From the exaggerated reports in circulation, in regard to the prevalence of cholera in our town, the board of health deem it proper to state, that the whole number of cases which have occurred since its first appearance or the 16th inst. is sixteen, seven of which have proved fatal. The disease has been confined almost exclusively to that portion of the town in the neighbourhood of the market house, and has doubtless been caused m a great measure, by the action of the sun and rain on the filth, which has been accumulating in that neighbourhood for some weeks past. Efficient mea-sures have now been taken by the proper au sures have now been taken by the proper authority for its destruction, and we entertain hopes, already partly realized, that the pestilence, if not cut short in its career, will at least be much mitigated in severity, and the number of cases gradually diminished.
