THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

This document had not reached either Lone don of Paris at the above dates. It was possived in Liverpool on the evening of the 5th, by the packet ship Independence; and the Liverpool Journal of the 10th thus comments on it. At a late hour last night we received the message of the President of the Juliad States, of America. Of this very important and interesting document we have made a full shatner. The reader will perceive that, at last, after, repeated instances of had faith on the part of Louis Philip and his ministers towards America, the Prolip and his ministers towards America, the Pre-sident has been compelled to speak out. He disterms, he had threatened to resign if the Congress did not support him. The only point at issue seems to be when letters of marque and reprisal against France shall be issued. The use of the dispute is detailed in our analysis of the Message. There is no empty threat a-gainst France, for America is by far the greater maritime power; the Navy of the United States, at this moment, consisting of 45 ships of war and materials in readiness to give instant birth to 25 more.

THE BULLETIN.

In undertaking to supply this acknowledged desideratum to the populous and intelligent district in which the subscriber has the fortune to reside, his hope of ultimate success finds not its origin in sanguineness of cess finds not its origin in sanguineness of temperament, but proceeds from the eminent advantages of its location. Published in the metropolis of a large and wealthy county, situated equi-distant from the State and National capitals, facilities of an early communication of whatever may interest its patrons, are particularly afforded to the Editor; and though he may not hope to present to his friends much foreign information through the medium of his columns, not derivable from other journals, it is still certain that intelligence of a local nature, interesting to alland important to many, and otherwise unattamable, will by this means be communicated.
It will also offer to those whose means are inudequate to the expense of the larger journals, at least a synoptical view of all the important information they contain; and he trusts that those of literary taste may, sometimes find in its columns, articles not unworthy of the employment of their leisure. As the plan of every publication which is to find its success in popular support, must first be exposed before public patronage can be expocted, the Editor would here mark the outline of his design, with the full knowledge that it will constitute an order, by which, to determine both its merit and the fidelity of its prosecution.
