DEFORE the Select Circulating Libradiscovered that there was still something wanting-that many occurrences in the liteary world must piss unknown, as regarded ur agency, without an estension of the plan l'o establish a fuiler medium of communica ion and supply the desideration, the John ial of Belles Lettres was added; woich w have reason to believe has afforded genera satisfaction. The very liberal patronage ex binded to the Library induced the propotor to give that gratuit onsly as an evidence of his acknowledgments. More extended experience has shown her desiderata which the "Companion" ntended to supply. While reading for the Library" a large mass of material accunulates on the hands of the editor, of an interesting, entertaining, and instructive description, such as would properly come un-der the designation of Magaziniana, interpersed with the Reviews from the English Quarterlies. To publish every thing of this nature which we deem desirable would en creach too much on the columns of the "Libeary" designed for books, and yet to pass them by is constantly a subject of regret. centrate, therefore, the nub ication of Books entire, Reviews, lists of new works, Library" will be offered to the patronage of the "Journal," and the "Companion," such 1st. The proprietor of the "Select Circulating Library," fully aware from experience of the advantages to the public of the rapid diffusion of cheap and select literature, has been induced to add the important feature to the work, and of course leaves it optional with the present subscribers and others to take it or not.

It is confidently believed, that, with attention on the part of the Editor, who has already at hand the material for such a work, all the realty valuable matter of the English literary and amusing publications may be comprised in this form at a rate of subscription and postage, so trifling as scarcely to be felt. It will form the cheapest reprint of said estate, are desired to present them, by reviews and magazines ever attempted in gally authenticated, and those incetted as be felt.
