THE Publishers of the New-Yorker commenced in March last, a weekly edition of their publication in quarto form, and made, as they thought, cample provision for supplying as great a number of subscribers as their most flattering hopes led them to be lieve would pattonize the work under its then new arrangement. They have been deceived—agreeably so, in their calculations, inasmuch as the favour shown to the publication rapidly absorbed the whole edition, and constant orders are received for copies, which the Publishers have been unable to supply. With a view to obviate this difficulty, and meet the wishes of the many who desire to patronize the work, the Publishers have resolved to neutralize the blank in the current solved to the citizens of Analyse of hashe purposes during his cution unance in this city, to attend to the practice of his profession. therefore, will be issued the first number of new series of the Quarto New Yorker, of No. 1. of Vol 11. thus affording to new subscribers an opportunity of beginning with a distinct volume, entirely unconnected with the one preceding, while our original patrons will be advantaged in receiving their copies in a form calculated better for binding in a convenient volume, than under the old arrangement. The distinguishing line between the old and new Series will be indicated at the head of the first page of every number; and as no change is contemplated in the size or quality of the work, no inconvenience can result to those who have taken it from the commencement; while, on the other hand, it presents the features of an entirely new pub tication to those who may date their sub-scription with the new volume.

Under its improved arrangement, the whole edition for one year will embrace two semi annual volumes, each containing four hun-dred and sixteen pages of original and se-lected matter such as has beretolore been pre-sented to its readers, and which, it is loped, has been of a character to meet the full ap proval of the literary and general fastes the reading community. The two volumes will comprise eight hundred and thirty-two papes of fifty two of which will be Music.

The aim of the Publishers is to present a compact, next, and portable form, a litera ry and miscellaneous journal adapted to the intellectual wants of their readers; and from the very flattering success that has thus far in that city, and succeeds the Gentleman's Vade Mecam, formerly ideal by Mr. Charles Alexander, which

The Quarte New Yorker will be published every Saturday afternoon on an extra impe-mind, consequent upon the cases and vexa-tions of business, the publisher anticipates sixteen pages of three columns each, and for it a most flattering and extensive subweek, and is, very unequivocally on the "go ahead" system—There is no doubt, but that the publisher, our friend Godor, whose Ludy's Book we have in times part laboured to make our fair readers fairly in love with, will gain troops of friends in his new enterprise, and line his pockets to some purpose with the "meedial." Very well. We are glad of it. The sketch under our police head is by Mr. Neal, and is in his minitable style. We hope to be able to treat our friends often to style.
