REV. WM. R. WITTINGHAM, A. M. event Editorof the F-mily Visiter, and of the Children's Magazin of the General Protestant Episcopal Sunday School Union. The second presentation of this design to the Epis-

The second presentation of this design to the Episcopal public, is owing to no want of encouragement, or anticipation of difficulty in its accomplishment.

A considerable delay in the execution of the former proposals, deemed necessary for the maturing of the original design, and for ascertaining exactly the instruce of the wants which the publication is intended to supply, left the Trustees of the Protestant Episcopal Press, free to alter, and, if circumstances should warrant, to enlarge their plan. Communications from several quarters, and from the most respectable sources, produced by this delay, have led to the conviction, upon which the Trustees now propose to act, that a plan far more comprehensive than that first presented, is called for by our Church in this country. A mere republication of works of English and American divines was then contemplated. It is now intended, by the introduction of every thing necessary to adapt the works selected to the circumstances of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, to give the publication the character of an original work; and, at the same time, to extend its design so far as to embrace the works of the primitive Christian writers, and if occasion present itself, of foreign divines.

THE DEVIL'S DRIVE: From Moore's Life of Byton. the following stanzas are part of a wild poem was written by Lord Byron, who states that he too the notion from "Porson's Devil's Walk." The ere worth extracting, as they show the strange ta tent of this early was quite right in not publishing the poem, which extends to 250 lines, many of which are, we are assured, very objectionable which are, we are assured, very objectionable— The Devil returned to hell by two, And he staid at home till five; When he dired on some homicides done in ragout, And a rebel or so in an Irah stew, And saveges made of a self-slain Jew, And savinges made of a self-stain lew,

And he a thought himself what what next to do,
-And," quoth he, "I'll take a drive.
I wilk'd in the morning, I'll ride to night;
In dirkness my children take most delight;
And I'll see how my favourites thrive.

And what shall I ride in?" quoth Lucifer, then—
If I follow'd my taste, indeed,
I should mount in a waggon of wounded men,
And smile to see them bleed
But these will be furnish'd again and again, And at present my purpose is speed; To see my manor as much as I may, And watch that no souls shall be poach'd away.

All area state couch at C.——House,
A chariot in Seymour place;
But they relent to two friends, who make me amends
By driving my favourite pace;
And they handle their reins with such a grace,
I have something for both at the end of the race.

That examething for both at the end of the race.
"So now for the earth to take my chance,"
Then up to the earth to take my chance,"
Then up to the earth spring het.
And inaking a jump from Moscow to France,
He stepp'd across the sea,
And rested his hoof on a turnpike road,
No very great distance from a Bishop's abode.
Bit first as he flew, I forgot to say,
That he hover'd a moment upon his way,
To look upon Leipsic plain;
And so sweet to his eye was its sulphury glare,
And so sweet to his eye was its sulphury glare,
And so sweet to his eye was its sulphury glare,
And so soft to his eyer was the try of despair,
That he perched on a mountain of slain,
And he gazed with delight from its growing height,
Nor his work done half as well;
For the field ran so red with the blood of the dead,
That it blush'd like the waves of Hell;
Then loudly, and wildly, and long laugh'd be,
"Methicks they have here little need of me!"

On the softest note that sooth'd his ear. Whathe sound of a willow sighing:
And the sweetest sight was the loy tear. Which thereof force in the blue eye clear. O's mail in the flower lying —
A mand are rell her long fair hair;
And should to Heaven with that frenzied air,
Which seem'd to ask if a God were there!
And streng if he the walf of a ruin'd hut,
Who is hollow cheek, and eyes half shut,
A cheld of famine dying:
And the carnige begun, when resistance is done,
and the fall of the wainly flying!

But the Devil has reach'd our cliffs so white, But the Devil has reached our cliffs so white,
And what did he there, I pray?
If his ever were good, but he saw by night
What we see every day;
But he made a tour, and kept a journal
Of all the won frous sights nocturnal,
And he sold it in shares to the Men of the Row,
Who bid pretty well—but they cheated him shough!

The Devil first saw, as he thought, the Mail, Its coachman and his coat: l'is coachman and his coat: o instead of a pistol he cock'd his tail, And seized him by the throat; Aha,' quoth he, ''what have we here' 'Tis a new barouche, and an ancient peer!''

So be set him on his box again,
And bude him have no fear,
But he true to his club, and ataunch to his rein,
His brothel, and his beer;
"Next to seeing a lord at the council board.
I would rather see him here." The Devil got next to Westminster,
And he turned to the 'room of the Commons;'
But he heard, as he purposed to enter in there,
That 'the Lords' had received a summons;
And he thought, as a "guendam Aristocrat,"

And he walk'd up the house so like one of our own That they say that he stood pretty near the throne.

That they say that he stood pretty near the throne. He saw Lord I.——I seemingly wise,
The Lord W.——d certainly silly,
And Johnny of Norfolk—a man of some size,
And Chaham, so like his friend Billy;
And he saw the tears in Lord E.—n's eyes,
Because the Catholics would not rise,
In spite of his prayers and his prophecies;
And he heard—which het Satan himself a staring—A certain, Chief Justice say something like swearing,
And the Devil was ahock'd—and quoth he 'I must go.'
For I find we have much better manners belog.
If thus he harrangues when he passes my border,
I shall hint to friend Moloch to call him to order.'
