Be this as it may; the painful event' has apseed, as ne notice taken of it now, can de any good. And I, therefore, consider any newspaper notoricty about it at the present day, as unnecessary. It was for this reason, when requested by a friend, to give him the facts in my possession for publication. I declined doing so, alleging that their appearance could answer no useful purposs. But the subject has lately been presented in such a form in the Alabama Journal, as to cause me to feel myself called upon to publish this communication, which is done with much reluctance as my professional engagements afford me little time to devote to such

It is not my wish or aim, however, to impage the motives of the Editor of that Journal, who, no doubt, acted from correct feelings, concluding every circumstance tending to cast light on that strange affair, would be interesting to his readers to the public.

THE TUMULTS IN WASHINGTON.

From the National Litelligencer of Saturday.
But little has occurred since our last paper, growing out of the existing excitement in this city, which is of so cruelly persevere in disturbing the peace and destroy. detection and discomfiture must follow close ing the character of the city. The arrangements are on the heals of their mis-statement. continued for averting, as far as practicable any further disturbance, or any injury to projecty. from our friends in Georgetown.

We grieve to have to publish such things of our hitherto peaceable city; but it was with feelings of the bitterest mortification that we witnessed, as we have done for the two last evenings, that a state of things should be brought shout by the rashness of any parties of our community, which should make the Officers of the Government deem it expedient (though unnecessarily, we think) to arm for the defence of the public property. We could not have believed it possible that we should live to see the Public Offices garrisoned by the clerks, with United States treeps posted at their doors, and their windows barricadoed, to defend them against citizone of Washington. Will not such a state of thange ple. open the eyes of the more considerate among the agitaopen the eyes of them who have any stake in the city—to a sense of the fatal tendency of their conduct to the vital interests of the city, and induce them, not only to desist, but to aid their fellow citizens in restoring order, and leaving to the legal tribunals & the constituted authorities the administration of justice, and the reform

The abhorrence which reflecting men entertain for tumultuous violence, and one of the chief reasons why m be of all descriptions, whether composed of good men or bad, must be reprobated and repressed, is, that though their original purpose may be prompted by natural and justifiable feelings, they never fail to run into the commission of excesses, at which the perpetrators of them would at first have recoiled with a some. Thus on the present occasion, in this city, the natural resontment inspired by a demoniscal design, on the part of a finatical individual to stir up our negro population to insurrection and murder, and the just indignation felt at the insolence and infunous life of the wretch who has fled from the wrath which he had excited, have degenerated nto a destruction of the property of innocent individuals, in the demolition even of places used for the wor, ship of God Almighty, the agitation of the city, the terror of the women and children, and enduring injury to the character of the city, if not utter ruin to all its hopes and prospects.

We therefore ! those who are yet joined to the agitators, to reflect on fixed determination to attend to the duties of the consequences to us all, of this continued disturbance of the heace, and desist; and we with the same earnest At the present moment I have no disposition ness entreat all good citizens to join in preserving the o recur to the melancholy events of the last peace, and in putting an end to such an unusual and disreputable state of things.

ARRIVAL OF CAPT. BACK.

The Montreal Herald of Saturday announced the arrival of Capt. Back at Lachine, L. C. on his return from the polar regions in search of Capt. Ross, (who has long since reached Eng. land.) Capt. B. is stated to be in fine health and spirits.

CAPT. BACK, who has lately returned from an Arctic Expedition, reached New York on Saturday evening, and left there on Monday morning in the packet ship North America for Liverpool.

The President of the United States reached Washingn on Sanday with improved health, from his visit to the Rip Raps.
