loveliest,
And like you fell orb shooting down the sky
Are always brightest when about to fly
From the lone spot they blest!

REPORT
of the Managers of the Female
Orphan Society of Annapolis.
The Female Orphan Society of Annapolis, held a meeting on Monday the 17th instant, at which the following report was read:
The Managers of the Female Orphan Society of Annapolis, have a regretted to state, that at the several meetings of the Society, since its organization in compliance with the rules laid down in the said constitution, they are selected four of the most destitute objects that have come under their observation, and placed them under the care of a matron qualified to give them necessary instruction. The constitution prescribes an annual appointment of twelve Managers; who are authorized to elect their officers from their number. The present Managers have served out the prescribed time, but they have lately obtained a number of annual subscribers, who are of course members of the Society, and who took part in the election of the Managers; it is deemed expedient by the Board that a new appointment should be made by the Board at this time, and a future in the month of November next, the period of the annual meeting of the Society. The state of affairs, and the expenditures incurred, will be seen in the Statement of the Treasurer, which, with the Secretary's Record, are open for investigation. The Managers earnestly entreat the ladies who have united with them in the labour of love, to be personally active in their prosecution—they are anxious that every member of the Society should feel an individual interest in its prosperity; and should this be the case, we are fully persuaded the period is far distant, when this institution will be enabled to extend its operations, and its beneficial tendency be universally admitted.

From the returns of the election in different states, that no doubt remain of the election of ANDREW JACKSON as President of the United States of America, and the re-election of JOHN C. CALHOUN as Vice President, by an overwhelming majority. This pleasing information, must be hailed as a great and signal triumph by all the republicans, by all who are opposed to the odious system of Secret Resignation. Truth is great and must prevail. The voice of the people is sacred in a republican government, and must not be disregarded, must not be tampered with, must not be tampered with, must not be tampered with. Those who in congress voted against the will of their constituents, may now be the commentators on their acts, in the eyes of an indignant people. We are not only not only make a lasting impression on those political renegades, but will have a salutary effect upon all the more political aspirants.
While we offer our mutual congratulations upon this pleasing result, let us hold forth the olive branch to our opponents. Peace and good will to all men, be our motto. Let us respect their feelings, sympathize with them in their sufferings, and unite earnestly in the support of the next administration, which being founded by the people, will be administered for the benefit of the country, and the happiness of the people.

COMMUNICATED.
A Gentleman in the neighbourhood of Annapolis, was addressed by his Overseer in the following style:

Query—What did he mean?

October, 1828.
To the Editor of the Md. Gazette
Dear Sir,
I enclose you a song, which is said the Adams men intend singing from one end of the state to the other, as soon as they ascertain they have beat old Hickory—indeed it is supposed they now sing it privately to encourage their ranks to do their best.
Ye Adams men of Maryland,
Of feuds the very best,
Who have rav'd for several years,
Against the Hickory trees,
One glorious effort make again,
To match your rising foe,
You must leap, you must creep,
If into life you would go—
The election will not last so long,
And into office we must go.
The spirits of your fathers
Will start from every grave,
For truth it was their shield of fame,
And their country they would save,
But ye, poor feuds, how do you fall
Beneath your ancestors how low,
As you leap, and you creep,
Into office you will go,
The election will not last so long,
And into office you would go.
Oh! Johny needs your bulwarks,
That into office he may creep,
For he would march o'er your graves,
His present place to keep,
With thundering lies this man of oak
Decries his friends below,
And he swears, o'er and o'er,
To ties both mean and low,
But the election will not last so long,
And into office we must go.
The apostate flag of Adams,
Shall yet terrific burn,
'Till every danger do depart,
And chance for place return.
Then, then, ye Adams voters,
Our song and feat shall flow
With the fame of his name,
Tho' apostate, we will go,
Where the Hickory tree is seen no more,
And our vote has laid it low.
This is to be sung to the tune of the "Maidens of England"—which will fully prove the truth of the charge of British influence—
And will probably go far enough to prove bribery and corruption somewhere—which I have already suspected since Mr. Adams sent Mr. Sargent on the mission to the moon. Do you not think, his selecting a man of that name would go far to prove his secret fondness for military rule.
Yours,
A SUBSCRIBER.

NAVAL ARCHITECTURE.
To the Editor of the National Gazette:
Sir—One who has had the opportunity of seeing some of the best built ships of war, both in England and France; and who has witnessed the progress of the sloop of war VARDALIA, (recently launched at the Navy Yard,) from the laying of her keel to the present period, feels a confidence in asserting that, in point of model, materials, workmanship and all the essentials of a ship of her class, she stands unrivalled. The powerful armament and unique arrangements of her gun-decks, the economical appropriation of space on her birth deck, uniting neatness with convenience, are calculated to please as well as to instruct every class of officers in the naval service. The eye of the intelligent and experienced officer will readily discover the important improvements that have emanated from the Navy Department and Board of officers within the last two years, and feel a pride and confidence in their practical utility. Great credit is due to Commodore BAINBRIDGE, as well as to the Naval Architect and Mechanic, in building, and those employed in fitting out this ship, for the masterly style in which she is finished and prepared for service. The high character of our naval architects, and the almost unceasing improvements making in the science, is a source of pride to all, because it is magnanimously accorded to us by some of the best judges attached to the two great naval powers in Europe—and without making any exceptional comparison, Pennsylvania may justly claim the pre-eminence. Independent of the comparatively small expense of maintaining this valuable class of vessels in service, it is principally to them, in time of peace, that we must be indebted for an efficient protection to our widely extended commerce, as well as for affording an important school to those rising aspirants in an arm of national defence which, in the event of war, must sooner or later constitute the axis and bulwark of our country.

At Wheeling, on the 12th instant, the Ohio river was 5 feet, 6 inches above low water mark.

AN EXTRAORDINARY AGREEMENT.
An honourable senator of the U. S. member of the Bar, and supporter of the present administration, received from a Jacksonian, one hundred dollars, as a consideration for an agreement in writing to pay the Jacksonian one cent for the first electoral vote above one hundred and thirty, which Gen. Jackson will obtain, two cents for the second, four for the third, eight for the fourth, and so on doubling for each additional vote. It will be amusing to examine the following calculation extended only to thirty votes, which number at least it is probable Gen. Jackson will receive above 150. It may be gratifying to the senator's friends to learn, that the Jacksonian has liberally offered to release him on payment of $10,000.

MURDER.
An atrocious murder was committed in Washington county, in this state, on the night of the 4th inst. Miss Rebecca M'Crory, left her father's late in the evening, to visit her sister. The next day it was discovered she had not been at her sister's, and the following morning her body was found near the great road, less than a half a mile from her father's house—her throat cut from ear to ear, both her hands considerably mangled, and some indistinct marks, or prints of fingers about and over her mouth, and a mark on her breast! In her hand was a rough edged old case-knife, and her arm fixed with the hand to the neck, that a suspicion might arise that she had committed suicide! The old knife in her hand had no blood on its conclusive evidence that the bloody deed had not been perpetrated with that knife.
Suspicion has fallen upon a man by the name of Nixon, and he has been committed.

POSTSCRIPT

OHO PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.
The State Journal of the 13th instant, printed at Columbus, contains returns from all the counties in Ohio. In 44 counties the returns are complete, and in the remainder, the majorities have been ascertained. From these it appears that there were given For the Jackson electoral ticket 54,200 votes.
For the Adams do do 50,307

Majority for the Jackson ticket 3,893
So that the Jackson Electors are chosen by the majority just stated. In reference to the returns, the State Journal says—
It is possible, that when the votes shall be fully counted out by the proper officers—a business in which they are now engaged, and which will probably require until Saturday to get through with—some errors may be discovered in the above, tho' not sufficient in amount to change the result.

KENTUCKY.
The National Intelligencer publishes a letter from Lexington, under date of 8th inst. which says—
"There is no longer any doubt about the result of the Election in this State. The majority in favour of Jackson is decisive, even large. The August majorities in the Administration counties have been diminished, while those in the Jackson counties have been increased. I consider the result in Indiana very doubtful."

NEW-YORK.
The actual result of the Presidential Election in New-York is at length ascertained. The Albany Argus of Saturday last says:
St. Lawrence having been heard from at last, gives about 400 for the Administration electors, which secures that district for Mr. Adams. The electoral vote of this state, therefore, stands as follows:

Latest from England.

The packet ship Sylvanus Jenkins, at New-York, from Liverpool, brings advices to the 11th ultimo, inclusive. The English grain markets were still on the rise; and we proceed, in the first place, to lay before our readers the fullest accounts on this subject which have been received.
A letter from Liverpool of the 11th of October, says, in relation to the grain market—"There has been a very extensive business going forward during the week, chiefly on speculation, and prices of all descriptions have advanced materially—wheat little bonded wheat is offering—wheat being on willing to submit to the high prices asked, and holders are in expectation of its being shortly released at a low duty—Indian corn may be quoted at 40 a 42s. per qr. and flour in bond 3s. 38s. per bbl. a fresh arrival of the latter would probably bring somewhat more."

RUSSIA & TURKEY.
It is now nearly certain that the Russians will be compelled to fall back from before Choumla, and take up their winter quarters. The Journal des Debats of the 7th October contains another Russian bulletin under date of September 2d, which complies in sad terms of the want of forage before that fortress, and says, that it will compel the Russians to make a retrograde movement. "If then adds," says the Morning Herald, "that the head quarters of the second army will be again transferred to Jemibazary; that the hospitals and heavy artillery had already taken that route; and that the army itself would probably begin to move on the 12th or 13th. This important intelligence is conclusive as to the difficulties in which the Russians are entangled. It is also the clearest possible indication of the extraordinary activity displayed by the Turkish cavalry, who, as the last advices from Constantinople stated, constantly hovered round the Russian army, and extended their excursions as far as the Danube.
The Turkish Bulletin received at Boston via Smyrna, was received in Paris on the 7th October, together with still another bearing date at Choumla, Sept. 2d, three days later—it is as follows:—
On Sunday, the 31st of August, the Seraskier sent 7000 horse under Alish Pacha, to harass the rear of the enemy's camp. This General proceeded to ward Jemibazary, four leagues from Choumla, and having attacked with impetuosity the little Russian camp which was there, an action ensued, which continued four whole hours, the result of which, by the favour of the Almighty, was most glorious to the Ottoman arms. The Russians were defeated and obliged to retreat into the surrounding woods. The enemy lost 200 killed, and 30 prisoners in the affair. A pretty considerable number of cavalry horses, and above 200 oxen which fell into our hands, were distributed among the troops. We set fire to 100 provision wagons.
The next day our troops attacked 150 Russian Hulans on their retreat, half of whom were killed, and the rest taken prisoners. Among the latter are three superior officers, and a Commissary. They said they had been lately sent to the head quarters of the Field Marshal before Silistria, to carry their pay to the troops besieging that place, and were to go on their return to Jemibazary, when they fell into our hands. We took from them 120 horses, and 250,000 silver piastres, all of which were distributed among the troops. The papers, letters and accounts, found up on the Commissary, have been sent to the Porte by the Seraskier.
The enemy has abandoned the positions of Mararen, Velibay and Timurdiki, to retreat a league beyond them. The Seraskier continues his arrangements to force the enemy to an absolute retreat.
A letter bearing date, Constantinople, Sept. 18th, says—The Turks are still in the intoxication of victory, but great alarm had been excited by the landing of the Russians near Bourgas. On receiving this news the grand Vizier had stopped at Adrianople. He appears to have entered into concert with Hussein Pacha to attempt to relieve Varna. The measures for the defence of the capital are actively prosecuted. On the 7th of Sept. 15,000 Kurdish cavalry landed at the Dardanelles, and at the environs of Constantinople took the road to Choumla.
Other letters of the 14th September, from Constantinople, the contents of which are briefly as follows: The capture of the small port of Bourgas on the Black Sea is confirmed; it was, however, only two hours in possession of the Russian squadron; the inhabitants assembled from parts of the surrounding country, & having driven in the Russian outposts, the whole of the troops re-embarked. The Sultan remains at Constantinople, and it is now stated that the standard of Mahomet will not be unfurled, as the Tartars have brought intelligence from the frontiers, that the Russian soldiers are in such a miserable state, from the climate and disease, and the want of food, that they are unable to withstand the furious sorties from the Turkish garrison. A reinforcement of 10,000 men, with a supply of provisions, is ordered to Varna, and the report was, that the fleet would proceed to raise the blockade of Varna, and cut off the chance which the Russian armies have in passing into winter quarters by their transports to Odessa.
