His love of liberty is so touchy, that a new study lion, and he forthwith proceeds to combine against the constituted authorities and proclaim the rights of man. Reasoning with him at such times is vain. A syllogism addressed to a northeaster would be quite as cogent. In dealing with such people, the times of trouble come round pret:y often; so that we have heard the wish expressed that boys, unless of special so-briety and promise, might be put to sleep at 14. and not wake up till 21. But as that is impossible, they must be trained up by other means. This brings us round again to the necessity of some adequate control. The subjects of college tutelage will not be regarded as boys; and they hight to be treated as gentlemen, while they be have like gentlemen. What Clinch. Gaines and Scott, under fair auspices, could not have accomplished, Gen. Jesup has been enabled to perform. The stain which has blotted the national escutcheon, that of permitting a band of savages to burn our habitations, and destroy our citizens with impunity is at last wiped off.

Our correspondents need be under no apprehension respecting the truth of our statements. We can vouch for their general correctness. The Ocmulgee brings official despatches from Gen. Jesup, of the same tenor; and all may be assured that the war has terminated.
