

that noble to refer to... During the memorable contest on the Tariff, Mr. Clay then held up Albert Gallatin to the public gaze: "But sir, the gentleman to whom I am about to allude, although long a resident of this country, has no feelings, no attachments, no sympathies, no principles, in common with our people. Near fifty years ago, Pennsylvania took him to her bosom, and warmed, and cherished, and honored him, and how does he manifest his gratitude? By aiming a vital blow at a system endeared to her by a thorough conviction that it is indispensable to her prosperity. He has filled at home and abroad, some of the highest offices under this government, for thirty years, and he is still at heart an alien. The authority of his name has been invoked, and the labors of his pen, in the form of a memorial to Congress, have been engaged to overthrow the American system, and to substitute the foreign. Go home to your native Europe, and there incite upon her sovereigns your Utopian doctrines." Yet this is the man this Chamber, represented by Mr. Clay in the Senate Chamber, at heart an alien, and whom he ordered to Europe, that he is willing to place at the head of a National Bank, with a capital of not less than fifty millions, and all the revenue, the money of the people, to boot. Such things are strange indeed, and worthy of reflection. I do not concur in this libel on Albert Gallatin. I have always believed, and still believe him to be a friend to his adopted country, and one of its most distinguished ornaments. His late patriotic conduct in fulfilling his duties to the people and State of New York, by taking the lead in a full and honest resumption of specie payments, and maintaining that position in defiance of every obstacle, and the opposition of the Great Autocrat of all the banks, endears him to every friend of a sound convertible currency, and will hand his name down to posterity on one of the brightest pages of American history.

Four plans have been proposed in reference to the safe keeping and disbursement of the public funds, viz. a National Bank with a tremendous capital—a re-connection with the State Banks, both to have as a matter of course the use of the public funds to bank upon—an Independent Treasury, and a special deposit system. To the first I am opposed, both upon constitutional grounds and expediency, as the people of this country have known for years. To the second, because they have been several times tried and always failed, and because they still refuse to redeem their obligations to the people by the resumption of specie payments, after every reason they gave for the suspension has long since ceased to exist. To either the third or fourth, I would give my support under proper restrictions, because the great principle for which I contend would be subserved by either—a separation of the money of the people from banking operations; because I believe it to be perfectly constitutional, simple in its operation, economical, and calculated to deprive the Executive of great power and patronage, as may be easily illustrated by every man's asking himself this question—who exercises the greatest influence in society, the man who has fifty thousand dollars to keep, or fifty thousand to lend?

I have thus in my plain way, by a free and unreserved expression of my opinions, attempted to satisfy the curiosity of Mr. Hughes' correspondent. Much more could be said; but I refrain because I cannot see that right connection this national question has with our State affairs; and it is for a seat in the State Legislature that my friends have thought proper to present me to the consideration of the people as a candidate.

My catechist tells me that "they" (the people of the first district, are hard working men, pay heavy taxes to support the Union, and are not disposed to place power in the hands of any person as Senator, who advocates such a scheme.) I have lived long enough among them to bear testimony to their industry, and all other high traits of character that favourably distinguish any community. I have no doubt that they pay their taxes "to support the Union," with cheerfulness and patriotic pride. It is what the citizen justly owes the Union for its fostering and complete protection. These taxes are in proportion to the consumption and the duties upon the articles so consumed. I do not know the amount; but be it large or small, heavy or light, my scheme is, that the whole of it shall be paid for the support of the Union, and not as the advocates of a National or State Bank system contend, that it shall be paid into the vaults of the banks to be used for banking purposes. Or in other words, I am against taxing the people either indirectly or directly, to raise funds from them to be placed in the coffers of institutions to be loaned out to the favoured few for the benefit of the few interested. I am a farmer and planter, identified in almost every respect with the people of the country.

I have another objection. As a slaveholder, and living in the midst of a slaveholding population, I will never consent that the whole money power of the country shall be concentrated north of Mason's and Dixon's line under the power of so tremendous an engine as a Bank of the United States. And why? Because at my own expense I have sought to find out the organization of the Abolitionists, and the objects at which they aim. I find a complete organization in all the New England States, and every reason to believe that it exists, as they boast, to the Maryland line. Of this I have the most simple testimony in my possession, which I shall use before the people of the country when fitting opportunities present themselves. When the final issue comes, what can we do with the friends of that section against us—and all the concentrated power of our money, provided we are weak and foolish enough to lend our aid to the establishment of a National Bank?

...and I have too much confidence in the magnanimity of the hardy yeomanry and mechanics, not only of the first district, but of all the county and the city of Annapolis, to believe for one moment that for this honest and sincere expression of my opinions and sentiments, (made too upon demand,) that I have any thing to dread from the ideas of October.

JOHN S. SELLMAN.

THE DEATH OF COMMODORE RODGERS.

We announce with sincere feelings of sorrow, the removal from amongst us, of Commodore John Rodgers, a distinguished commander in our navy, and who as a citizen, was highly esteemed by all who had the happiness of his acquaintance. The Commodore expired on Wednesday evening about 9 o'clock, at the Naval Asylum, near the Schuykill, in the seventy-fourth year of his age, after a long and painful illness, which we are informed, he bore with Christian patience. While his friends and relations will long cherish the memory of his social and domestic virtues, his public services will be engraven in indelible characters upon the hearts of his countrymen.

NAVAL ORDER.

All officers of the Navy, who are attached to the U. S. Naval Station, at Philadelphia, are directed to attend the funeral of the late Commodore John Rodgers, from No. 290 Walnut street, Friday (this) afternoon, (3d inst.) at 5 o'clock in uniform.

Com'dr's Office, U. S. Navy Yard, Philadelphia, 2d Aug. 1839.

CHAS STEWART,

Com'dg officer of the station.

The officers of the Army, and the friends of Com. Rodgers, are respectfully invited to attend the funeral.

BRIGADE ORDER, No. 39.

Head Quarters, 1st Br. 1st Div. P. M. Philad. Aug. 2, 1839.

The decease of the venerable Commodore JOHN RODGERS, has been communicated to the Brigadier General in the absence of Major Gen. Patterson.

The Brigade will assemble on Friday afternoon, 3d inst. at 4 1/2 o'clock, on the west front of Washington square, right resting on Walnut street, for the purpose of rendering the last honors to the senior officer of the Navy of the United States.

The officers will wear craps on the bill of their swords. The Cavalry of the Brigade will be dismounted. A post on the right of the Brigade, will be assigned to such officers of volunteers or militia as may appear in uniform detached from their respective commands.

By order A. M. PROVOST, Brig. Gen. 1st Br. 1st Div. P. M. JOHN SELLER Jr. Brigadier Major.

COMMODORE RODGER'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Commodore Rodgers took place yesterday afternoon, from the house of Commodore Biddle, in Walnut near Tenth street.

Brigadier General Provost had called upon the uniformed companies of the city to aid in doing honours to the deceased, and many of them paraded at an early hour on Washington Square. They then formed the procession, the city military first, attended by the band from the Navy Yard and the German band. The flags and the side arms were dressed in black. To these succeeded a detachment of marines; the clergy followed these, and then the body, borne on a bier and the coffin covered with six national flags. The pall was sustained by six officers, chiefly of the Navy; among them were Commodores Stewart and Biddle. Eight U. S. seamen followed, the mourners succeeded these, and then the officers of the Navy and Army, foreign ministers, Judges of the United States Court and United States officers, the Sheriff and citizens. The body was conveyed to Christ Church burying ground, at the corner of Arch and Fifth street. When the military reached the entrance, they formed a line, and the body was taken from the bier and borne by the seamen, the marines preceding and the volunteers presenting arms. The solemn funeral service of the Episcopal Church was read by the Rev. Dr. Tyng. After which, the marines fired a volley over the grave. During the movement of the procession, minute guns were fired at the Navy Yard.—U. S. Gaz.

GENERAL NAVAL ORDER.

As a mark of respect to the memory of Commodore JOHN RODGERS, late senior officer of the Navy of the United States, who died in Philadelphia on the 1st inst. the flags of the Navy Yards, stations, and vessels of the United States Navy, are to be hoisted half mast, and thirteen minute guns fired at noon on the day after the receipt of this note.

Officers of the Navy and Marine Corps are to wear craps for thirty days.

J. K. PAULDING.

NAVY DEPARTMENT, August 3, 1839.

Extract of a letter to the Editors, dated ALLENTOWN, Aug 1, 1839.

The resumption of specie payments by the country banks this day, was hailed with a burst of joy in this section of the state. In our place the ringing of bells and firing of cannon announced our pleasure in an event which reflects so much credit on the banks themselves, and which will have so beneficial an effect on the prosperity of our country. To the firmness of the general government, and to the irresistible force of public opinion are we indebted for this comparatively early resumption. The proclamation of the Executive of our State has failed to postpone this measure to the 13th inst. as was intended. The Banks have resumed without a national regulator—the currency is restored.—Pennsylvanian.

The temporary embarrassments of the country are rapidly passing away, and that is enough to show they were not occasioned by the means of administration, for they remain unchanged or are virtually in operation. Many of the banks have already resumed specie payments, and a day has been assigned to Mr. Biddle for him to resume specie. In these institutions, in their refusal to redeem their notes, and the consequent commercial difficulties, may be found the true source of many of the evils which this country has lately suffered—and which is happily about to be corrected by the force of public opinion, by the firmness of the people, and by the steady ceaseless operation of commercial enterprise. The country is fast recovering from its embarrassments, without the aid of a national bank, and in spite of the bank which aspires to rule the nation. A little more firmness and patience on the part of the people and they will be relieved from the difficulties which were produced by these institutions in their impudent attempt to control public opinion, and eventually to govern the State. But let the people beware forever hereafter, of bank influence and power of bank intrigue and corruption.—Winchester Intelligencer.

We hear no more repouring about the Louisiana election—what is the matter? Is the "glorious victory" no great thing after all? The whigs ought not to be so downhearted—the loss of 900 votes is nothing to what they will lose.—Mobile Examiner.

From the Boston Gazette.

MELANCHOLY OCCURRENCE.

We learn that a party of sixteen persons whilst on a sailing excursion on Sunday last in a small schooner, on Chester river, near Love Point, were capsized by a squall of wind, and melancholy to relate, seven of the sixteen were drowned. The names of the lost were Mrs. Richardson, and her three daughters, of Kent Island, Capt. Denny, of the schooner, whose wife was one of the three ladies mentioned above, and a coloured man and woman. The rest saved their lives by clinging to the vessel, while the unfortunate in endeavouring to avail themselves of a bateau were drowned.

LAND FOR SALE.

THE subscriber offers for sale a FARM near Annapolis, known as the Wing House Farm, containing one hundred and sixty acres of Land of good quality. There is on the premises a comfortable Dwelling House, a new Tobacco House, and other out buildings; there is a sufficiency of wood and timber for all necessary purposes. The Farm may be enlarged to any convenient number of acres, the person owning the adjoining lands will sell the whole, or such parts as the purchaser may require, and which addition would include a large quantity of wood and excellent timber. The Farm may be made very valuable at a small expense, the soil being congenial to the use of clover and plaster, and would be a desirable purchase to any person as a Tobacco and Wheat Farm, combining all the advantages of marketing, either at Annapolis or Baltimore, as vessels run regularly to Baltimore out of South River, to which this estate lays adjacent. The Annapolis and Elk Ridge Rail Road is near the premises, which, when finished, will afford great facilities to market at Washington, Baltimore or Annapolis. The terms, which shall be favourable, can be known by application to the subscriber, living near South River Bridge, and who will show the premises to any person desirous to purchase.

If this Land should not be sold before the 15th August, it will on that day be offered at Public Sale, to the highest bidder, on the premises, the sale to take place at 12 o'clock M.

WASHINGTON.

SUBSCRIPTION

FOR THE FIFTH VOLUME OF THE CULTIVATOR, CONDUCTED BY J. BUELL. Office, No. 3, Washington-street, Albany.

THE CULTIVATOR is a monthly publication of 16 pages, devoted to agriculture, on a sheet of the largest size of paper—28 by 40 inches. The price is ONE DOLLAR per annum, payable in advance. The postage on a volume of the Cultivator will not exceed 18 1/2 cents to any part of the Union, and within the state, and a circle of 100 miles, it will be but 12 1/2 cents. A volume will contain more than 200 pages quarto, will be illustrated with cuts of animals, implements, &c. and be furnished with a copious index. It will comprise as much letter press print as 1500 pages of common duodecimo—as much as the Penny Magazine, published by the British Society for the Promotion of Useful Knowledge, and which, at two dollars per annum, has been republished as the cheapest periodical any where published.

The Cultivator will continue to treat of the science of agriculture, to furnish instructions for the best models of practice in all the departments of husbandry, in horticulture, and other rural affairs, and to furnish useful lessons for the improvement of the young mind. The Conductor will endeavor to render it a present help, and a volume of useful reference, to all who have the ambition to distinguish themselves in rural labours and rural improvements—to help themselves and to benefit society.

Subscriptions to the above work received by A. COWAN, Annapolis.

OUR THREE FIRST VOLUMES.

The second edition of vol. 1, and the first edition of the 2d and 3d vols. of the Cultivator, being about expended, and the demand for them continuing unabated, we are printing another edition, which will be completed with all despatch. Orders will, in the mean time, be received, and the volumes forwarded as soon as published. When completed, stitched and bound volumes will be forwarded to our agents in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Alexandria, &c.
