EDITORIAL NOTICES
The Ladies' Literary Port Folio bids fair to stand at the head of publications of its class. The acknowledged talents of its principal editor, (who has for a number of years been engaged in similar works,) and of his able literary coadjutors, will certainly give it a character, which few others possess. Wellsburg, (Va) Gaz.
The Ladies' Department is conducted by one of the most distinguished female writers of our country.
Rockingham, (Va) Register.
It is more elevated and chaste in its character than the generality of similar publications, &c.
Utica; (N. Y.) Intelligencer.
In point of literary merit and mechanical execution it surpasses every similar publication we have yet seen. &c. Watertown, (N. Y.) Register.
Indeed it is altogether a superior work. New York Mirror and Ladies' Literary Gazette.

Swain's Panacea
For the cure of Scrofula or King's Evil, Syphilis and Mercurial Diseases, Rheumatism, Ulcerous Sores, White Swellings, Diseases of the Liver and Skin, General Debility, &c. and all diseases arising from Impure blood. It has also been found beneficial in Nervous and Dyspeptic complaints.
Price Two Dollars per bottle, and Twenty Dollars per Dozen.

TO THE PUBLIC.
In consequence of the numerous frauds and impositions practiced in reference to my medicine, I am again induced to change the form of my bottles. In future, the Panacea will be put up in round bottles, fitted longitudinally, with the following words blown in the glass, "Swain's Panacea—Phila'da."
These bottles are much stronger than those heretofore used, and will have but one label, which covers the cork, with my own signature on it, so that the cork cannot be drawn without destroying the signature, without which none is genuine. The medicine must consequently be known to be genuine when my signature is visible; to counterfeit which, will be punishable as forgery.
The increasing demand for this celebrated medicine, has enabled me to reduce the price to two dollars per bottle, thus bringing it within the reach of the indigent.
My Panacea requires no enjoining its astonishing effects and wonderful operation, have drawn; both from Patients and Medical Practitioners of the highest respectability, the most unqualified approbation, and established for it a character, which every pen, that dipped in gall, can never tarnish.
The false reports concerning this valuable medicine, which have been so diligently circulated by certain Physicians, have their origin either in envy, or in the mischievous effects of its spurious imitations.
The Proprietor pledges himself to the public, and gives them the most solemn assurance, that this medicine contains neither mercury, nor arsenic, nor any deleterious drug.
The public are cautioned not to purchase my Panacea, except from persons who shall purchase from any other persons.
Wm SWAIN,
Philadelphia, Sept. 1828
From Doctor Valentine Mott, Professor of Surgery in the University of New York, Surgeon of the New York Hospital, &c. &c.
I have repeatedly used Swain's Panacea, both in the Hospital and in private practice, and have found it to be a valuable medicine in chronic, syphilitic and scrofulous complaints, and in obstinate cutaneous affections.
Valentine Mott, M. D.
New York, 1st mo. 25, 1828.
From Doctor William P. Dewees, Adjunct Professor of Midwifery in the University of Pennsylvania, &c. &c.
I have much pleasure in saying, I have witnessed the most decided and happy effects in several instances of inveterate disease, from Mr. Swain's Panacea, where other remedies had failed—one was that of Mrs. Brown.
Wm. P. Dewees, M. D.
Philadelphia, Feb. 20, 1823.
From Doctor James Mease, Member of the American Philosophical Society, &c. &c.
I cheerfully add my testimony in favour of Mr. Swain's Panacea, as a remedy in Scrofula. I saw two inveterate cases perfectly cured by it, after the usual remedies had been long used without effect—those of Mrs. O'Brien and Mrs. Campbell.
James Mease, M. D.
Philadelphia, Feb. 12, 1823.

THE DEATH OF ALICE BLAND.
(By the author of Tales of a Pilgrim.)
Autin, I am domiciled once more under your roof—I have my appointed chair at your hospitable board—and I walk at eventide in the shade of the ancestral trees that embower your mansion. Your Laura, mated in her beauty, baile me every morning with benignant smiles; and your two fair children daily disport of innocent gaiety around my knees. You ask me what has become of that sister of whom I used to speak so often, when we were sojourner in the American wilderness—her whom I was wont to regard as the only star that beckoned me back to my native country. The subject is a sad one; but to you, faithful friends, I can find nothing. Pardon me if I can find my pen dwells too long on a few simple incidents. Some allowances may surely be made for the proximity of chastened grief.
Alice was my only sister—the sole survivor of all my kindred; and I felt therefore no marvel that I felt deeply distressed when intelligence of her illness reached me to a distant land.—Nearly ten years had elapsed since our separation. She was then a fair-haired, bright-eyed child, in her seventh year—I a heedless and reckless, somewhat headstrong youth, fifteen years her senior—and a quarter of a century to exchange my quiet home for the tented field. I soon forgot, amid the turmoil of war, the solemn farewell of our widowed mother; but I never lost remembrance of the tearful eyes and last gentle caresses of the darling of our household.
Five years afterwards my brother followed me to the army. You may remember, Autin; that it was soon after we had given the French battle of the Ebro, that he joined our ranks—and as brave and generous hearted a youth as Britain ever sent forth to fight her battles. Before the expiration of a month, you say him stricken down; his life by my side; Green; forever green; by the Navy's valley in which his young bones lie buried! A brother's hand wiped the last drops of agony from his blood-dew'd brow—a brother's glance along could now discover his spotless grave.
The Spanish war terminated triumphantly for our country. Thin as reeds and daisy as Moors, from 18 years' exposure to a burning sun; honoured, too, with some memorials of our services, we looked forward, with joy to the peace and joy to the day that should return us to our kindred. In the very moment of these anticipations, the commission came when we were the victors of thousands of our some returning soldiers, sweeping

I soon forgot, amid the turmoil of war, the solemn farewell of our widowed mother; but I never lost remembrance of the tearful eyes and last gentle caresses of the darling of our household.
Five years afterwards my brother followed me to the army. You may remember, Autin; that it was soon after we had given the French battle of the Ebro, that he joined our ranks—and as brave and generous hearted a youth as Britain ever sent forth to fight her battles. Before the expiration of a month, you say him stricken down; his life by my side; Green; forever green; by the Navy's valley in which his young bones lie buried! A brother's hand wiped the last drops of agony from his blood-dew'd brow—a brother's glance along could now discover his spotless grave.
The Spanish war terminated triumphantly for our country. Thin as reeds and daisy as Moors, from 18 years' exposure to a burning sun; honoured, too, with some memorials of our services, we looked forward, with joy to the peace and joy to the day that should return us to our kindred. In the very moment of these anticipations, the commission came when we were the victors of thousands of our some returning soldiers, sweeping

MISCELLANY.
The following truly poetical lines, are from the third number of WHITT'S American Monthly Magazine. We have got up the works but such a piece of poetry would redress a wilderness of faults. [Y & C Journal.]
CHANGES.
The Willow trembles in gold,
Over the yielding main,
And when upon the shore uprolled,
They gather up sighs.
They get themselves of the wind,
These children of in storm,
Leave the green land behind.
Life's billows on life's charming sea
Come always to Death's Shore,
Some with a calm content, and free,
Some with hollow roar,
They break and are no longer seen,
Yet still they defying time,
Bided, and of different main,
They roll from clime to clime.
All water courses find the main;
The main sinks back to earth
Life settles in the grave—again,
The grave hath life and birth;
Flowers bloom above the sleeping dust,
And thus from death the spirit must
To life back its way.
Life hath its range eternally,
Like water, changing forms,
This mist go up from the sea,
And get into the storm,
To fresh the drooping land,
To doth this life, exist and wane,
And last, and expand.
