casting much better than we have usually seen in other stoves. As to the proof of experiment, the only reliance in all such matters, it fully sustains all the Dr.'s theories. Among the many who have tried it, we have heard no other opinion than that it is the best thing ever invented. And what is very unusual, all the praise is bestowed without a single deduction. Of furnaces we hear it said that they are excellent, but sometimes they smoke, or the effect is to shrink the doors and crack the furniture. But of this stove we have not heard the slightest fault. From all we have seen and heard, we are satisfied that in point of economy, convenience, and every thing else, it is a remarkable combination of excellences, with as remarkable an exclusion of defects.

The following account of a successful villain, is copied from the Boston Traveller of last Tuesday. The fellow described, was in this town about a year ago, and made a monstrous splash, to the infinite admiration of sundry blue stockings, and Deborah Dowlass's of the times.

TRAVELLING SWINDLER CAUGHT.

On Thursday afternoon, a young man named George J. Jenkins, aged about 24 years, was brought up by B. J. Hays, and Huntington, officers, and committed, information having been left at the office that he had swindled different persons of money. He is well known at the office. He arrived in New York about ten days ago, in the schooner Amanda, Capt. Bedel, and after his arrival, swindled the captain of $1,450, by false pretences, representing himself as a man of great property, a New Orleans merchant, &c. Last summer, in like manner, he obtained $1,400 from a gentleman in Brooklyn, and he has obtained property of different persons, under false pretences. From his manners and conversation, a person would judge him incapable of such business.

From the Boston Daily Advertiser... HAMPSHIRE ELECTION. The result of the New-Hampshire election is different from that of the election of the Jackson candidate was, then a majority of about 4800 votes in this year a small reduction of number of votes; and as far as the result reached us, which are from more than the state, a small diminution of the majority. There is however no doubt of the election of Mr. Dinwiddie, the Jackson member of Congress, and a Jackson member in the Council and in both branches of the Legislature. The majority for members will be less than for Governor Woodbury, who is superseded in the office of the United States by Mr. Isaac Hosen, a Senator of the State, for No. 1, by a small majority.

same time the young men came running down stairs, one of whom was awakened by fire falling upon him, and burning through his linen to the skin, their bed was on fire in several places.

The flames were so rapid they had barely got to the next floor when the whole of the roof tumbled in—at this time ensued indescribable confusion, none knowing what to do, or scarcely how to save their lives—Mr. Brown was dumb and nearly motionless with fear, but Mrs. Brown manifested great presence of mind in rescuing the children from their dreadful situation; the last was carried out asleep through the cold wet earth, for it was raining at the time, all nearly naked, no house nearer than half a mile. Mr. and Mrs. Brown, and three young men were in the same situation, not having time to save anything—in five minutes more the whole family would have been buried in the ruins.

The loss which Mrs. M. A. Cost has sustained is estimated at between three and four thousand dollars—a large quantity of clover seed was consumed and some grain, &c.

EXTRACT FROM AN ADDRESS DELIVERED BEFORE THE BERKSHIRE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY, BY THEODORE SEDWICK, ESQ.

It is observed by foreigners, that we are a profuse people. They are most familiar with our cities, and there observe our extravagance in equipage, dress, and at our tables. They are astonished at our profusion, and do not understand it. In Europe, people of the same relative fortunes, would be frightened at the thought of living as we live. And that we live like a wise people nobody can contend. Take city and country together, was ever so much bankrupted heard of in any country? and for what? Elsewhere men fail, because they have lost a house, or a ship, or been unfortunate in some other way. Here four out of five fail for their expenses. It is plain, economical state of society is pushed hard for a topic, when he thinks fit to warn his neighbours against extravagance. Simple and economical as we have been allowed to be, it is certain that New-England can never prosper when our people have ceased to possess this character. Besides, there is no use in minding the matter. Things are out of proportion through the whole country. Our children begin with a degree of expense, with which we large families end. Their dress, houses and furniture must be the same with ours; and this too in a country, in which the parsimony of estate requires a constant struggle to enable families to maintain their ground. We all strive in the most servile (and may I not say vulgar) manner to be alike, and to appear one as well as another. The exterior, what is visible, indicates little or nothing as to the wealth of people. The middle classes follow hard upon the heels of the rich, and are as much held in slavery by their needs, as if there were a chain about their necks. The young men and women who are just entering life, the day labourers, and the poor following, of course, so high an example, catch the contagion; and the latter, especially, become sensual, vain and expensive, run into crime, and end in the State Prison. Our villages which should glory in plain manners, are the very silliest fashions of the cities. What is worst of all, we have been taught, and multitudes do actually believe, that this folly is necessary to the prosperity of society.

That is 'all trades must live!' and to make them live, they begin by destruction. They do most conscientiously believe, that in this way, merchants, mechanics, and shopkeepers prosper and grow rich.

FROM THE LIBERIA HERALD, JAN. 11th, 1831. STRANGE ARRIVAL.

Governor Meclinn has lately purchased from one of our citizens, who has just returned from the Congo country, an Orang Outang of the female species. She is quite young, and is yet but a baby; has a great liking to her country people, and is rather shy of a person with clothes. She resembles the human person in many particulars; sits up and eats like a child, using her right hand very dexterously, and though but two or three weeks in the Congo, is now quite fond of many articles cooked for the table. Her face resembles that of an aged person, with a white beard; her body is covered with long straight black hair; and she walks at present on her hands and feet. The natives however inform us, that when full grown, they walk erect with a stick. One of our citizens, who has travelled considerably in the country, assures us, that two years ago, he saw one crabs in Junk River with a stick in his hand. He was about five feet high. As incredulous as we have ever been about this animal, our natives since the arrival of this one, have put our credulity to the highest stretch, from the incredible stories which they hand down from one generation to another; and our belief is, that many things, stated by travellers, have been gathered from the natives of the country, through which they have travelled, and not from actual observation.

COMMUNICATED. OBITUARY.

Departed this life on Wednesday, the 16th inst. Mrs. MARY LANE. The deceased was a native of Calvert county, but for the last ten years has been a resident of this city. It has seldom, if ever, fallen to the lot of friendship to record the death of one more universally esteemed by those to whom she was known. She has left a son and two daughters to bewail their truly irreparable loss; but as long as friendship shall claim the tribute of a tear will the amiable subject of this brief obituary retain a seat in the remembrance of those to whom friendship had rendered her dear.
