Having property also in Arkansas, he left here or that state in October, and in passing through Cennessee met with the adventure related be ow in the beginning of November. It occurred in the vicinity of the military road leading to Memphis, and the partic dars are given by him self in a letter to a friend in this town. He was on foot, and had with him a bundle of cloth ing and a rifle. Meeting with a number of la borers upon the road, one of whom had a rifle they proposed an exchange, to which Mr. Wil cox listened; but they having no money to give in boot, did not trade. The letter goes on: "One of the leaders, a large young man, offer
