

The heart, in many instances, is a better judge, even of propriety of manners, than the judgment. The judgment, in cases touching the conduct of individuals, is perhaps often too severe; for example we are apt to regard with equal contempt the behaviour of the weak and silly, without considering, that under the zero of reason there are many degrees before the human instinct. At least it is charitable to believe so, and it cherishes amiable sentiments to inculcate that doctrine. Every reader of dramatic history has heard of Garrick's contest with Madam Clairon, and the triumph which the English Rousie achieved over the Siddons of the French stage, by his representation of the father struck with fatuity on beholding his only infant dashed to pieces by leaping in his joy from his arms. Perhaps the sole remaining conquest for histrionic tragedy is somewhere in the unexplored regions of the mind below the ordinary understanding, amidst the gradations of idiocy. The various shades and degrees of sense and sensibility which lie there unknown. Genius, in some gifted moment, may discover. In the meantime, as a small specimen of its undivulged dramatic treasures, we submit to our readers the following little anecdote.

A poor widow, in a small town in the north of England kept a booth or stall of apples and sweetmeats. She had an idiot child, so utterly helpless and dependent, that he did not appear to be ever alive to anger or self-defence.

He sat all day at her feet, and seemed to be possessed of no other sentiment of the human kind than confidence in his mother's love, and a dread of the school boys, by whom he was often annoyed. His whole occupation as he sat on the ground, was in swinging backwards and forwards singing 'pal-lal' in a pathetic tone, only interrupted at intervals on the appearance of any of his tormentors, when he clung to his mother in alarm.

From morning to evening he sung his plaintive and aimless ditty; at night, when his poor mother gathered up her little wares to return home, so deplorable did his defects appear, that while she carried the table on her head, her little stock of merchandise in her lap, and her stool in one hand, she was obliged to lead him by the other. Ever and anon as any of the school boys appeared in view, the harmless thing clung close to her, and hid his face in her bosom for protection.

A human creature so far below the standard of humanity was no where ever seen; he had not even the shallow cunning which is often found among these unfinished beings; and his simplicity could not even be measured by the standard we would apply to the capacity of a lamb. Yet he had a feeling rarely manifested even in the affectionate dog, and a knowledge never shown by any mere animal.

He was sensible of his mother's kindness, and how much he loved to hear her. At night when she spread his humble pallet, though he knew not prayer, nor could comprehend the solemnities of worship, he prostrated himself at her feet, and as he kissed them, mumbled a kind of mental orison, as if in fond and holy devotion. In the morning before she went abroad to resume her station in the market place, he peeped anxiously out to reconnoitre the street, and as often as he saw any of the schoolboys in the way, he held her firmly back, and sang his sorrowful 'pal-lal.'

One day the poor woman and her idiot boy were missed from the market-place, and the charity of some of the neighbours induced them to visit her home. They found her dead on her sorry couch, and the boy sitting beside her, holding her hand, swinging and singing his lay more sorrowfully than he had ever done before. He could not speak, but only utter a brutish gabble; sometimes, however, he looked as if he comprehended something of what was said. On this occasion, when the neighbours spoke to him, he looked up with the tear in his eye, and clasping the cold hand more tenderly, sang the strain of his mournful 'pal-lal' into a softer and sadder key.

The spectators, deeply affected, raised him from the body, and he surrendered his hold of the earthly hand without resistance, retiring in silence to an obscure corner of the room. One of them, looking towards the others, said to them, 'Poor wretch! what shall we do with him?' At that moment he resumed his chaunt; and lifting two hands full of dust from the floor sprinkled it on his head and sang with a wild and heart piercing pathos, 'pal-lal, pal-lal.'

NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOURNAL OF HEALTH.
CONDUCTED BY AN ASSOCIATION OF PRACTITIONERS.
The primary object with the conductors of the Journal of Health is to point out the means of preserving health and preventing disease. To attain this, all diseases and their causes shall be addressed, in a style familiar and friendly, and with an avoidance of such professional terms and allusions as would to any person of ordinary reading, study, and careful observation, shall be placed before them, so arranged and applied as to conduce most effectually to their bodily comfort and mental tranquility. To whatever profession or calling they may belong, the readers of this Journal will find perceptible advantages of valuable application. Air, food, exercise, the fecundation of mind and body, climate and localities, clothing and the physical education of children, are topics of permanent and pervading interest, with the discussion and elucidation of which the pages of the work will be mainly filled.
Recommendation of the work.
We approve of the plan on which the publication, entitled the 'Journal of Health' is conducted, and believe, that it is calculated to be useful, by enlightening public opinion on a subject of high importance to the welfare of society. The numbers which have appeared, evince talent, and may be viewed as a pledge of the continued usefulness of the publication while conducted by its present editors. We, therefore, feel no hesitation in recommending it to public patronage.

IN CHANCERY,
10th December, 1829.
George Dougherty vs. John Peter Bonard. This is the subject of the bill filed in this cause in the Chancery, to obtain a decree for a conveyance, from the defendant to the complainant, of the property hereinafter mentioned. The bill states, that on the 10th day of September, in the year 1821, the complainant contracted with the defendant for the sale, for the sum of twelve hundred dollars, of all that piece of ground situate in the city of Baltimore, which was conveyed to said Bonard by Foster Maynard and Thomas Mortimer, administrators of the estate of Benjamin Carr, late of Anne Arundel county, deceased, by deed dated the 17th of March, in the year 1806, and recorded among the land records of Baltimore county, being part of the lot distinguished on the plat of Howari's late addition to Baltimore town, by the number seven hundred and forty seven, saving and excepting out of said ground that part thereof sold and assigned by Thomas Mortimer to Owen M. Manius, subject to the payment of the yearly rent of seven pounds current money. That complainant paid said Bonard on entering into said contract, of said purchase money, the sum of three hundred dollars, and for the balance of said purchase money executed to said Bonard three promissory notes that thereupon the said Bonard executed to complainant a bond of conveyance for the piece of ground before mentioned; that upon said bond being executed, complainant entered into possession of said piece of ground, and has ever since possessed and enjoyed the same. That complainant has long since fully paid and satisfied said promissory notes, and the whole of the claim for said purchase money, but hath received no conveyance of said piece of ground. The bill also states, that the said defendant, John Peter Bonard, retired out of the state of Maryland, that the complainant, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted once in each of three successive weeks, in some newspaper, before the 15th day of January next, give notice to the absent defendant of the substance and object of the bill, that he may be warned to appear in this Court in person, or by a solicitor, on or before the 15th day of May next, to show cause if any he hath, why a decree should not pass as prayed.
