DR. HULL'S TRUSS,

TOR the relief and cure of Herois or Rupy ture. This Surgical instrument is now so well known to the Medical profession, and so extensivly used by unfortunate sufferers labouring under the disease of Herois, that a particular account of its mechanical construction of its surgical effects is thought unnecessary.—
The subjoined remarks from Physicians and Surgeons of him passociality in our counter. Surgeons of high respectability in our country, are the results of much practical experience in he use and application of this truss.

James Thatcher, M. D. author of the Modern Practice, in his second edition, under the subject of Herala, remarks "Dr. Hull is ex-clusively entitled to the credit of first adapting the true Surgical principle for the radical cure of Hernia. This evil was not fully remedied until Dr. Amos G. Hull, of New York, turned his attention to the subject, and by his improvement in the construction of trues, has rendered it certain that all recent rup tures and those of children, may be permanently cured, and those of old people and of long offices.

PROSPECTUS

Series of Standard Work. Protestant Episcopal Church UNITED STATES;

N. Y. PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL PRESS

REV. WM. R. WITTINGHAM, A. M. resent Editor of the Fomily V siter, and of the Children's Naguzi of the General Protestant Episcopal Sunday School Union.

The second presents tion of this design to the Episgoal public, is owing to no want of encouragement, of the General rotations of this design to the Episgoal public, is owing to no want of encouragement, of anticipation of difficulty in its accomplishment.
A considerable delay in the accountion of the formof proposals, deemed necessary for the maturing of the original design, and for ascertaining exactly the nature of the wants which the publication is intended to supply, left the Trustees of the Protestant Episcopal Press, free to alter, and, if circumstances should warrant, to enlarge their plan. Communications from several quarters, and from the most respectable sources, produced by this delay, have led to the conviction, upon which the Trustees now propose to act. riction, upon which the Trustees now propose to act hat a plan far more comprehensive than that first pre-cated, is called for by our Church in this country. A nere republication of works of English and America thinnes was then contemplated. It is now intended, by the introduction of every thing necessary to adap the works selected to the circumstances of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, to give the publication the character of an original work, and, at the same time, to extend its design so far as to embrace the works of the primitive Christian writers, and if occasion present itself, of foreign divines.

PLAN OF THE WORK.

Of works such as the above, while they are the nost desirable auxiliaries of which a clergyman car hink, willingly he destitute: one or more copies are

MISCELLANEOUS.

From the London Times. A VISION OF STEAM.

Et jan summa procul villarum culmina fumant. Virgi l Irid me down and slept on the floor, And I had a wonderful dream, Por "combing events east their shadow before," Or rather a volume of steam.

Thought I had slept a hundred years,
'Midst mins and rubhish dirty,
And sudd-nly 'waked to the smiles and tears
Of life agin, and it rang in my ears
'Twas nineteen hundred and thirty.

I thought a spirit beside me stood, Strange in his shape and dress, He wore a cowl and he wore a hood; Who he was I might not guess.

But the silence broke, and the stranger spoke—
I heard him in my dream.—
"Fear not," said he, "But come and see
How all the world is govern'd by me,
The mighty spirit of steam." Straightway, like to a falling moon, With a rushing sound there came A mighty sphere; it lighted soon, And what should it be but a steam balloon,

And what should it be but a steam balloon,
And we entered together the same.
And away we went o'er London far,
As swift as the lightning's gleam,
But in vain I look'd from our lofty car
For from Westminster Abbey to Temple Bar,
They were all in a cloud of steam.

"Come let us nearer to the earth,"
The mighty spirit cried;
The car sink down, and I set forth,
Through the streets, with him for a guide. "Nov," quoth the stranger, "approach, approach, I'm tired with wantering I trow, So we'll get into that backney coach; I'lls the best in all the row."

In we got, and strange, oh strange,
The horseless coach moved on;
We fell from the clouds in Regent street,
We glided along in our chariot fleet,
But of all the folks I chanced to meet,

Alas' I knew not one.

We passed by Newgate, a crowd was there.
And a scaffold was raised before, The criminal knelt and whispered a prayer,

Then stood erect once more.

Then stood erect once more.

Much I marvell'd he stood alone,
B the suddenly uttered a scream;
Gone was all hope, on his neck a rope
Already noosed, from above fell down;
The bulk slipt from its band without a hand,
The corse swang away from its final stand,
They were hapking the man by steam.

As we return'd to our vehicle,
A figure before us stood,
It stood, froon in hand, at a dirty crossing,
I pitted the creature, and was tossing
A sixpence—I thought 'twas flesh any blood—

But my friend held my hand, says he titis wood;
A strange thing to you it may seem,
But let me tell you the plan is good,
We sweep our streets by steam!"

We went into Paternoster row, It had a mournful look, For passed away were Longman & Co.
Their shop and every book Yet clouds of vapour were issuing, From each window, low and high,

As erst I have seen it wandering From the Brentford Brewery. "Strange, strange,', said I, "that they should turn Their minds to such a scheme!"
"What scheme!" quoth he, "you may discern They publish still, but you have to learn How we write and print by steam.

But, come, enough of this city wide— And yet one peep you must have At the mighty house where you have descried Peers long ago in the grave."

Straight we alit by the house of Peers; I was allent—silent all— Though all seemed ranged, as in former years, On the benches around the wall.

Suddenty all arose, and each
A piper gave and took,
It stood, it seement, in lieu of speech,
Intently did I look.
I looked again, but they stirred no more,
They were almost as stiff and as stark as before.
Wooden was each—blockheads were all—
(Mandarine members filled the hall.
Oh strong strangers and decembers.)

Oh, strange, strange, grew my dream;
With a grim smile the spirit said,
"Think you not, of all you have visited,
This is the best and noblest plan.
To spare the tongue and brains of man,
And govern the nation by steam?"

But slowly a little vapour arose
From the wooden Prime Minister's head,
It gather'd and grew, and o'er his foes
In the opposition spread. There was a hissing, rushing noise-

A crash a shout a scream

The engine had burst—and oh the smell,
The horrible supour, but who can tell,
At that bursting of parliament steam?

Tr was no joke, and I swoke,
The hission still around me bruket
The candles were out, my wife in a pout,
February struggling dream
I had seized the tea urn, and turn'd it o'er.
The water was swimming about the floor,
And I was awaken'd by steam.
