

The editor of the Journal of Commerce, says he has seen a letter from Havre, which says that the opinion is unfavourable as to the Kennedy Bill being satisfactory.

CHAMBER OF PEERS.
Trial of the Accused of April.

The Paris papers are chiefly occupied with proceedings in the Court of Peers, and all still of a preliminary nature. The Chamber of Peers is to deliberate on the question, whether counsel not members of the bar should be allowed to conduct the defence of individual prisoners, the Peers on their return, having been absent, pronounced the following opinion:

"The Court having taken into consideration the demand of the prisoners Beane, Miller and others, that they might be permitted to retain as their counsel Messrs. Voyer d'Argenson, Audry de Puyraveau, and others, who are neither barristers nor attorneys, having considered the 29th article of the code of criminal instruction; having heard the conclusions of the Procureur-General; and seeing that the President of the Court has made a justified legitimate use of the discretionary power conferred on him by the 29th article of the code; declares that there is no room for the admission of the prisoners' demand."

Several of the accused insisted on the wives, sisters and other female relatives being admitted into Court during the trial. The President replied, that women were never admitted to be present in the Chamber of Peers when sitting as a court of justice. After the prisoners had been ordered to be withdrawn, one of them from Lyons demanded that freedom of communication should be allowed between his friends and their fellow-prisoners of Lunerille, St. Etienne, Paris, and other places, on which the President rose, put on his hat, and announced that the audience was for that day at an end.

Second Day's Sitting, May 6.—At 12 o'clock, 12 o'clock, the Peers entered and took their seats. The Ministers for the Duke de Broglie, and Thiers, Minister of the Interior. After the list of Peers had been called over, several of the prisoners, among the most persevering of whom were Carnot and Martin, attempted to address the court on their right of choosing their counsel from persons whether belonging to the bar or not, a question which the Court decided in the negative on the preceding day. Messrs. Carnot and Martin persisted in urging their claim, which they were encouraged and supported by unanimous adhesion of their fellow prisoners, who rose up, and with loud cries and violent gestures, declared that they persisted in the claim. (Here the loud almost menacing tones of the prisoners' voices, their determined and energetic attitudes and actions, some then having stood upon the benches to address the Procureur-General, and the cries of the latter in municipal guards, a file of whom was placed between every two files of prisoners, to repress the tumult, produced a scene of confusion and violence of a character foreign to the unimpassioned solemnity that pervade a court of justice.)

When this scene of confusion had somewhat subsided, the Procureur-General informed the prisoners, that in case any of them should interrupt the proceedings of the Court by persisting in urging a claim which the Court had already decided against, he would call on the Court to sentence them to the fine and imprisonment specified by the criminal code against prisoners who make use of insulting language or gestures towards judges. To this declaration the prisoners assented, starting up simultaneously, and protesting with one accord, as far as the confusion would permit us to perceive that they would persist in urging their right to choose their own counsel. The Procureur-General then upon the Court to pronounce against the prisoners, Cavignac, he being the most energetic in his protestations, from one month to two years imprisonment, a fine not exceeding 500 francs, the penalty provided by the criminal code for such cases. The Peers immediately rose and retired, at a quarter to 1 o'clock, to the Council Chamber, to deliberate on the application of the Procureur-General. At the same moment the Court retired, the Ministers the Duke de Broglie and Thiers withdrew from their box.

At half-past 2 o'clock, when our reporter quitted the Court, proceedings had not been resumed, the Peers being in the Council Chamber.

It is said, however, that the Court has sentenced Cavignac to two years imprisonment.

Our readers will recollect that, on the anniversary of St. Philip, last year, some French seamen on board the Suffren ship of the line were accidentally killed, and others disabled, on firing a salute from the American frigate the United States. The day previous to the departure of Mr. Livingston, from Paris for Havre, that gentleman signed a convention with the Duke de Broglie, by which an annual pension of 120 dollars was secured to be during life to each of the sufferers, and a like sum to the parents of those who were killed.

SPAIN.
Our advices are down to the 19th of April from Madrid, and the 2d of May from Bayona.

On the 26th the whole of the royalist forces were concentrated around Pampeluna under El Pastory Zucarrery, the Carlist General, was on the same day on the mountains of Andia, within three leagues of Queen's troops, with twelve battalions, and an attempt was daily expected. The report of the Carlist General, is shown to be entirely without foundation. General Valdes arrived at Victoria on the 17th.

After this date the accounts are exceedingly contradictory. It is stated that on the 21st, General Valdes was attacked by Zumalacarrery and forced to retreat on Arranache; that on the next day (the 22d) Calisto attacked him again, and that, after having long, which lasted that and the next two days, he was again compelled to retreat in disorder, taking direction of Estella, but that Zumalacarrery, after taking refuge among the heights of Erual. The Carlist Royalists is said to have been very great—more than 1000 killed and 600 prisoners—all their baggage, horses, and upwards of 3000 mules. The report described as almost, if not entirely fatal to the Carlist cause. Lord Elliot, the English mediator with Don Carlos at Segura while those battles fought.

Another account states that Valdes and the main of his forces were not in the engagements that he succeeded in surprising the male body of the Car-

WALDIE'S LIBRARY, PORT FOLIO AND MUSEUM.

The publications now issued from the office of the Select Circulation Library, in a highly popular cast, and of a character and value, not to be surpassed by any other of the kind in the country, and to circulate every where, in connection with the proprietor of the Library, and to those who take the three monthly publications, viz:

1. The Circulating Library, which, if published in any town or country, will be supplied for $12, thus enabling every individual to benefit by the circulating system, without the necessity of applying for the current year to either of the works, of whatever amount, will be privileged to avail themselves of this arrangement, by paying the balance—

2. Those who have paid or now pay $5 for the Library, shall receive the Museum and Port Folio, the price of which separate is $9, on the payment of $7.

3. Those who have paid or now pay $6 for the Museum, shall receive the Library and Port Folio, the price of which is separately $8, on the payment of $6.

4. Those who have paid or now pay for the Port Folio, shall receive the Library and Museum on paying such a sum as will be equal to $12 on the whole.

5. The Circulating Library and Museum, will be sent to the same address on the payment of $10.

REMARKS.—The three works thus issued together, comprise a greater amount of the current literature of the age, than is issued in a periodical form from any other office in the United States, and will, the proprietor believes, with the addition of a good newspaper, supply to families all the advantages which could be furnished in a most extensive reading room in one of our Atlantic cities. In the Library the newest and best books are regularly published; in the Museum and Port Folio it has been found by experience that every thing we could wish to copy from the entire British literary periodicals, omitting mostly the political articles, can be rapidly issued. These publications embrace so much that is desirable to be known, and are so generally perused in the best circles in America, that to be without either is to drop a link in the literary chain. They are all under the control of one mind, and therefore the reader will very rarely indeed be compelled to pay for the same matter twice, as they are independent of each other, complete in themselves, and free in general from any repetitions of the same articles.

These views the proprietor respectfully throws out for the consideration of the friends of sound and wholesome literature.

THE WASHINGTON MIRROR.
A weekly newspaper, devoted to Politics, Literature, and District Affairs, is published every Saturday at the seat of the General Government.

BY WILLIAM HOOPER.

TWENTY-SIX numbers of this Journal have been already published; and another series is commenced with increased and increasing patronage. The publisher and editor has enlarged the Mirror, from the Medium to the Super Royal size. It is printed on good paper and with new type, and will be delivered at the residence of each subscriber in Washington, Georgetown and Alexandria, on the day of publication. Price Two Dollars per annum—the first half year invariably in advance. Subscriptions and advertisements are respectfully solicited. Postmasters and others residing out of the District, who will procure five subscribers and remit $5, in advance for half year's subscription, will receive a gratuitous copy of the Washington Mirror. The editor will spare no pains to obtain correct and early information of public occurrences at the seat of the Federal Government, and his editorial comments will be as far as possible, free from party or sectional bias. If the Washington Mirror should continue to be liberally patronized, the publisher will continue to make further improvements.

He respectfully announces the following new arrangements:

1st. The Washington Mirror will continue on its present size and price without any change or alteration in the ensuing volume.

2d. Country subscribers will have their papers regularly mailed on the day of publication.

3d. During the session of congress, a weekly article will be prepared and invariably appear under the head of 'Sayings and Doings in Congress.'

4th. During the recess the political rumors and on-dits at the seat of the General Government, will be noted for the information of distant subscribers.

5th. The names of all the subscribers to the Mirror in Washington, Georgetown and Alexandria, will be published, once every six months, in an advertising directory, with the profession and residence of each subscriber.

6th. For the information of commercial readers, a selection will be made and published every week, from the New York Journal of Commerce; also a price current, adapted to the Washington and Georgetown markets, and carefully corrected for the Mirror by intelligent mercantile gentlemen. This information will be given under the head 'Commercial.'

7th. For the Ladies' and Literary Department of the Mirror, good original, and well selected matter will be constantly provided.

Having already nearly seven hundred subscribers in the city of Washington alone, and a very handsome subscription in Georgetown and Alexandria, the Mirror will, it is presumed, obtain a fair portion of advertising patronage.

Communications, whether containing orders or remittances, must be addressed (postage free) to W. Thompson, editor of the Mirror, Washington city, D. C.

We shall be much obliged to the editors with whom we exchange, if they will aid us in making known these arrangements and the enlargement of the Mirror.

CHAMBER OF PEERS.
Trial of the Accused of April.

The Paris papers are chiefly occupied with proceedings in the Court of Peers, and all still of a preliminary nature. The Chamber of Peers is to deliberate on the question, whether counsel not members of the bar should be allowed to conduct the defence of individual prisoners, the Peers on their return, having been absent, pronounced the following opinion:

"The Court having taken into consideration the demand of the prisoners Beane, Miller and others, that they might be permitted to retain as their counsel Messrs. Voyer d'Argenson, Audry de Puyraveau, and others, who are neither barristers nor attorneys, having considered the 29th article of the code of criminal instruction; having heard the conclusions of the Procureur-General; and seeing that the President of the Court has made a justified legitimate use of the discretionary power conferred on him by the 29th article of the code; declares that there is no room for the admission of the prisoners' demand."

Several of the accused insisted on the wives, sisters and other female relatives being admitted into Court during the trial. The President replied, that women were never admitted to be present in the Chamber of Peers when sitting as a court of justice. After the prisoners had been ordered to be withdrawn, one of them from Lyons demanded that freedom of communication should be allowed between his friends and their fellow-prisoners of Lunerille, St. Etienne, Paris, and other places, on which the President rose, put on his hat, and announced that the audience was for that day at an end.

Second Day's Sitting, May 6.—At 12 o'clock, 12 o'clock, the Peers entered and took their seats. The Ministers for the Duke de Broglie, and Thiers, Minister of the Interior. After the list of Peers had been called over, several of the prisoners, among the most persevering of whom were Carnot and Martin, attempted to address the court on their right of choosing their counsel from persons whether belonging to the bar or not, a question which the Court decided in the negative on the preceding day. Messrs. Carnot and Martin persisted in urging their claim, which they were encouraged and supported by unanimous adhesion of their fellow prisoners, who rose up, and with loud cries and violent gestures, declared that they persisted in the claim. (Here the loud almost menacing tones of the prisoners' voices, their determined and energetic attitudes and actions, some then having stood upon the benches to address the Procureur-General, and the cries of the latter in municipal guards, a file of whom was placed between every two files of prisoners, to repress the tumult, produced a scene of confusion and violence of a character foreign to the unimpassioned solemnity that pervade a court of justice.)

When this scene of confusion had somewhat subsided, the Procureur-General informed the prisoners, that in case any of them should interrupt the proceedings of the Court by persisting in urging a claim which the Court had already decided against, he would call on the Court to sentence them to the fine and imprisonment specified by the criminal code against prisoners who make use of insulting language or gestures towards judges. To this declaration the prisoners assented, starting up simultaneously, and protesting with one accord, as far as the confusion would permit us to perceive that they would persist in urging their right to choose their own counsel. The Procureur-General then upon the Court to pronounce against the prisoners, Cavignac, he being the most energetic in his protestations, from one month to two years imprisonment, a fine not exceeding 500 francs, the penalty provided by the criminal code for such cases. The Peers immediately rose and retired, at a quarter to 1 o'clock, to the Council Chamber, to deliberate on the application of the Procureur-General. At the same moment the Court retired, the Ministers the Duke de Broglie and Thiers withdrew from their box.

At half-past 2 o'clock, when our reporter quitted the Court, proceedings had not been resumed, the Peers being in the Council Chamber.

It is said, however, that the Court has sentenced Cavignac to two years imprisonment.

The day previous to the departure of Mr. Livingston, from Paris for Havre, that gentleman signed a convention with the Duke de Broglie, by which an annual pension of 120 dollars was secured to be during life to each of the sufferers, and a like sum to the parents of those who were killed.

MARYLAND COLONIZATION JOURNAL.
PROSPECTUS.—The Board of Managers of the State Colonization Society, and the Board of Managers of the State Fund, have resolved to publish a quarterly journal for the purpose of diffusing information concerning the principles and progress of the Maryland plan of Colonization. The Journal will also contain occasional notices of the operations of the friends of Colonization in other parts of the Union. It will be published at least once a quarter, and sometimes more frequently. Persons wishing to receive it regularly as published, may become subscribers by paying fifty cents per annum in advance. Donations for the support of the paper will be gratefully received. The friends of Colonization throughout the state will confer a great favour by transmitting for the Journal any intelligence which may promote the cause it advocates.

All communications are to be directed to the "Maryland Colonization Journal," Office of the Maryland State Colonization Society, Baltimore.
