

was known, a number of intelligent and respectable business men assembled at their office in the evening, to discuss the propriety of such a measure.

The matter was considered in all its bearings—the state of the country canvassed—the extent of the general distress—the general discontents still existing in the currency by the unwise action of the government; and thus viewing the matter in all its ramifications, they came to the conclusion that the measure was imprudent and premature, and would not be sustained by the course of events.

The Messrs. Joseph, having the fullest confidence in the judgment and friendship of their advisers, reluctantly sacrificed their own feelings, and fell back, therefore, upon their previous position, until they shall receive further advice from New Orleans of the re-establishment of their correspondence credit in that quarter.

They have, therefore, on the best and most mature advice, suspended payments for the present, but with a strong hope that this day's Express may settle favourably the perplexing question.

We are left, therefore, in a state of hope and fear, but sad experience has shown, that by the great laws of trade and public opinion, the loss of credit for half a day is equivalent to its loss for half a century.

The liabilities of this house are heavy. It is difficult to get at the fact, but rumour fixes it at a varying sum of five to eight millions of dollars. Another statement mentions that as far as ascertained their assets, at their present current value, exceed their liabilities $750,000 to $1,000,000.

THE NEW ORLEANS FAILURES.

The New Orleans correspondent of the New York Courier and Enquirer writes under date of the 9th inst.—

"The reports on this head were so contradictory, even at the office of the Notary, who protests for the different Banks, that I have abstained from writing until I have been able to make the fullest inquiries, the result of which is—

The stoppage of the old house of Hermann & Son, (the father)

Do, do, of Hermann & Briggs, (the son)

Do, do, of Thomas Barrett & Co. in which there is another son of Mr. Hermann, senior, in partnership.

That is to say, that the three houses of Hermann, who were closely connected, have definitely stopped; that of T. Barrett & Co. today, when Mr. Barrett resigned his situation as Director of the Gas Company. Great exertions have been made to support this house, but in connection with the other two rendered us, and insufficient the means placed at their disposal. The liabilities of the three establishments are variously stated at from nine to ten millions of dollars; but it is expected that T. Barrett & Co. will be enabled to resume their payments next month.

The house of Lee, Maddox & Wood, after a short suspension of one day, have resumed their payments and operations, as it was found that they had ample means to meet every demand upon them, and their credit is unimpaired.

The reports that are in circulation concerning two more respectable houses are destitute of foundation, and consequently I abstain from giving you their names.

The amount of bills drawn by Hermann upon the houses of Hermann, and which will be returned protested to New York, is variously estimated at from $1,200,000 to one million and a half; but it is generally supposed that they must be secured by the amount of shipments of cotton effected by the Hermanns, and consigned to the agent of the New York house at Liverpool. I hope that this is the case."

A New Orleans slip, bearing date of 10th inst. contains no reference to the late failures in that city except the following:

Office of the True American, }
Thursday, March 9th, 1837. }

At last we have a return of fine weather. Things are pretty much status quo. Our distance from the metropolis of the States prevents the immediate effects being seen of any derangement in the channels of commerce. We must hear from New York before we can know the true results of the failures in this city. It reports New York, but we put no faith in the rumour. Nothing has transpired of any importance in the monetary world. Good paper is readily taken at the banks, though the demand for money is not so great as usual.

In the regular articles of trade we observe a disposition in buyers to hold off. The receipts of Lard, Bacon and Flour to day have been very large. A falling off in lard of half a cent is noticed, while Whiskey has suffered a decline of two cents. We quote Lard at 9 cents, and Whiskey at 36 cents. Prices generally remain at yesterday's quotations.

Cotton is looking up again. The transactions have been brisk and in some instances heavy.

A letter dated at New Orleans on the 10th, to a respectable gentleman in this city, says that the Banks have concluded to do nothing in the case of Messrs. Hermann, Briggs & Co.

By the Southern Express Mail.

There are no slips from New Orleans by last night's mail.

WAR IN FLORIDA ENDED.

A slip from the Savannah Georgian office has the following:

BLACK CREEK, March 10, 1837.

Dear Brother:—An express arrived at this place 12 o'clock last night, bringing this agreeable news from Gen. Jessup, that the war is really closed: The Indians have given up, and have surrendered. All the chiefs but Osceola have come in, and have consented to removal. All are to assemble at Tampa Bay by the 10th day of April next, prepared for removal to their western homes. The Indians say that Osceola is on the Suwannee, and that they will bring him to Tampa Bay by the 10th of April. In great haste, or I would write more fully.

Yours, &c. BENNET M. DELL.

To Col. JAMES DELL, Jacksonville.

From the New London Gazette.

"A NEW THING."

We have received the first number of a newspaper just published at New London, in New York, called the Radii; published by LEVI S. BACKUS, a deaf and dumb person; a native of Lebanon in this State.

We confess we feel interested in his success from the boldness and novelty of the undertaking, and because he learned the rudiments of printing in our office. But aside from any particularities, we may be supposed to entertain, we feel bound to recommend it to the patronage of the public, from its intrinsic worth, judging from the contents of the first number. His address is a clever article, evidently from his pen, judging from the idiosyncrasy of the style; and expresses, not only gratitude to the philanthropists of modern times, who by their humane efforts, have in some measure, restored those faculties to him and his unfortunate fellows, of which they have been deprived by nature; and he feels, as if by their benevolent labors (having been a Charity Scholar in the Asylum at Hartford) he has been raised almost to a level with those to whom nature has been more munificent. And he thinks he and his class may now be exalted in moral and intellectual attainments, and his ambition is excited to attempt advancement in improvements far beyond the sphere in which they have hitherto been circumscribed.

In this essay he is prompted by a desire to remunerate his benefactors, by evincing his and his mute brethren's capability of becoming useful, even in the arts and sciences from which they have heretofore been thought excluded by insurmountable barriers. He says:

"What a source of self gratification to those self-devoted philanthropists who have heralded the way, to see they have retrieved from unnatural degradation so large a portion of the human family!"

And adds—The opening of the vestibule will urge them to seek further with avidity, and push their researches into nature's noble temple.

With these feelings he has been incited to his present enterprise. He adds:

"His attempt being the first of any who have in his condition (ventured) to sustain any thing like a public station, it will be viewed by his companions in misfortune with interest and solicitude; his success will be the signal for their exertions, while a failure will sink them into a corresponding insignificance." An appeal which cannot be rejected with indifference, by the benevolent and charitable. He disclaims entering into the snarl of politics. He professes perfect neutrality. This alone, if he abides by his promise, will give value to his paper. To see one clean sheet, among the thousand and one Newspapers of this quid nunc country, devoted exclusively to useful instruction and amusement, as the editor engages his shall be, will present a jewel worth preserving, and entitle him to a generous support.

Judging from the various matter, in the present number, we think he will make his promise good; its contents are diversified, and the paper is filled with well selected and original matter, culled with taste and judgment. Had we time and room we would give copious extracts from this novel production, but we must forbear, only remarking, that we sincerely wish the undertaking success in his labors; and recom mend the paper to the patronage of all who take pleasure in seeing poor human nature rising in moral and literary attainments, and with industry, perseverance and courage, conquering the impediments that nature sometimes interposes to the progress of intellectual improvement.

SUBSCRIPTION FOR VOL. IV. OF THE CULTIVATOR.

A MONTHLY PUBLICATION, COMPRISING 200 PAGES IN A VOLUME, DEVOTED TO THE IMPROVEMENT OF THE SOIL AND THE MIND.

The Conductor tenders his acknowledgments to gentlemen, for their kind offices in extending the circulation of the CULTIVATOR, and respectfully solicits the continuance of their good will. Putting out of the question our personal contributions, of the merits of which it does not become us to speak, we venture to say, there is no periodical of its price, that contains more matter directly useful to the great agricultural interest, than is to be found in the columns of the Cultivator. One volume contains as much matter, by printer's computation, as five ordinary duodecimos, which sell at 75 cents each. If, then, as we believe, the paper is both cheap and useful, and calculated to promote improvement in the business of husbandry, every gentleman may extend its circulation, by a moderate effort to himself, and for the great interest which it is our pride and pleasure to serve.

The entire series of the Cultivator will be sent to order, at 50 cts. the volume, or $2 for the three volumes bound together. 11 vols. for $5.

Subscriptions to the above work received by A. COWAN, Annapolis.

MAMMOTH SHEET.

OFFICE OF THE SATURDAY NEWS AND LITERARY GAZETTE. Philadelphia, November 26, 1836.

THE very liberal patronage bestowed on the SATURDAY NEWS, since its commencement in July last, and a desire to meet that patronage by corresponding exertions, have induced us this week to publish a Double Number—being the largest sheet ever printed in Philadelphia for any purpose, and the largest literary paper ever printed in the United States. To those of our friends who are practical printers, it need not be mentioned that this undertaking has involved serious mechanical difficulties. The largest page of the largest presses in Philadelphia is used for our ordinary impression—but this would accommodate only a single page of the mammoth sheet, and we were obliged, therefore, to work four forms at different periods. The care used in preparing the paper, in removing and folding the sheets, &c., can only be estimated by those who have seen the experiment made; and added to the necessarily increased amount of composition, press work, &c.—these supplementary expenses have made an aggregate cost, which would have deterred many from engaging in the enterprise. A gain of two thousand new subscribers will not repay the actual cost of this single number.

We flatter ourselves that, besides its extraordinary size, this number presents attractions that entitle it to some attention.—It contains the whole of Friendship's Offering for 1837, the London copy of which costs $4, and has 384 closely printed pages of letter press. Distinguished as the present age, and particularly our own country, has been for cheap reprints, we believe this surpasses any former instance. For four cents subscribers to the Saturday News receive, in addition to their ordinary supply of miscellaneous matter, an English annual, the largest yet received for the coming season; and they receive it, moreover, in a form that, from its novelty, gives it additional value.

Of the general character of the Saturday News we need not speak. That has now become so well known as to require no comment. We may take occasion to say, however, that in enterprise and resources we yield to no other publishers in this city or elsewhere, and we are determined that our paper shall not be surpassed. We have entered the field prepared for zealous competition, and we stand ready in every way to realize our promise, that no similar publication shall excel that which we issue. Our articles, both original and selected, we are not ashamed to test by any comparison which can be adopted; and there is no periodical in the United States, monthly or weekly, which might not be proud of many of our contributors.

The issuing of this number may be regarded as an evidence of our intention and ability to merit success. Nor will it be the only effort—From time to time, as opportunity offers, we propose to adopt extraordinary means for the interest and gratification of our subscribers.

Sunderland having satisfied the court by competent testimony that he has resided two years within the state of Maryland immediately preceding the time of his application, and the said John W. Sunderland having taken the oath by the said act prescribed for the delivery of his property, and given sufficient security for his personal appearance at the county court of Anne Arundel county, to answer such interrogatories and allegations as may be made against him, and I having appointed Robert Plummer trustee for the benefit of the creditors of the said John W.
