THREB years have now elapsed since the proprieto: of Waldie's Select Circulating Library laid before the public his original prospectus for a valuable library, the great features of which were cheapness, and the facility of a rapid transportation by mail. The most ample success has attended the enterprise, and the effects upon the reading community, it is believed, have been whole-community, it is believed, have been wholecommunity, it is believed, have been whole-

Five dollars per annum expended in this way will supply good reading for a whole circle or family; for a cent and half a day, post age included, a duodecimo book is sent every week, making in the course of the year more than three volumes of Rees's Cyclonedia. One volume of the Library, containing from fifteen to twenty entire works, can be bound at an expense little exceeding that of binding either separately, and constitutes a concentrated collection forming a never failing resource of amusement and instruction, and which must always be worth the price that has been paid for it. The most ample testimony has been spontaneously afforded that this work has contributed to the pleasure of thousands, who, but for the recourse it afforded, must have been left with minds unoccupied, or thrown into unprofitable and uncongenal society.
