Were severally taken up for consideration, read the second time and passed.

The clerk of the senate returned the resolution in favour of James Frazier, endorsed, 'dissented from;'

And, delivered a resolution originated in and passed by the senate, relative to the riot among the labourers on the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal;

Which was read the first and second time by special order and assented to.

On motion by Mr. Spencer,

Ordered, That a committee of three persons be appointed by the chair to inquire into the expediency of reporting a bill, providing that all pensions granted since the 4th day of July, 1826, or which may hereafter be granted to officers and soldiers of the revolutionary war, who served two or more years therein, shall take date from the above day, the jubilee of American Independence.

On motion by Mr. Muores, the said order was amended by striking out the word three, and inserting in lieu thereof the word five.

The question was then put, will the house adopt the order.

Resolved in the affirmative.

Whereupon the speaker appointed Messrs. Spencer, Moores, Evans, Sifford and Hall to constitute the said committee.

The house then adjourned.

ANNAPOLIS:

Thursday, January 30, 1834.

A bill for the suppression of Lotteries was taken up in the Virginia House of Delegates on Thursday last, and passed without opposition.

From the Baltimore Chronicle of last evening.

Melancholy Death.—Several young gentlemen, among whom was William Winchester, eldest son of George Winchester, Esq. went yesterday to skait at the Spring Gardens. Mr. Winchester being first on the ice left his companions, but had not skaited far before he fell through the ice and was drowned. We understand his body was recovered last evening, and brought to his father's residence. He was a promising young man, and his loss will be deeply lamented by his parents and connexions.

We hope that this untimely death will be a warning to others who are in the habit of indulging in this dangerous amusement.

From the Correspondent of the N. Y. Commercial.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1[illegible]

At the annual meeting of the Colonization Society, R. S. Finley, Esq. of your city, introduced a resolution respecting the [illegible] adopted, and to be adopted, for the suppression of the traffic in ardent spirits at the Colony. He was followed by Bishop Meade of Virginia, whose resolution declaratory of the benevolence of the Society towards the coloured population of the United States was seconded by the Rev. R. J. Breckenridge of Baltimore.—Mr. B. in a speech of [illegible] an hour took some very strong views of slavery, which, had they come from a northern man would have been received, I presume with indignation, but coming from such a man as Mr. B. a native of one slave holding state and a resident of another, himself a slaveholder, and a man of well known talent, and fearless integrity, were heard with the closest attention, and responded to with hearty applause.

Mr. Elliot Cresson, of Philadelphia, [illegible] offering a resolution recognizing the formation of the British African Colonization Society, accompanied his motion with some interesting statements respecting the favour with which the colony of Liberia is regarded by many of the wisest, and most philanthropic minds in Great Britain.—The concluding speech on Monday evening was made by Hon. Theodore Frelinghuysen. Rarely, however, has a more eloquent appeal been listened in that hall.—The orator adverted to the opposition which the cause of colonization has lately encountered at the north. He dwelt particularly on the objection that the attempt to persuade people of colour to seek a new home under a more auspicious sky, was cruel. Some of your abolition friends were there to hear him. How they could hear this and ever insist on that objection, again without forfeiting their own self respect, I cannot imagine. The whole world, as Mr. C. remarked, has been in motion from the earliest ages under the impulse of a principle which leads men to seek out new places of abode, new homes for themselves and their children Colonization has been going on ever since Noah and his sons came out of the ark. Colonization has converted our country from a howling wilderness into [illegible] it now is, the wonder and pride of the world. Mr. Garrison and his troop have a great work to do if they have undertaken always to keep the coloured people from seeking to better their condition by emigration to other climes.

INDIAN HOSTILITIES NEAR [illegible]

The following are the incidents of an affair which has produced here considerable excitement:

Mr. L. B. Bartlet, agent of the celebrated Miami chief, Godfrey, passed through this place in company with Poqua, son of Godfrey, on their return from Cincinnati to the residence of the latter near Fort Wayne, Indiana, on Thursday, 7th inst. They stopped at a public house four miles west of this place a short time after going to bed, Poqua had gotten up on some false pretext, and provided himself with a dirk from his saddle-bags, sounded the accustomed war whoop in the ear of his astonished fellow traveller, and stabbed him through the neck. Both instantly sprang to the floor, and a desperate struggle ensued,—the Indian still uttering his baneful yells and occasionally wounding Bartlet. The noise awakened a number of individuals who rushed into the room. Mr. Clendinning the landlord, entered first, with a cane, which this the savage struck out, and stabbed him in the chest. Messrs. J. and W. Whitney next entered; the former of whom was wounded in the shoulder; the latter, [illegible] Achilles, received a stab in the heel. A Mr. Hipes next advanced;—him he wounded in the arm. The next thrust was at Mr. Bruce; but, like Clay's bullet aimed at Randolph, it was through his clothes. Poqua lost his dirk accidentally he now commenced with his fists, and soon remained sole master of the room, where he was blockaded all morning, when he quietly gave himself up. He is now lodged in our county jail. No adequate cause for his conduct has been assigned. The manner of the agent, Mr. Bartlet, towards him, appears to have been [illegible]

[illegible] and Poqua has heretofore sustained a character. It is supposed that none of [illegible] wounds are fatal, though Mr. Clendinning and Mr. Bartlet are seriously injured—the latter in five places.

THE EXECUTION.

Watkins the murderer of Case, was executed near this village on Friday last.

About 12 o'clock on Friday, the culprit was taken from his cell and conveyed to the place of execution, under a strong military guard. As he passed through the village, he eyed closely the house occupied, by the family of Case, and also the spot where the murder was committed There was a wild, demoniac expression upon his countenance, that seemed to predicate any thing but a mind prepared for death.

On arriving at the gallows, prayer was offered by Mr. Emmons, during which the poor wretch appeared totally unconcerned; he then shook hands with his attendants, and was placed upon the scaffold. He made a short address to the multitude, in which he declared his willingness to die, and pronounced the pamphlet which had been published as his confession to be untrue. About ten minutes before two o'clock he was launched into eternity.

It is evident that the wretched man died with a falsehood upon his lips. His confession, as it is called, was communicated to Gen. Forest, the person who had the care of him, and committed to paper from Watkins' own lips. The most material parts of it were [illegible] communicated to Sheriff Vernam [illegible] after his conviction.

It is computed that at least ten thousand persons were present at the execution—one thousand of whom at least, were women and children.

[illegible]s, we are satisfied of the bad effect and immoral tendency of public executions. We never again want to see acted the scenes of drunkenness and rioting of the late execution occasioned.

The body of Watkins was dug up the night of the execution, and carried away.—The lid of the coffin was found the next morning by the side of the grave, split in two or three pieces, and the cap was a short distance off.

MELANCHOLY.

A distressing and heart rending accident occurred on Thursday afternoon, the 16th inst. at the house of George W. Hipple, in Moreland township, Philadelphia county, by the accidental discharge of a gun, which resulted in the death of his wife.

The circumstances relative to the accident, as detailed by the family, are as follows:

The family had been sometime previously disturbed in the night by somebody about the house and in particular about the poultry yard; when through the course of the fatal day, Mrs Hipple said to her husband, that he had better take the load out of the gun, which he had been talking of for some time. The gun had been put in about three months before, when he had been out shooting robins, in order that they might be prepared in case they should be disturbed again He took the gun for the purpose aforesaid, and found that the percussion cap had rusted fast upon the tube; and in order to extricate the cap, he took his pocket knife and began cutting it away. Whilst he was engaged, Mrs. Hipple walked across the room from where she was sitting, and in reaching, when opposite the muzzle of the gun, and at the distance of about ten inches from her husband happened to draw his penknife briskly to remove the cap, it suddenly exploded, and discharged the contents of the gun in her right side under the lower edge of the shoulder blade, of which wound death ensued the scene in about fifteen or twenty minutes—during which time she seemed perfectly rational and sensible of her speedy dissolution—expressing with her last breath a parental care for her infant children. She has left a bereaved husband and three small children to bemoan her untimely end.—German Telegraph.

A man named Ephraim Pettingill, residing near Canterbury, N. H., left his work last evening, and was returning home with an axe on his shoulder, another without a handle in his hand, and a bottle of liquor in his pocket, when he threw that on his shoulder at some distance before him, staggered, and fell on the edge of the one he had in his hand, which sunk deep in his abdomen, and he died before relief could reach him.

A new barn, belonging to William Batsford, at Meriden, Conn. with all its contents, consisting of hay and grain, with a valuable horse, was consumed last week, by a singular accident. Mr. B. had a pig affected with mange; he applied the usual specific, a shovel full of ashes to his back, to effect a cure, with which the pig ran under the barn. Some embers remaining in the ashes set the combustibles around on fire, and hence the calamity. The horse was once rescued from the flames, but being left to himself, in the general panic, rushed again into the flames, and was destroyed.

An appropriation bill was made at the last session of Congress for the erection of a cadets at West Point, and a building for the exercise of the cadets in the winter, which has been found to be inadequate to the object, and their erection was deferred till another session.

The gum elastic cloth factory in Dedham is doing a great stroke of business. No less than forty girls are employed in sewing the cotton of which the cloth is covered. The shares in the stock which cost $100, now sell at $200.
