ANNAPOLIS: Thursday, September 17, 1829.

HYMENEAL.

Married on Thursday evening last, by the Rev. Mr. Blenheim, Lieut. Francis Harrison, of the United States Army, to Miss Susan, daughter of General Richard Haswell, (of Tbo.)

We learn that a most atrocious murder was committed near West River, in this county, on Saturday last. The body of a free coloured woman, much bruised, was discovered, confined by a rope fastened about her neck to the root of a peach tree. The tree was nearly torn from the ground by the struggles of the unfortunate victim, in her vain efforts to free herself. We refrain from giving the particulars which have reached us relative to this diabolical affair, inasmuch as they are contained in a statement made by two children of the deceased—a boy and a girl—both of whom, on account of their colour, are incompetent witnesses against those who accuse. For the same reason, justice may slumber for a time, but so sure as the "Recording Angel" has registered this bloody deed in Heaven, its authors will be punished here or hereafter.

Vengeance Divine to punish sin moves slow The slower its pace, the surer is its blow.

For the Maryland Gazette. The summer is gone, the winter is near— How fleeting and transient has been the year— How many alas! have been called to that hour— From whence if they wish'd, they can never return!

Death's mantle, o'er all that I've lov'd has been spread— My Parents, my Sister, my Brothers are dead! All relations have slept—not a drop now of the red blue of life—but what flows in my veins.

My God! make me thankful, that I have been spar'd, In the fate of my friends that I have not shar'd— The arms of death now encircle all kin— The mansions of peace, there rest they within.

But the morn is approaching when they shall arise, At the trumpet's dread sound and appear in the skies— There join with millions triumphantly singing of Him, who has saved them from sin.

When the dread word, predestin'd, shall come— To whom shall we hence—be my trust in the Son, Protected by Him—all terrors will have, Will triumph o'er sin, o'er death and the grave.

On the verge of the tomb behold! now I stand— My God—thy supreme command— Thy will has been obey'd, which bound me to earth, And I long for a new, for a Heavenly birth.

The swift wheels of time are rolling around, When the last of my line will be laid in the ground, When the breast shall be press'd by the cold earth and soil, My soul will have fled to the home of his God. AULALBA.

For the Maryland Gazette. DEFENCE OF THE RENOWNED ORDEAL OF DANDIES. By Charles B. Stone, Student.

I hope that none of my brethren of the noble fraternity will think it presumption in me, being but an unworthy member, to attempt any defence of our ancient and far famed order. Not that I believe it to be impossible to do as a task, but that I should think of making its defence, when it possesses so many wondrous powers of greater ability and ingenuity than I think of the many strong and insurmountable arguments, which even I, unskilled as I am, can urge, and also when I consider, that if foiled, there are so many numerous champions, who are ready to draw the sword in my support. It is not, as I have said before, a needless task for who, at the present time, is leisurely looking over our periodical papers, I suddenly met with an anonymous piece headed "Dandies." It is not being quite time to perform my duty of promoting, and being in a better humour than usual, on account of having that evening caud my supporters for the first time in a new pair of pants, (of which more anon.) I did, with little exertion, manage to grope my way through this heterogeneous collection of nonsense. Among other equally silly and needless remarks, I found the following, which you may also find and condemn, will copy: "We might notice that sport of (an) amiable, I suppose," which has

VALUABLE APPLICATION. The scum from boiling molasses spread upon tarred brown paper gives, we are desired to say by one who has recently tried it, effectual and prompt relief to the most violent sprains. Our informant states that he met with to severe a sprain on Monday, in jumping from a vessel to the wharf, that he was unable to walk, and had the cords of his leg and foot so drawn up that he was for some time in the most excruciating pain. A friend suggested the above named application, which gave immediate relief, and he was able yesterday to walk to his place of business.

Much excitement was produced in town near New York last week. A young lady resident there, from her beauty and more substantial attractions had no lack of wooers. Amongst them were a wealthy and respectable brewer, and an oilman in considerable trade. Each of these gentlemen, it appears, thought himself the favoured swain—the former on the strength of a declaration that 'the man of her heart dealt in Aops,' and the latter because when he pressed his suit the fair one replied, 'the man I love cuts capers!' but, after all, their hopes and fears were ended by the astounding intelligence that she had eloped on Monday last with a dancing master! SOMNAMBULISM. A Scotch paper gives an account of a curious case of somnambulism on board a ship recently returned from a Foreign voyage. The Captain had stored his cabin with excellent Brandy for himself and crew, and it happened that in whatever state the bottle was left at night, in the morning it was found missing two inches or more. This occurred night after night, and the crew being accused of purloining the precious drink, resolved to watch and detect if possible the nocturnal thief. About midnight the nocturnal tipler, and seizing a light, entered the cabin half in terror and half the Captain had seized the laundress bottle and was about swallowing a huge casker, when the men awoke him to his no small amazement and wonder. All hands were immediately piped and the contents of the bottle sacrificed by way of curing the Captain of his nocturnal tricks.

A correspondent of the N. Y. Commercial Advertiser, gives the following account of the steam boat New Philadelphia on her way from N. York to Albany, running down a sloop at an anchor in the North River.

ALBANY, Friday, 5 o'clock, P. M. The New Philadelphia, which left New York last evening, with between two and three hundred passengers had an elegant run during most of her passage. About three o'clock this morning, a loud and sudden crash brought every passenger in an instant to his feet, and in the next instant upon deck. A thick haze, or fog had come over the atmosphere, which rendered it impossible to discern objects at any distance. But the engine was stopped, and it was immediately discovered that we had run down a small sloop, freighted with stone.

In an instant afterwards she went to the bottom; but the banis on board, consisting of two men and a boy, were picked up and saved. It seems that this vessel was lying in the stream, without a light! No blame can therefore be attached to the captain, or to any officer of the New Philadelphia. The violence of the shock was so great, that two of the paddles of the harbour wheel were broken off, some other timbers slightly shattered, and the axle of the wheels started out of place. The panic among the passengers was of but short duration.

PARRICIDE. The Narristown, Pa. Register, announces the death of Major General Wm. Brooke, of Delaware county, afflicted by the hands of his son, Thomas Brooke. The particulars of this dreadful act are omitted, the perpetrator being under arrest to be dealt with according to law. The editor says of the deceased—

"Gen. Brooke was a soldier of the revolution, and a firm friend to his country, in the hour of danger. He was a brave and a good man, and of his sterling worth and usefulness to society, the large circle of friends and acquaintances he has left can testify. After suffering the privations and hardships of the war of independence, and living to see his country prosperous and happy, he has fallen at the age of 83 years a victim to the brutal passions of him, who should have been the staff and support of his declining years."

ELIZABETH CITY, (N. C.) Sept. 9. MURDER.—We learn that a man by the name of Fry Wilkins, of Currituck county, who has been so the habit of abusing his wife, murdered her last week. After he had committed the act, he made a coffin, and was about interring the body, when he was overtaken by a jury of inquest, and while they were examining it, Wilkins made his escape. He was pursued, but before he would suffer himself to be taken, had one of his legs nearly shot off. We presume he has been committed to jail to undergo a trial.—Star.

Lately, at the Brattleborough, Vermont, Lyceum, the question debated was whether early marriage was productive of more good than evil? The ladies voted and it was decided in the affirmative, by an overwhelming majority.

MAGNETIC POLE. Brewster's Journal states that letters have been received from Professor Hanning and his companions, to the effect that they arrived at Frankfort on the 7th of that month, afterwards visited Kiebits, and passed into China. Their observations have proved perfectly satisfactory, and the position of the Magnetic Pole is ascertained. Centuries may elapse before Siberia will be again so thoroughly observed.

LONG LIFE. The Ontario Repository informs that there are six brothers now living, of whom Judge Chipman, late of Richmond, in that county, now of Sheldon, in the county of Genesee, is one; the eldest of whom is 77, and the youngest 64 years of age. The aggregate of their ages is 493, and the average 70 years and a fraction over. These brothers were all born in the N. E. corner of the state of Connecticut, from whence they went to Vermont about the year 1774. Four of them were lawyers and two Physicians; and all of them have been remarkable for their industry and early rising.

AN IMPORTANT OPERATION. We learn by the New York Medical and Physical Journal, for July, that Dr. Abner Horton has succeeded in forming an artificial eyelid for a black boy. This important operation was performed in a short time, and in a few days afterwards the boy had a very slightly eye, answering all the purposes of a natural one. The ball of the eye had been gored by an ox, and several attempts had been made to unite or restore the detached eyelid by other physicians, which all proved abortive. N. Y. Herald.

SUGAR FROM BEET. The manufacture of Sugar from beets, which was introduced into France by Napoleon in 1811 & 1812, has increased to such an extent, that there are now nearly 100 sugar manufactory in that country, producing an annual amount of about 5,000,000 kilograms, or 4,921 tons. In Paris alone, the number of manufactories is 25. While the price of refined sugar in Paris is 114d. sterling per pound, the manufacture is profitable. It is estimated that one half of all the sugar consumed in Paris, and one eleventh of the total quantity consumed in France, is made from beets. For whiteness and beauty, it is said, when refined, to be unequalled by any other. —Bank for bank, however, the refined West India sugar is sweeter than the refined beet sugar; but weight for weight, the two are equally sweet.

The discovery of sugar in the beet root was made by the celebrated German chemist Margraaf, and announced to the public in 1747. N. Y. Jour. Com.

PYROPHONIDE. A French physician has lately introduced into the Materia Medica, a substance produced by the combustion of linen, hemp, or cotton cloth, in the open air. He considers it useful in various inflammatory affections especially in ophthalmia, or diseases of the eye, and children. To prepare pyrophonide, take a handful of cloth, old or new, place it in a shallow basin, set fire to it, moving it about, so that the basin do not become too hot; after the combustion is finished, throw out the ashes; at the bottom of the vessel will be found a semitransparent, semicolourous product of a reddish brown colour, and possessing a pungent odour. Pour upon this 5oz. of cold water, which will dissolve it entirely, forming the solution of pyrophonide, which is used in a more or less diluted state, as may be requisite for collyria fomentations, &c.—Medical Journal.

Extraordinary Swimming feat. Dr. Bedade, of whom most of our readers will have heard as having accomplished several feats of swimming, undertook on Thursday evening, for a wager of £20 to swim three hundred yards in sixty strokes, in still water. Before commencing his swimming feat, the Doctor had his feet tied together, and a stick four feet long, with a flag at one end, put into each hand. In this state he was rowed in a boat into the middle of the pond, and thrown into the water, where he floated. A weight of four pounds was then put upon his chest and he had intended to have floated to the shore in that way, but the necessary motion of his arms to propel him to the shore dislodged the weight, and it sank. It had remained, however, long enough to convince the spectators that he could have borne it. After he had floated to the shore, he commenced his task of swimming three hundred yards in sixty strokes; and the astonishment of the spectators, who loudly cheered him as he came in, was accomplished with great ease in 31 strokes, notwithstanding the disadvantage of shallow water. TEA DRINKERS BEWARE. A London Magazine says, that prussic acid has been obtained from the leaves of green tea in so concentrated a state, that one drop killed a dog almost instantaneously.—A strong infusion of such a tea, sweetened, is as effectual in poisoning flies, as the solution of arsenic generally sold for that purpose.

LAW OF DIVORCE IN CHINA. In the Chinese Law, one of the grounds on which a husband may divorce his wife is, her being too much given to talking. What rare work for Doctors' Commons if such a law were to be passed in this country.

At a dissenting place of worship in Leicester, on Sunday week, an individual happening to be behind time, the minister, who had been before disturbed by persons coming in, told him that he was half an hour too late; but to accommodate him he would begin his sermon again, which he accordingly did.
