From the Montreal Courier, May 11. TOTAL LOSS OF THE JOHN BULL STEAMER BY FIRE.

Mr. Thomas, Purser of the John Bull Steam er, arrived yesterday at noon with the intelligence that the splendid boat was totally conumed by fire yesterday morning, between 3 and o'clock, off Lavaltrie, about 8 miles above Sorel, while on her way to this city, and we regret to learn that several of the deck passen. gers, who, we believe, were settlers, lost their lives by jumping overboard during the confusion attendant on the removal of the others

When the fire was first discovered, it had burst through the deck over the larboard engine. with such fury, that any attempt to arrest its progress was deemed useless; and it was, there ore immediately decided to run the boat as near the shore as the depth of the water would admit. In the meantime, the boats were low cred, and got ready to convey the passengers on

The passengers—cabin and deck—were safe. ly landed, with the exception of those who leaped overboard. One of the Engineers, it is said s missing. We believe the whole of the cargo s lost, as also the passengers' luggage. passengers were in bed when the accident happened, and some of them escaped with only heir night clothes.

Since the above was written, we have learned that Captain Turple of the Young Queen, whose resael was also in tow assisted with his host and men, in taking the passengers ashore. The John Bull was perhaps, the most value ble steamboat in North America. She cost the proprietors upwards of £22.000, and was only insured £5,000.

ADDITIONAL PARTICULARS.

There were only about twelve cabin passen-gers including two or three ladies, one of whom Miss Ross, was accidently drowned by falling between two boats after she was taken from the wreck of the John Bull. The remainder of the assengers lost every thing but w at they had bird, or at least a creature of some sort that en. The boat was ashore in about ten feet of water, and the engines continued working till she was nearly consumed.

Mr. Thomas, the purser, was the first to die cover the fatal event. He was in bed in his berth, near the foot of the main sairs, leading from the lower to the flush deck, and was away sened by the crackling noise of fire on the same side of the boat, being the larboard Un on going on deck, Mr. Thomas discovered, t his horror, that almost the whole of the boat amidships was in one blaze of fire, and that the flames were making such rapid progress to the stern, that it would be difficult to rouse the passengers from sleep, and get them on the main deck in time to save them. He immedi ately gave the alarm to the captain, and by olied from fifty-five to two hundred and fifty- throwing billets of wood through the skylights

These have all since arrived here, by land, or by the Canada steamer, this morning. The budy of Miss Rose was also brought to town

It is more in sorrow than in anger that we are compelled to state, that the conduct of the Canadian habitans to the unfortunate passengers on board the John Bull, was of a description which reflects the utmost disgrace upon their ancient character for good feeling, humanity and hospitality. They could not be pre the Fr vailed upon to lend the smallest nid, unless as. Cruz. sured of payment to an amount beyond all reasonable compensation; and when they did of Michoacan and Guanajuato advised the Mic launch their canoes, it was evidently more for nister of War and Marine, that Manuel Velez, the purpose of plunder than with the view of at the head of 300 men, entered and took pos. saving life and property.

As an instance of their misconduct, one gen tleman, who was clinging to the stern of the John Bull, cried to some habitans in a canoc for assistance; but they cruelly refused to comply with his request, unless he would promio give them ten dollars. Another of the pas sengers asked for a glass of water, but was harshly told that there was plenty in the river. And, shocking to state, it is said that such was their avidity for plunder that the ear-rings of Miss Ross were torn away. A considerable quantity of baggage, and articles which floated from the wreck, were found secreted in the neighbouring houses; and every request for re-delivery of them proved fruitless, until re peated by a body of two or three of the passengers at once Much property of value still remains concealed in the possession of the coun ry people; and we are truly happy to learn that a body of police has been despitched from town to the spot, in order to protect all that can be saved from the wreck of the unfortunate

It made its appearance in a low piece of swamp, the usual abiding place of ghosts and hob-goblins, which caused may of the most credulous to b lieve it was something very odd if not super human. After having traced the swamps and hills for some time, it was seen to come from thence and enter a small house near by, whose inmates ous gaze, eyed the strange appearance of their friend and fellow citizen, Mr. Richard Hand, completely equipped in a full suit of tar and feathers. Our citizens were soon released from their anxious apprehensions relative to the fate of the family into whose midst he had unceremoniously entered, by the immediate ejecting of man, armed with a quart jug, in pursuit of oil, which was designated to be used in the process of taking off the tar and feathers, not wishing to | ring the night.
