who, in a few days, with myself, will leave the endearments of home and friends, for a foreign clime, and one too, which has been the grave of many whose memories are dear to those now assembled. Referring to the work in which the missionaries were about to engage, the Rev. gentleman remarked, that it was one of no ordinary privilege—the duty going to a country where darkness and death reigned, and where the many millions of our fellow immortals were ignorant of the light of divine truths. After many pertinent observations, the speaker closed with the feeling remark of the late Mr. Cox:—Let thousands fall, before Africa be given up.

Mr. Penny was succeeded by ROBERT S. FINLEY, Esq. Agent of the Colonization Society. It was one of this gentleman's most happy efforts, in which he enchain'd the audience during the whole of his remarks. The Rev. Mr. Swift, the General Agent of the Western Missions Society, followed Mr. Finley with some forcible remarks. The Rev. Messrs. Spaulding and Wright then took their farewell of the audience. The motives which actuated these gentlemen thus voluntarily to expose themselves to so many inevitable dangers—to transport themselves to a deleterious climate and to hold every enjoyment paramount in this life as nought, that they might preach the unsearchable truths of Christianity to the forgotten children of a deadly clime—tended to render the ceremony one of the most powerful and interesting we have ever experienced.

It was a pleasing circumstance to find some of the leading members of other missionary societies cordially engaged in promoting the views of the meeting then assembled. After the public collection had been made, a gentleman in the congregation rose and suggested that he would be one of twenty that should subscribe five dollars each for the purpose of making the five gentlemen who had addressed the meeting, Life Members. This was instantly complied with, and before the Secretary could write the names that were offered, another motion was made to make the wives of the missionaries and the young lady who goes out as a teacher, Life Members of the Female Missionary Society—this was also done. After which, the following Farewell Hymn, composed by the President of the Young Men's Missionary Society, was sung by the choir:

FAREWELL HYMN.

1. God of Missions! Great Jehovah! Father, Son, and Holy Ghost! Number these thy youthful servants, In thy consecrated host. Lord! preserve them.

2. They have heard thy voice, it calls them O'er the ocean's wide expanse, To a foreign land they hasten. Thy best kingdom to advance. Lord! preserve them.

3. Nearest the dangers of the deep, Midst them safely to Liberia, Where an "open door" is found, There let them proclaim salvation. There the gospel trumpet sound. Lord! preserve them.

4. When the floods of rain descending, Poisons vapours cause to rise, Give thine "angelic charge" concerning, "Precious be their health and lives." Lord! preserve them.

5. Farewell, brethren—farewell, sisters, You're for Christ forsaken all; In his kingdom, crowns await you, Though in Africa ye fall. Farewell! farewell! Lord! preserve you evermore.

STEAM BOAT EXPLOSION.

A serious disaster occurred on the steamboat New England, on Wednesday, on her passage from New-York to Hartford. Letters containing the following particulars are published in the Commercial Advertiser: MIDDLTOWN, (Ct.) Oct. 9.

I have this moment arrived, and presuning that you have heard of the dreadful accident that occurred to the steamboat, I hasten to drop you a line. Through the mercy of a kind Providence I am safe and unharmed. Such a scene I never witnessed. The explosion took place about 5 o'clock in the morning. I was in my berth at the time, and was aroused amidst the crash and thundor of the explosion, and the shrieks and groans of the wounded and dying.

About twenty-six are badly burned—some of whom I think cannot survive. One child was dead when I left the boat, and the baggage master was missing—it is feared he was blown overboard.

In addition to the above we find the following in the New Haven Herald:—A gentleman has arrived in town for the purpose of obtaining further medical and surgical aid, who represents the case as one most truly disastrous and distressing. The clerk of the boat, two of the hands, and two passengers, are missing—undoubtedly blown into the sea and lost. Seventeen persons were landed at Essex, dangerously wounded, not more than half of whom, it was thought could recover. The passengers for Hartford, it is supposed, suffered least,—most of them being in their berths.

Among the sufferers, were J. M. Heron, Esq., of Reading, on his way to attend the Episcopal Convention at Norwich; Dr. Whitings, of N. Y., and Mr. Warner, brother of the Treasurer of Yale College. Dr. Knight, and Dr. N. B. Ives left here this afternoon, to afford such aid as in their power.

Since the above was in type, we have been favoured with another letter from a gentleman who was on board. Our journey in the steamboat was very pleasant until we entered the Connecticut river, when at about one o'clock in the morning, I perceived that some part of the machinery was out of order.

I was in the forward cabin and concluded I was in the safest part of the boat. They seemed to go on badly until 3 o'clock, when both boilers burst as nearly together as a two barrel gun could be discharged by one person.

"Iwo persons were killed instantly, and about twenty-five wounded; of whom five or six may not survive." "The destruction of the upper works was almost entire. Among those that are injured are six or eight females—those were on the upper deck cabin.

"There were three or four badly injured in the main cabin—the front cabin escaped—no steam entered."

"The cries and moanings were truly heart rending. The steamboat was in about thirty minutes got to the wharf, where assistance was immediately rendered."

"Almost all the baggage together with 31 boxes of tea, a quantity of dry goods, &c. have all been lost."

"The captain and men say they are ignorant of the cause of the accident. The fact is, in my opinion, the water had all escaped from the boilers."

From the New York Mercantile, Oct. 10. GREAT COLONIZATION MEETING. The Masonic Hall last evening was filled to overflowing with the ladies and gentlemen of our city, friendly to the cause of collecting the free people of color in Africa. Gideon Lee, Esq. Mayor of the city, was called to the Chair, and John Bolton, Esq., and the Hon. Mr. Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey, were, I believe, Vice Presidents; but the meeting was organized before we reached the hall. Two speakers were Mr. Gurley, Agent of the Society, Chancellor Walworth, the Hon. Mr. Frelinghuysen, Hugh Maxwell, Esq., and Mr. Finlay. Many and eloquent were the appeals that were made in favour of the principles of colonization, divers very interesting details were given, and the late acts of Mr. Garrison, in England, were severely commented upon, particularly by Mr. Frelinghuysen. The resolutions we shall not pretend to give, having but indistinctly heard them; they will of course be given hereafter. Mr. Maxwell, Esquire, offered one, the object of which was to recommend that the sum of twenty thousand dollars be immediately raised to establish a Colony at Cape Mount, or some other place in Liberia, to be called New York. This was received, as were all the other proceedings and speeches, with loud applause.

Mr. Finlay stated that he should leave in the afternoon (we think he said this day) to go to Norfolk to take charge of two hundred persons of color, who had just been manumitted; and to the dependence of the Society rested the success of the enterprise, to supply the necessary funds to defray the expense of voyage.

VISIT TO LAGRANGE.

If there is any chapter in an ancient modern story which presents a more expiring picture of honourable old age, in the full fruition of the just rewards of a well spent life, than is furnished in the following narrative of a Visit to La Grange, we have never met with it. It is from the pen of the late Mr. Casing, of Newburyport.

"On Thursday, October 8th, we received a second call from Gen. Lafayette, who had us two vacant seats in his carriage, with himself and grand daughter, to go to La Grange on the following day. The kind offer, were, of course, very happy to accept ourselves, and the next morning at eleven o'clock, were on our way to that spot, with above all others, I most desired to see. The ride was a delightful one, as, indeed, he could it fail to be?—The General conveyed a great deal, and his open, unaffected manner banished all restraint. His grand daughter, Madame Perier, the daughter of Mr. Gen. W. Lafayette, I found a most intelligent and interesting lady, gentle, unpretending, and amiable in her deportment. She has been two years married, and resides near Greobles, in which place her grandfather had made his recent journey, partly for the purpose of visiting her family and of bringing her back with him to La Grange.

"In passing through the several villages, Gen. Perier, at seeing the General's carriage pass, raised their hats with the greatest respect, though they could not see his face or person.

"As we entered the boundaries of La Grange—Now, cried the General, we are on American ground. In a few minutes the turrets of the ancient Chateau appeared in sight, and we soon drove through the park, and entered a court, three sides of which were occupied by the castle, the remaining one opening upon a beautiful park. The park was cut through a part of the building, and on the outer side is covered with ivy, and was planted by Fox, when visiting Gen. Lafayette, after the peace of Amiens.

"When the carriage stopped at the door, we found all the family assembled there, ready to welcome their revered parent. He all embraced him affectionately, and he introduced his guests, whom they received with cordial politeness.

"We now ascended to the saloon, where bright and cheerful fire shed an air of coziness and hospitality around the apartment. It is a circular room, handsomely but simply furnished. Around the walls are suspended portraits of Gen. Greene, of Mr. Monroe, Gen. Adams, John Quincy Adams, Jefferson, and Madison. At the opposite side of the room is a pedestal with a bronze bust of Washington, made at the time he was in the army.

"After remaining here a short time, we were conducted to our own apartment, in which fire was also burning and every thing disposed for our reception. This room was lit up with various prints of scenes in America. At six o'clock the bell rang for dinner, and we repaired to the saloon, where the entire family of the house, and a few temporary visitors were already assembled. Descending to the dining room, situated upon the lower floor, we found a table abundantly supplied with meats and vegetables, almost exclusively the produce of the farm; and the fruit which formed the desert, were all the General's raising.—And the cherries, which he raised around his estate, were additional riches to his table at this time. We were acquainted with the eldest daughter of the General, and their relationship shall mention them here. She is the daughter of the late La Tour Maubourg, and her husband is the Hon. J. M. Perier, the second daughter of the late Gen. Perier. Her husband and two daughters, were now assembled with us. Next to her was a little girl, the wife of Mr. Adams' son, Jules, and the eldest, Pauline, is the daughter of the late Gen. Perier, and her husband is the Hon. J. M. Perier. The second daughter of the late Gen. Perier, and her husband and two daughters, were now assembled with us. Next to her was a little girl, the wife of Mr. Adams' son, Jules, and the eldest, Pauline, is the daughter of the late Gen. Perier, and her husband is the Hon. J. M. Perier.
