

The Governor and Council, having granted permission to the banks to suspend specie payments, they have all availed themselves of the privilege, except that the People's Bank—required of that institution that before they send the payment of specie, they should exhibit of the state of their affairs—they had not yet done.

We mentioned that on Sunday night lights were placed in the windows of the several dwellings in Montreal; this was also done on Monday, and was to be continued until further order.

The name of Wolford Nelson, noticed yesterday, should have been Robert; Wolford was one sent to Bermuda.

The 71st regiment under the command of Grey, left Montreal for Chambly and St. Johns on Wednesday—they reached St. Johns at 1 o'clock, and immediately proceeded to the place of destination.

To intelligence had been received of the late Mr. Ellis and his family. The insurgents made prisoners of Mrs. Oule and her family, and taken them away.

Two dwelling houses in the village directly opposite St. John were set on fire on Wednesday morning and burned down; the fire was put with the aid of the troops stationed at St. John. This probably led to the report that St. John was seen in flames. The river is not so, and a person at a short distance might have mistaken the one for the other.

Some fears were still felt for the safety of the road, but a large military force is stationed on the principal points, which will exercise an anxious watchfulness.

We do not believe the reports from Kingston. Perth mentioned in the letter from Jefferson county, published in this paper of yesterday.

The Democratic Republicans of Frederick a splendid festival on Saturday in honor of "Glorious Nineteen" and of the great vicin this State in the election of William Wilson to the gubernatorial chair. The barbecue six o'clock field went off in excellent style the procession at night was truly a brilliant affair. We shall have a full account of the same on the occasion, in the next "Citizen."

It is not our duty to anticipate our friends by any detailed description of our own, we will only say, that the whole did honor to Frederick; and that individually, we shall always remember with pleasure an occasion which exhibited in such speaking terms the patriotism and hospitality of our political brethren in our ancient and substantial city.—Baltimore Publican.

What shall we say of New York? It would seem now to expend regrets upon a defeat expected by us and which must bring with it the greatest mortification to our friends in that State, whose cause and whose efforts certainly have a different result. The battle has been fought and lost. All that is now left is to the field and repair damages. No time is lost. A thorough, new and well digested organization is required and on the next trial of strength the right must prevail. We shall continue to give the returns as they come to us, about further remarks of our own, until the amount of the defeat shall be finally known. We could not be much worse and we therefore think it useless now to waste words upon recitals and an idle seeking of causes for result of what we frankly confess we can but poorly understand.—ib.

From the Evening Post.
OUR CITY ELECTION.

The democratic party cannot be charged with weakness in their political duties. They have met the battle manfully. If they are overthrown, it is as the good angels are described in Milton's great poem to have been overthrown of their battles with the rebel spirits.

"Strange fire and devilish engine," practices profligate beyond all former parallels.

We say this, not lightly, nor with any unbecoming ourselves under our defeat, by reviling our political adversaries; but we say it with the strongest conviction that it is true, and the best regret at the extent of corruption and morality which it indicates.

It is well known that enormous sums of money have been raised by the Whigs to carry on an election which has just closed. One list of Whig donations for the purpose has been given, on which stood the sum of thirty thousand dollars. This, it is estimated, is very far below the amount actually raised; indeed, we have heard the fund collected by the Whigs for the purpose of the election stated at more than three times that sum.

The money thus raised was put into the hands of active, intriguing and profligate men who were employed to procure votes.

Besides those who could be bought or bribed in the city; besides the wretches, who could be seduced along the wharves, among whom are several persons claiming to be respectable, but who are not so; besides the many instances of persons on condition of their voting the Whig ticket, arrangements were made for procuring a large number of Whig voters from Philadelphia.

One of the officers of the Philadelphia police, who was supposed from his situation to be abandoned and profligate person in the city, men who were notoriously ready to their consciences for money, engaged to conduct the negotiation. Under his auspices, those of other Whig agents, a selection of these fellows was made, amounting, it is supposed, to about two hundred, who were sent to this place in different divisions. They were each paid twenty-two dollars in advance; instructed to present themselves in each ward, and offer their votes, and after having voted in as many wards as they could, they were to receive a still further compensation.

On arriving at New York, they were taken to the Whig quarters in one of the lower wards, where they received a ticket prepared in a very peculiar manner. It was the printed democratic ticket, but the names were cancelled with a very fine pen, drawing delicate lines across them, which could not be seen on either side. The names of the Whig candidates were then written on the margin with the same fine pen and delicate hand. The ticket had thus all the appearance, outwardly, of being the regular democratic ticket, while in reality it was a Whig ticket. It was prepared in this manner that the fraudulent voter might escape the democratic challengers. To secure him in the mean time from being obstructed by his own party, he was furnished with a written note to some confidential person at the polls, intimating that he was to be allowed to put in his vote without challenging. One of these notes has been discovered, and is taken care of. It was written at the Whig head quarters in the Second Ward, and is directed to one Hewlett, a Whig inspector of elections in the Fourth Ward, desiring him neither to challenge nor to swear the bearer of it.

A gentleman from Philadelphia, who knew something of several of these men, and who saw them hanging about the polls in one or two wards, gave warning to the democratic challengers, and prevented in some instances their voting. But generally it is supposed that they voted several times each, and that the Philadelphia reinforcement swelled the aggregate Whig vote by at least five or six hundred. To stimulate them to greater diligence in the work they had undertaken, these men received a dollar each at the several wards where they succeeded in getting a vote.

This plan of operations and these proceedings under it, have been revealed by one of the persons employed to come on from Philadelphia and vote the Whig ticket. He was known and marked, and in the hope of escaping some of the consequences of being engaged in such an atrocious conspiracy, he has made a full and particular disclosure. His name is Hart Marks, and in another part of this paper will be found a report of a statement made by him before Justice Lowndes at the Lower Police, which, however, does not include many of the particulars we have related.

We forbear to indulge in any of the reflections which so black a transaction naturally leads to excite. In noting down in a plain and naked manner the facts as we have heard them related, and as we believe them to exist, we ask no man to make up a judgment until full and satisfactory proof. A strict investigation is set on foot, and names and circumstances will be given without reserve to the public. The atrocity of the transaction will probably be deepened by the further disclosure.

The moral sense of no small portion of the community is horribly depraved in regard to the means used to secure the majority in a political election. It is time that something should be done to remedy this evil. Public opinion should be corrected by an agreement on the part of all honest and honorable men, of whatever party, to consider him who cheats in an election as infamous as the burglar and the highway robber. The rights of the majority should be protected by enacting severe penalties against those who vote without having the right, and those who are engaged in suborning illegal votes.

MEMBERS OF ASSEMBLY.

The returns will not enable us to give the entire result, but sufficient is known to render it pretty certain that the federalists will have the Assembly.

The returns already in enable us to say that we have elected twenty-six, and the federalists forty-five, making a gain of sixteen to us since last fall.

SERIOUS AFFAIR.

A contest arose yesterday at Chestnut street wharf, which we regret to hear, is likely to result in the death of one of the parties.

Mr. Bowman, the agent of the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Rail Road Line, met Mr. Van Bergen, an agent of the Philadelphia, New Castle and Baltimore Steam Boat Line, on board the ferry boat that plies from the foot of Walnut street to Camden, on the arrival of the passengers from New York in the morning, with a view of procuring them to take passage in their respective lines.

Some dispute arose between them, which caused Mr. Bowman to strike, or strike at, Mr. Van Bergen with his cane. The latter seized the cane in his hand, and drew off the lower part which had served as a sheath to a sword. We understand that there was some attempt on the part of the captain of the boat and others to separate them, but before this was accomplished, Mr. Bowman's sword was passed through the breast of Mr. Van Bergen. The latter was conveyed into a neighboring house, and surgical aid called.

Mr. Bowman is in the hands of the police.—U. S. Gazette.

Among the passengers in the Toronto, which arrived from London a day or two ago, was Christopher Hughes, Esq. our Charge d'Affaires at the Court of Sweden, who, we understand, has obtained permission to make a short visit home. He is the bearer of despatches from our legation in London, with which he proceeds at once to Washington.—N. Y. American.

We learn with much pleasure the arrival of Major General Gaines, who has just completed an arduous and extensive tour of inspection along our western frontier. We have not had the pleasure of seeing the General, but have understood with much gratification, that his health and vigour remains unimpaired.

THE EXPLORING EXPEDITION.
FIRST ACCOUNT OF THEIR ARRIVAL OUT.

U. S. SHIP PEACOCK, }
Madeira, Sept. 10, 1838.

Dear Sir,—According to my promise, I avail myself of this opportunity of writing you a Brig bound to New York. We have had a passage of 23 days from Norfolk to this place. A large of wind parted company with the Commodore, and the Vincennes arrived one day before us. The Vincennes, Peacock, brig Porpoise, the schooner Independence, Sea Gull are all here. All things as yet progress very well. The Peacock is a wet ship, but a good sea boat. We shall, when we arrive at Rio, (which we expect to sail for about the 21st September,) require much repairs, and will be detained some time, when you may expect to hear from me again. Officers and men are all well and in good spirits. Mr. Peale, belonging to the scientific corps, is on board of our ship. I think from all appearances that we shall be able to do something before we return. You may expect to see us about 3 years from this.

CANADIAN EXILES.

The schooner Pers-verance, from Bermuda, having on board a number of those who were exiled by Lord Durham from the Canadas, arrived in Hampton Roads on Thursday evening last. Among the exiles are Dr. Nelson, the most prominent of the insurgents, and Dr. Boyer, editor of the Quotidienne, published in Montreal, and eight others of lesser note. They have gone on to the North.

FOREIGN.

SEVEN DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE.

The packet ship Oxford, at New York, brings London papers to the 6th, and Liverpool to the 8th October.

The weather had been fine and prices of Grain were tending downwards, though no material change had as yet occurred in prices. The duty on Foreign Grain had further advanced and was 16s 6d per qr.

The crops in England appear to have turned out fair, but great uncertainty exists as to those of Ireland and Scotland. The Polish crops are miserably bad.

GREAT FIRE IN LIVERPOOL.

On the 5th October, a destructive fire occurred at Liverpool, which destroyed an immense amount of property. The following persons have sustained losses, viz—Jas. Davis & Co., Henry Davis & Co., Chas. Lawrence & Son, Highfield & Birch, Mr. Charles Birch, Wm. & James Brown & Co., Mr. Davis, Mr. Rigby and Mr. Coston. No mention is made of any insurance. The fire originated in a warehouse in Robert Street North, leading to Prince's dock. It contained a large quantity of cotton, belonging to W. & J. Brown, Molyneux, Wiltby & Co., and Wildes, Pickersgill & Co., and 2200 bales wool.

The building, which was seven stories high, with all the contents, was entirely destroyed, together with an adjoining warehouse, filled with East India produce. The property in the latter was partially saved.

Two dreadful explosions of saltpetre took place, both of which were heard for several miles, and sent forth eruptions of blazing cotton over all the adjacent parts of the town. Fortunately no lives were lost in these explosions, which are described as being grand and terrible beyond description. We lament to add, however, that before the flames were subdued, two men perished.

The rigging of some ship in the Dock caught fire during the second explosion, but the vessels were saved. Much cotton was burnt in the shed of Messrs. W. & J. Brown, that we have mentioned, and the contents of a second shed were also injured. Some warehouses filled with spices were destroyed. The total damage of the fire is estimated at £100,000.

Sam Scott, an American sailor, called the "American leaper," was drowned near Cheltenham, while exhibiting himself as Sam Patch. An iron ship, to be called the British Queen, is to be built to ply between England and Calcutta; tonnage 2,618, and 600 horse power.

Mount Etna has been in eruption during the whole of the month of August. Letters from Turin of the 27th ult. state that a desperate conflict had taken place between a Sardinian and Piedmontese regiment.

The French, it appears, are making active preparations to increase their blockading squadrons on the Mexican coast. The Marengo ship of the line, and the Volcano and Eclair, bombards, are under orders to sail forthwith.

A new continent has been discovered by the French Exploring Expedition to the South Pole, situated to the south of South Shetland. This discovery is considered of real service to nautical and geographical sciences.
