Message required. The Philadelphia Evening Star has the following: Rather Squally .- An order has been received from the Secretary of the Navy for opening in this city a naval rendezvous for the enlistment of seamen. We understand from a gentleman onnected with the Navy Department that the order embraced the recruiting not only of thorough seamen, but also ordinary seamen, boys and landsmen. It is well known that recruiting has been going on moderately for some time past, but this was all in the usual course of things, and none but thorough bred seamen were taken.

The express by the Francis 1st, probably reached Washington on Sunday evening, and if the above order is predicated on the despatches received from Mr. Barton, our Charge d'Affairs at Paris, we contess the prospect of the continuance of pacific relations with France is considerably diminished. The anxiety to see the President's message has been not a little increased by the reception of the above order from

AN UNNATURAL PARENT. The Hampshire Gazette furnishes the following facts, which transpired in the Court of Comnon Pleas at Northampton, on the tria ar

action by the town of Middlefield against Eli Crowell: This was a petition and complaint to Court, praying that Eli Crowell might be held to contribute for the past and future expenses of between the parties. Who is there, that has nator from that State, to serve for six yes Urbans Crowell and Sally Crowell his children. The Statute provides that the father, if of sufficient ability, shall be liable for the expenses of pauper children, in proportion to such ability. The evidence disclosed an extraordinary course of conduct on the part of the father. He was a sions feelings that only youth talks of, and good farmer in Middlefield, out of debt, and only manhood realizes—which are true to life worth in all about 32 or 33 hundred dollars. Having two insane children, he applied to the Court of Probate for an order for their removal, and procured the assistance of some of the ciholding out the idea to the officers of the town portion of the estate, and that he should propose to the town to assume their shares. He afterwards, however, sold out, and distributed his property among his other children, one son and two daughters, who were sane, and left the lunched her children, was not in his possession. It had hereto the town daughters, who were sane, and left the lunched her children, one son and two daughters, who were sane, and left the lunched her children, one son and two daughters, who were sane, and left the lunched her children, one son and two daughters, who were sane, and left the lunched her children, one son and two daughters, who were sane, and left the lunched her children, one son and two daughters, who were sane, and left the lunched her children, one son and two daughters, who were sane, and left the lunched her children her children, one son and two daughters, who were sane, and left the lunched her children h natics upon the town destitute.

Evidence was introduced of his declaring it to be his intention on one occasion, to put his property out of his hands and throw the help-less children on the public. There was also some proof of very strange treatment on these poor creatures before they were removed, but it was rather of the hearsay species. It appeared that the principal cause of dispute between the town and Mr. Crowell was in regard to the son, as he did not refuse to contribute for the daughter to some extent. We doubt whether another so unnatural a case can be found on re-cord—a father impoverishing attempting to make a pauper of himself, in order to cast the burden of his own offspring upon the town. A man that could do this would almost, like a pagan parent, throw his infant children into the sea as fast as born, for fear they might be expensive to him. Mr. Theodore Coats testified that an one occasion, being in conversation with the respondent, Mr. Crowell said that if the citizens of Middlefield would read their hible more they

EFFECTS OF REMORSE.

There is a young man named Bardwell, in prison at Northampton, Mass. for the commision of sundry larcenies. He was arraigned before the Court last week, but by reason of insanity was unable to plead, and was returned to the prison. This incident forms a theme for the subsequent reflections by the editor of the Northampton Courier:

"It literally makes the heart ache to witness the mere wreck of this once noble and proud spirited boy. What a moral spectacle for the young as well as parents to contemplate! Here is a youth of much promise for future usefulness, enjoying the confidence of his employer, king of seligious and moral instruction, having irksome cares and responsibilities of mature life -suddenly detected in the commission of crime, and confined with criminals of every grade in prison. He is overwhelmed by the awfulness of his situation and the amount of guilt which has so fearfully broken around his mind. His tears avail him not, and the sorrows of a heartbroken mother strengthen the acuteness of his anguish, until reason totters. Suddenly the father dies in a distant land, and the only hope of earthly succor seems now obliterated and quenched. One long and deep burst of grief follows, and reason is crushed, and the light of intellect is extinguished, perhaps, forever

Since the hour in which his father's decease was communicated, he has not spoken a syllable, nor uttered a word! He seems doomed to eternal silence and idiocy! He is wholly unconscious of the existence of any object around him! He knows nothing, and heeds nothing. The familiar voice of his mother falls as powerless upon his ears as the grating of the prison knows not the way to appreciate. Day and night find him the same vacant, idiotic being, (Van Buren) was elected Governor; Claiborne, retaining his animal nature, but with drooping (Vav Buren) elected, and Dickson, (White.) the head and palsied mind and quenched intellect Hugh L. White, contradicted from another quarter. We still should not pass without its salutary influence and impressiveness upon the young. seem like beacon lights lifted on high, designed Edwards. There is a majority of two to one on to warn the unwary through the journey of life requiring a constant watchfulness of the pasions and outposts to be placed around virtue, to keep the heart unspetted in the world, so that ts possessor may ultimately secure the needed attributes of Heaven."

There has been another trial for breach of promise. It took place last week in Boston, and Miss Mehitable Granger recovered from Mr. W. Farwell the sum of $800. We dare say the man deserved the verdict, but we object to the publication of the leaers which passed gislature of the State of South Carolina, a had any thing to do in these matters—and who has not? that does not, in searching some odd corner of his writing desk, find an occasional letter which he would not, for the worth of worlds, have "put into the paper?" some expres-
