How many of us, blind mortals, are lely the nose into error! It is a common opini that putrefaction, and the bad smell than arising, will infallibly generate contain and infectious distempers. If this were at tually the case, what would become of the ners, curriers, butchers, glue and cate makers -not to mention surgeons? The po trefaction of animal substances is less dates rous to human life than confined zir, er te effluvium of any one body whatever; when the body be a rose, a pink, a lily, or a fel rat. The nose is a faithful sintinel to the outpost of life; but neither that nor the other ones, the eye, and the tongue, are infalls

SIR WALTER SCOTT'S COM-PLETE WORKS.

A SPLENDID, complete and uniform set of yet published, together with a biography of his life, his correspondence and miscellaneous writings never yet published in this country, is about to be issued in numbers by Messrs. Conner and Cooke, of New York. The whole work will be comprised in 48 numbers; each number will contain as much matter as two volumes, and will be furnished to subscribers at the unprecedented low price of 374 cents each, payable on delivery, which will be equal to only 187 cents a volume; an amount less by one half, it is believed, than they were ever Cole, William sold, even at suction.

Persons owning part of the works will be furnished a sufficient number of trese, if wished, to make them complete.

Considering the low price at which the work is furnished, and the means that have been taken to enable almost every family to be furnished with them, (which will be explained to any one,) the subscriber hopes to receive a liberal share of patronage.

Specimens of the work can be seen at the Bookstores of W. R. Lucas, 110 Baltimore street, and at E. J. Coale and Co. Calvert street, opposite Barmun's Hotel. The undersigned can be seen every day from 2 to 3 o'clock, at his residence, Barmum's Hotel. R. K. MOULTON,

THE JOURNAL

BELLES LETTRES. A NEW AND STRIKING CHARACTER ABDED TO

WALDIE'S CIRCULATING LIBRARY.

THE Proprietor of this work, anxious to gratify his readers to as great an extent as his means will allow, respectfully announces to the public that the very liberal patronage he has received has enabled him to add a new feature to this periodical, which he believes cannot fail to recover interesting and valuable.

to prove interesting and valuable.
The Journal of Belles Letters, embracing three to four pages of additional new mat-ter, will be given every week as an accompaniment to the Circulating Library, and will ontain:

1. Early reprints of the reviews and notices of new books, from the weekly and monthly periodical press of London, &c. These reviews will be carefully selected with reference both to imparting correct information respecting such new books as are reprinted in America, and to convey literary intelligence in regard to works which sarely first their way across the works which rarely fied their way across the Atlantic. As great exertions will be used to make this department instructive and entermake this department instructive and enter-taining, the proprietor is confident that it will be considered an important addition, by means of which his numerous subscribers will fre-quently avoid the expense of purchasing such books as are printed on the calculation that their titles or the reputation of their authors will sell the edition. This part of the Journal will embrace a considerable amount of extracts from new books of travels, memoirs, biography. novels, and in fact present a bird's eye view of new publications, early diffused through the Union, by means of the facilities of mail transportation. The London Literary Gazette will be culled for this purpose, while the "Critical Notices," of the London Metropolitan, the Monthly. New Monthly, the Gentleman's, Blackwood's, Tait's, Edinburgh, Fraser's, and other Megazines, already regularly received by the editor, will be freely used.

2. Varieties, embracing literary anecdotes, new discoveries in science and the arts, sketchnew discoveries in science and the arts, sketchsof society and manners abroad, literary and learned transactions, short notices of new books, and every species of information interesting to lovers of reading, with occasional specimens of the humourous departments of the London press, which are within the bounds of good taste, and are now published in no other

Several applications having been made to ascertain the manner in which the original department of notices of new books will be conducted, we take the present early opportunity of stating that, at least they shall most une quivocally be—UNBOUGHT. The presentation of a copy by the publisher shall not be a passport to praise, when the merits of the work than the corresponding to the contraction of the work than the corresponding to the contraction of the work than the corresponding to the contraction of the work than the corresponding to the work than the corresponding to the contraction of the work than the corresponding to the corresp do not warrant it; so that our readers may be assured of two things: First-books shall not be noticed the next day after they are received; be noticed the next day after they are received; and, secondly, they shall not be reviewed before they have been read. We have no royal road to puffing, and will be the less likely, therefore, to fall into the error of an unlucky wight, who, in his anxiety to be the first to blow the bellows of criticism, read the preface only of a duodecimo, and gravely entered his approbation of two chapters which, unfortunately for his critical acumen, had been omitted, whith the prefatory reference to them had been, by the prefatory reference to them had been, by mistake, retained! This predicament was worse than that of the London editor, who criticised some passages of Cooke's acting, and found when he rose next morning, and his pa-

and our capabilities; in cases where the usual courtesy of the trade is not extended to this journal, unlike most of our cotemporaries, we shall buy what books we want, and give to such
